You get the solid quality of Body by Fisher.

Who in the world built this beauty...

EXCLUSIVELY YOURS—WIDE-TRACK WHEELS

Wheels moved out 5 inches for the widest, steadiest stance in America—better cooling for engine and brakes—lower center of gravity for better grip on the road, safer cornering, smoother ride, easier handling. You get the most beautiful roadability you've ever known—in America's Number (1) Road Car!

PONTIAC! America's Number (1) Road Car!

Those exclusive Wide-Track Wheels sparked a chain reaction of wonderful new ideas: You can see the trim, tailored new look . . . it's inches lower without sacrificing roominess or road clearance. The first time you drive it, you'll discover this beauty handles city corners and clings to country curves in a way the conventional narrow-gauge cars can't hope to imitate. And the ride . . . the miraculous freedom from sway, dive and bounce . . . this is an experience in buoyant travel that you won't believe—until you try it.

But there's still more to the new Pontiac to stamp it as the big change for '59:

Vista-lounge interiors with full 360-degree visibility . . . seats actually wider than a sofa . . . Air-Cooled True-Contour Brakes for smooth, effortless control, stop after stop after stop.

The industry's most advanced V-8, Pontiac's Tempest 420, gives you spectacular new responsiveness. And there's a new companion power plant, the Tempest 420E, that delivers phenomenal extra mileage—and does it on regular octane gas!

Come see why no other car can possibly be so new as the new Pontiac—three series: magnificent Bonneville, dramatic Star Chief and brilliant new Catalina.

2 Great New Engines

If you love action—you get the liveliest on wheels with the new Tempest 420 V-8, acclaimed by automotive experts as America's most advanced power plant.

If you want the accent on economy, choose Pontiac's new Tempest 420E. This new V-8 actually delivers better mileage than many smaller cars with so-called "economy engines" . . . and it uses regular octane fuel.

FOLKS and THINGS About Town

THROUGH error Hoyt Reynolds ad was left out of the last issue of Chilton County News. Hoyt didn't like this too much so you will find his ad in the regular place this week. Hoyt, you know, is the Independent candidate for Probate judge against J. C. White the Democratic candidate.

IF we are to have first class schools in our county there is only one way to have them--pay for it. When the 1 cent sales tax election comes up in November go to the polls and vote for better schools. You owe it to your children and to future generations.

THE last bird has flown the nest. Carolyn, our youngest, left last week to take a position with the Southern Bell Telephone Company at Birmingham. She is in the accounting department and will make her home there. Of course we suppose she will keep the road pretty hot coming home week-ends, but it really leaves a vacancy in the old home-stead.

SECRETARY to Sen. John Sparkman, Horne, made us a social call last week and visited awhile. He was just calling on friends as he made his trip through the state. As always he was ready, willing and able to supply answers to the many questions one has regarding the doings in the Capitol. He made Columbiana by nightfall to join in big doings there.

EDDIE WATERS got a bar of new pink miracle soap out of his mail box Monday evening at the post office. Even your best friends won't tell you--but your postoffice will.

MRS. R. C. Williams, Myra, is Membership Chairman of the Chilton County High School Parent -Teachers this year. Also, October is membership month and Myra is requesting all who possibly can to pay their 1958-59 membership dues as soon as possible, say about right now. Membership Chairman is a big and thankless job and the mothers and fathers of P-T. A. should cooperate with the officers of the association and not make them run all over creation trying to get them to do something that is their privilege and duty.

WANT the weather low-down for the next week? Here it is free of charge and just accurate as any weather forecast you'll find anywhere: Oct. 17th fair and cool 18th and 19th, generally fair with scattered rains: 20th and 21st, cool and pleasant; 22nd and 23rd scattered rains. Now you know just what to do--wait and see what the Lord sends and like it.

These mornings 'bout the hardest work we do all day is getting up.

L & N Magazine tells of the boss who visited one of his employees at the hospital. "Now George", he said, "don't you worry. Everybody at the office is going to pitch in and do your work--as soon as we find out what you were doing.

MILTON BARTH died early Wednesday morning. Hundreds of families in our community will mourn the death of Milton. He helped those in need may times over without usual publicity or fan fair. He asked no thanks--expected no return. He just loved to help people who were not so fortunate as he. He will be long remembered by his many friends here.

CEMETERY CLEANING

There will be a cemetery cleaning at Pleasant Hill Church Saturday. Everyone interested is urged to come and bring tools to work with.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO LOCAL VETS

New regulations have been issued recently by the Veterans Administration which may either extend the time allowed to get into training and education or to extend the time to re-enter after having been out more than the 12 months allowable time between dropping and re-enrolling. If you are a Korean Veteran and have eligibility remaining, you may still be eligible for education, subsistenance and training even if you have been denied previously.

For complete information, write directly to your VA Regional Office, 400 Lee Street, Montgomery, Alabama or contact one of the following in Clanton, Alabama:

Car Stolen--

TWO LOCAL FIRMS BURGLARIZED

LAMBERT Motor Company was entered Sunday night by unknown thieves who made away with a 1952 Plymouth. Entry to the building was accomplished by the thievcs using a tire tool to pry open a window in the rear of the building.

They searched until they found the keys to the Plymouth and left by raising the side door and then lowering it again.

The automobile has not been recovered to date.

Someone also entered the Carole Truck and Tractor Company the same night by breaking and emering. They ransacked the place for automobile keys to fit one of the cars, but to no avail. Keys were scattered on the desk and over the front seat of one of the cars, but after being unable to find keys to fit the cars, evidently gave up and left. Nothing of value was missing according to Clint Carlisle, owner.

SOME people never get up in the world because they wait for someone else to give them a boost.

COMMON SENSE brings more happiness in life than genuis does.

ONE hour lost in the morning may cause you to race all day.

PEOPLE may dodge work but they never dodge the reward.

WHEN you lack enthusiasm it takes you twice as long to finish the task.

A LOT of us are misunderstood because there is nothing in us to understand.

IF YOU do climb out of the rut--don't fall in the ditch by the wayside.

USUALLY the fellow with a black eye isn't looking for trouble--he's already found it.

CAUTION WAS TAKEN

Much has been said since last week about the Chief of Police of Thorsby, Ed Headley, who came at a fast clip through Clanton during the afternoon with the siren wide open.

Odd how a little light thrown on a situation changes the complexies of the case. Chief Headley had radioed to the Clanton police to clear him through town that he was in persuit of an automobile that had just passed through Thorsby at, according to Chief Headley, seventy miles per hour. The local police station told him to notify them when he reached the top of the hill at Ellis Tourists Courts and they would stop the lights and freeze the traffic. This they did and the officer went on his way after his lawbreakers.

To the layman it was a dangerous and careless thing to do to say the least and most of the merchants and shoppers were ensensed at what they thought was unnecessary speed through the business section.

But as we stated above a little light on the subject shows that the officer had taken every precaution and the local police had given him cooperation in every way to protect the public and yet apprehend the speeding automobile going south.

All which goes to show you there are two sides to every question and we profit best if we get the facts first.

THE TIME -- OCTOBER, 1958

October is a pleasant month, one of our favorites. Crisp air . . . football , , , raking leaves . . . Hallowe'en . . .

It is also a month when candidates for public office are busily explaining their views to the voters before the November elections. This October, especially, it would be well to pay close attention to what our congressional candidates are saying.

The foreign situation has been even more tense than usual. The national debt is climbing to an all-time record. Inflation is robbing our pocketbooks. The federal government has been seizing more and more power from our state and local governments. Labor monopolies are threatening our economic lifelines, and labor racketeers are thumbing their noses arrogantly at the entire nation.

What do our would be congressmen intend to do about these problems? As Americans, we have the right to know—and the responsibility to find out. Government is not just the politician's business. It is our business. We should be sure of what each candidate stands for before we step into the polling booth on Nov. 4.

MORAL OBSERVATIONS

He answered them, He that made me whole, the same said unto me, Take up thy bed and walk. St. John, 5:11.

If Christ had been talking in our day using our common manner of expression, I think he would have said to the man, "You are forgiven, now get up and get going! Move on, and make progress!" The point is, too many of us stay too close to where we were when we started on the road to a better life. The reason we keep being ducked in the old cess pool of sorrow and sin is because we don't get far enough away from it. "Take up they bed and walk!" As long as we hang around too close to temptation we are in constant danger of being overtaken by it.

The best way to overcome temptation is not to have time for it. Be on the move! As long as we are busy with doing good, temptation doesn't have much power. The only way to enjoy the better life is to move on and accomplish something. To stand still and not make progress is uneventful and does not enhance encouragement and enjoyment, but to move on brings new interest and pleasure from achievements, and opens new horions of faith, thus strengthening character and determination.

The only way to make the Bible an interesting book to read is to put into practice in our lives what the Bible teaches! The Bible will never be interesting to us if we sit on the stool of "do nothing". A woman was disturbed because she did not find the bible interesting. She told her pastor that she enjoyed other literature but the bible was dull and uninteresting and hard to understand. Her pastor instructed her to take her bible and read just far enough to find something it said to do, and then stop and go do what it said, and then read on until she found something else it commanded her to do, and go do that, and he told her to keep this up for two weeks and then let him know how she was enjoying reading it. After doing as her pastor instructed, she told him that she was finding it the most interesting of anything he had ever read.

To try to live the christian life without making progress is a dull and uninteresting experience! It is the getting things done, the satisfaction that comes from accomplishment, the peace of mind and heart that comes from knowing that we have done what we could that makes christian living interesting and enjoyable! Take thy bed, and walk! Grow in Grace, and in knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

MR. AND MRS. DISCUSS VOTING

And Pick Their Candidate

"It's getting close to voting time, George," Molly said. "Have you decided who you're going to vote for?"

"Yep, I sure have," the Mr. replied, "and I find most of the folks I've talked with agree with me. We need some men in Washington who don't think they have to take all our money in taxes so the government can turn around and spend it looking after us from the cradle to the grave."

Molly smiled. "Our 'government servants' don't seem to give us much credit for being able to look after ourselves, do they?' she said.

"No, and I blame a lot of it on the labor unions," George said. "They put up the money and get out the vote to elect a lot of politicians who think the only thing Americans want is guaranteed lifetime security at government expenses. And they never stop to think that 'government expense' is just another way of saying "tax money out of your own pocket".

"I'm in favor of spending as much as necessary to defend America," the Mr. continued, "but the man I vote for is also going to be in favor of defending us individual Americans against the growing expenses and controls of our own government."

Open Letter From The Supt. Of Education

The time is fast approaching for the citizens of our county to go to the polls and vote their conviction on the one cent sales tax. November 4 is the date and that isn't far off.

When one votes for the tax he is voting to help boys and girls of Chilton County have better and more adequate facilities. All the revenue derived from the tax will be spent on buildings, equipment and maintenance of all the schools Not one penny can be spent otherwise.

Up to the present time all sections of the county seem to favor the tax for it is a fair one. Everyone realizes a tax of this kind gives each person a chance to do his part.

Many clubs, P-TA's, and organizations have endorsed the proposed tax unanimously and have pledged their cooperation to work for the passage of it.

Some people who might be opposed to public education will no doubt try to confuse the issue by questioning the real needs of the chools and how the money may be spent.

Of course, we should interest curselves in how the money raised from the one cent sales tax will be spent and it is fitting that all sides of the question should be looked into carefully by each voter before casting his ballot, however in making an exabination we should not lose sight of the central issue "what are we going to do about the educational opportunities of the children in every community of Chilton County."

Will we give our children in all the schools the same educational opportunities offered in Bibb, Franklin, , Lawrence, and other counties that have this same one cent sales tax or will we short - change our children in Chilton County because we were misinformed about the central issue?

Your Superintendent of Education are elected officials responsible to the people. All people on the Chilton County Board's payroll are under official bond. Certainly these people want to see every penny of this money used in a way which will bring about the greatest educational benefits for all children. This means, for example, that school buildings, construction and major repairs that are paid for with revenue from the one cent sales tax will be done on a bid basis and contracts will be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder. Of course, for our protection these contractors would be required to furnish a bond to guarantee faithful performance of he contract.

I am sure that in all phases of this proposed program of school building construction, equipping and maintaing that all activities will be carried on in a business like manner and that all purchases will be made to conform with he Alabama Purchasing Act which was passed by the legislature.

Your Superintendent and Board of Education are tax paying citizens of this county and they, too, desire that every precaution be taken to insure Chilton County of getting a dollars worth of school construction for every dollar spent. This tax runs out like every other tax for schools and will extend for the same length of time as all other local school taxes, 20 years.

On a per person basis in Chilton County we are paying less than 82 local school tax while we are spending approximately $170 on each school child. The national verage spent on each child is $320 per year.

Again, let me urge each of you to carefully consider the one cent sales tax proposal --"What Are We Going To Do About The Educational Opportunities Of Our Children In Every Community of Chilton County?" — W. A. Lecroy.

Congress May Revise Taxes Next Session

Improving economic conditions are bolstering hopes that the next Congress will take steps to ease the heavy burden on U. S. taxpayers.

Tax reform advocates drew encouragement from Treasury Secretary Robert Anderson's statement that present economic growth eases the way for tax reform.

"We are firmly convinced," said Anderson, "that the tax structure must be further improved so as to provide the minimum of interference with the incentive of individuals, which is so basically important to our free enterprise system."

The Treasury Secretary said the "economic recovery now well under way is a factor which is on our side."

"With progress in controlling the budget," he added, "we can deal more effective with the economic and social burden imposed by our present high level of taxation and make further strides toward tax simplification and reform so that our tax system can function as effectively and equitably as possible."

Our annual Homecoming will be held next Sunday, October 19th. We extend a cordial invitation to everyone to attend.

WHEREAS, notice of such election, together with the proposed amendment is required by law and by the provisions of the act submitting the amendment, to be given by a proclamation of the Governor to be published in each county in the State of Alabama once a week for four successive weeks next preceding the day appointed for the election;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, James E. Folsom, as Governor of the State of Alabama, do hereby give notice, direct and proclaim that on Tuesday the 4th day of November, 1958, an election will be held at the several polling places within the State of Alabama, in the manner and form provided by law upon the following proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901:

"When authorized by a vote of a majority of the qualified electors voting at an election held for such purpose, the court of county commissioners, board of revenue, or like governing body of Montgomery County shall have power to levy and collect additional taxes for school purposes on the taxable property located in the county at a rate not to exceed fifty-five one-hundredths of one per cent of the value of the taxable property located within the county. An election to determine whether or not such taxes shall be levied and the time during which such tax is to continue shall be called, held, and conducted in the manner provided by law for calling, holding, and conducting elections to determine whether district school taxes shall be levied and collected under this Constitution. The provisions of this amendment shall not limit, modify, abridge, or impair the power, authority, or right of municipalities or school districts to levy and collect special school taxes as provided by law."

I further direct and proclaim that notice of this election upon Tuesday the 4th day of November 1958, upon the above set forth amendment to the Constitution of the State of Alabama of 1901, be given by publishing the same once a week for four successive weeks next preceding the day of November 1958 in each county in the State of Alabama in a newspaper published in said county.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and have caused the Great Seal of the State of Alabama to be affixed by the Secretary of State, at the Capitol in the City of Montgomery on this the 18th day of August 1958.

Big Business Depends On Small Firms Help

This may come as a surprise to some people, but so-called "big" business and "little" business are so inter-related and interdependent that either could prosper economically without the help and cooperation of the other.

A perfect example of this tie-up is the report of an eastern firm which does an extensive petroleum chemical business. It said it dealt with 30,000 different suppliers in 1957, most of them small concerns, just to keep its own plants operating properly.

It estimated that it purchased more than $680 million worth of materials and services from these "little fellows."

Purchases ranged from carload lots of such things as linseed oil and acetic acid to paper cups and slide rules. They involved such odd-ball items as hay knives for special cutting assignments, right-handed golf gloves for material cutters, embroidery hoops and gun-cleaning patches for laboratory tests, and even nylon fishing nets to catch waste material as it was unwound at high speed.

The company said that $710 million of the $860 million it spent on goods and services in 1957 went for raw materials, supplies, and chemicals. The balance went into new and expanded plant facilities, and this phase alone involved more than 10,000 contractors and suppliers.

"One thing that is often overlooked," a company spokesman explained, "is that our company, like most big firms, depends on small suppliers to keep our facilities in operation. Of the 30,000 companies that we buy from, more than 90 per cent have less than 500 employees.

"Even more significant is the fact that a good many of them have increased their own business, and have grown with us. Not all unusual is the one-man operation that was started several years ago to make filter cloths for one of our plants. Today, this operator employs a half-dozen workers, and sells his cloths to several other customers, in addition to us.

"This proves one thing very positively; big companies must rely on the flexibility of small suppliers and service establishments to keep their production lines on schedule. Big and small businesses are very interdependent.

"On many jobs, for instance, the small local supplier is the only one who is set up to give fast service and at the same time meet exacting requirements. Exemplifying this is the machine shop which makes and reconditions steel parts for one of our plans. Because of its size and ability to work closely with our plant, it is able to adapt quickly and economically to frequent design changes in plant equipment.

"Next time," the official said, "you hear someone say that big business is running the little fellow out of the picture remind him of facts like these."

APPENDECTOMY IN CHILDREN

How safe is appendectomy in children? A children's hospital has reported that there have been no deaths during the past 12 years during 1,309 consecutive cases of appendicitis. Accurate early diagnosis is the most important single factor in the care of the patient with appendicitis.

The usual symptoms are abdominal pain, fever and vomiting and are indicative of appendicitis unless proven otherwise. Appendicitis is rare during the first year of life, uncommon during the second year, and after this is seen with increasing frequency. Pain is usually constant and vomiting is present in almost all cases and is usually preceded by loss of appetite. Fever is generally low-grade among children with appendicitis, unless there is a ruptured appendix leading to peritonitis. The treatment for appendicitis is prompt surgery.

To operate on children with safety, they should be in the best condition that the disease will permit. Preparation of the patient with simple appendicitis, with symptoms of short duration, and without rupture, usually presents no difficulty. This is not the case, however, for children with symptoms of longer duration and those who are being poisoned from ruptured appendix with peritonitis. The preparation before operation in these seriously sick children includes hydration, sedation, reduction of fever, and the use of antibiotics.

The after-operation care of a child patient with acute unruptured appendicitis is normally simple with the average hospital stay about five to six days. The post-operative care of a child patient with ruptured appendix is more involved and the hospital stay is twelve days or more. In almost half of the cases reported above, there had been rupture of the appendix.

NEW CHEVY CAR-TRUCK ON DISPLAY

DETROIT -- "More than a car -- more than a truck", the El Camino, new to the Chevrolet line for 1959, combines bold, fleet passenger car styling, comfort, handling, and appointments with highly acceptable truck utility.

The El Camino, which goes on display at Chevrolet dealerships October 16, is designed as a true dual-purpose vehicle for personal transportation and for hauling light or bulky loads up to 1150 pound.

In its lithe styling with low belt line, large windshield raked back into the slim-lined roof, cadet visor projecting over the sweep - around rear window, and large fairy lines, the El Camino carries a distinct passenger car concept. The extensive glass arear, measuring 4121 square inches, affords control-tower visibility to front ides and rear.

Interior appointments and styling also bear the passenger car hallmark of quality and refinement.

NEW SWIVEL SEATS IN '59 CHRYSLER

New swivel front seats, which silently outward a full 40 degrees for easy entry and exit, are standard equipment on Chrysler 300E models and optional in all others except Town & Country wagons. The new swivel seat is available either with manual or six - way electric seat adjuster.

Once the front door on either side is opened, the seat is unlatched by lifting a lever on the seat frame. The seat then swings outward automatically, away from the center of the car. The driver or passenger sits down, twists slightly and the seats swings into position, latching automatically.

Red Cross Gives Tips On Over-Seas Gifts

The odds-on choice for Christmas of servicemen overseas is--to be home. Short of that ideal gift, they've told American Red Cross field directors, they would like home to come to them--in the form of home-made foods, family photos, recordings of family gatherings, hometown papers and, above all else, more mail.

In a Red Cross survey, many stated that the best possible Christmas gift would be a promise from the folks at home to write regularly throughout the year--"A letter every week for the whole year is better than any single Christmas gift," they all said.

However, homemade food ranked high as a preferred gift-- "Any food from home tastes so much better than mess halls or local bakeries can provide". Other favorite gifts were small shots of the family midst Christmas decorations as a reminder of the times when the servicemen were at home for the holidays and how it will be when they return.

Popular also are recordings of family members, friends and neighbors telling about what goes on at home. All had one admonition keep it cheerful!"

Many servicemen asked for subscriptions to the hometown newspaper, preferably by air mail -- "The papers carry lots of little local items which are interesting to read but which nobody thinks to write us about."

Christmas parcels should be mailed between November 1 and November 20 for delivery by surface mail--ship--to servicemen overseas, and by December 10 for delivery by air mail.

S. S. PAYMENTS TO DISABLED WORKERS

An important notice was enclosed with the social security checks delivered October 3 to the 200,000 disabled workers who are receiving monthly disability insurance benefits. This notice told them about a provision in the 1958 Amendments to the social security law under which supplementary dependent's benefits may be paid to certain members of his family.

Disability insurance benefits have been payable to severely disabled workers 50 to 65 years of age since July 1957. These disability payments are equal in amount to the monthly old-age insurance benefits the worker would receive if he were already 65 years of age, but the dependents of these workers have not until now been eligible for payments.

Under the new amendments, the disabled person's dependents will be paid the same benefits they would receive if he were 65 and drawing benefits as a retired worker. Benefits can be paid to any of his children who are under age 18 (or who have been totally disabled since before their 18th birthdays), and to his wife regardless of her age, if she has in her care children who are eligible for these dependent's benefits. If there is no child in the family eligible for benefits, the wife of a disabled person can qualify for benefits when she reaches 62.

It is estimated that about 180,000 dependents of disabled workers could start collecting benefits, beginning with a payment for the month of September 1958. Before payment can be made, however, an application must be filed by or on behalf of the eligible dependent with the nearest social security office.

UNICEF "TRICK" OR A GOOD TREAT

The boys and girls of all the Churches in the Clanton area will join hands and work together to make this year's "Trick or Treat" halloween fun really mean something.

This is a project of the churches in which the boys and girls put forth a big effort to help all the children of the United Nations. It is a time when they ask for a "treat" of money instead of "sweets" a time when they are especially thinking of others.

When a Unicef boy or girl knocks on your door this Halloween, give them a "treat" for the United Nations Children.

CLANTON, ALABAMA | VOLUME XXXVI | THURSDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1958 | NUMBER 43

Clanton Police To Go On 8-Hour Shifts

Effective December 1, 1958 Clanton Policemen will be working 8 hours per day - six days a week instead of the 12 hour shift 6 days a week, which they have been working for the past several years.

TO ADD TWO MEN TO FORCE

We realize that this will possibly be an extra expense to the City, but 72 hours per week, which they work now is too long for efficiency's sake. We also feel that by having shorter hours we will have a police department equally or superior in efficiency to any City of our size.

Two new policemen will be required to complete our Staff. Any applicants for job should come to the City Hall and fill out an application blank. Applicants will be considered between the ages of 24 and 55 years of age.

Each year the FBI has conducted a week of training for all officers in the County, in addition we will set up a training class once each month for all officers to study local and State Laws which we may be confronted with.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY AT CCHS

OLD AGE PENSION CHECKS TO BE LATE

October old age pension and assistance checks from the State Department of Pensions and Security will be late reaching needy people, Miss Clara Durham, Acting Director, said today. She pointed out that factors beyond the control of the State and county departments caused the delay and said it was regretted very much. "I am glad, however, that October payments for the most part will be higher than those paid in September," she said.

"It will not help any for pensioners or recipients to call or write either the State or county departments," Miss Durham said. She explained that the State Department could not help the delay which was due to extra work necessary to raise most checks at a time when the agency had to move into a new building. She said the State workers had done weekend and overtime work, but still checks would be late.

"Though we do not know the exact date the checks will be mailed, persons should not expect them until 10 days or more after the usual time," Miss Durham concluded.

Information on Wheat Marketing Quotas

Farmers who intend to plant wheat this fall were reminded today by Eddie Owen, Chairman, Chilton County ASC Committee, of the importance of knowing the provisions of the wheat allotment and marketing quota program in order that they may make their plans accordingly.

Discussing the effects of compliance or noncompliance with the farm wheat allotment, Mr. Owen listed the following as the chief ways in which the farmer can be affected:

1. Marketing Quotas: The farmer who is within his farm's 1959 allotment may market his entire wheat production without penalty. The farmer who is over the allotment will ordinarily be subject to a penalty on the normal production of his exces acreage. However, any farmer may harvest up to 15 acres of wheat without penalty. Also, a farmer with an allotment of less than 30 acres may apply for a feed wheat exemption and, if it is approved, may produce up to 30 acres of wheat to be used on the farm where grown.

2. Price Supports. The farmer who complies with his 1959 acreage allotment will be eligible for price support. The farmer who exceeds his allotment will not.

3. Soil Bank Payments: The farmer who complies with his '59 wheat allotment may earn Conservation Reserve payments in 1959 provided he is otherwise qualified. The farmer who exceeds his allotment, produces more than 15 acres of wheat and is not participating in the feed wheat program is ineligible for Conservation Reserve payments.

4. Future wheat allotments: For purpose of computing future allotments, the farmer who complies with his 1959 allotment receives credit for his full wheat base. In that way he gets credit for the acreage diverted from wheat. The farmer who exceeds his 1959 allotment reheives history credit only for the allotment (except that if the allotment is more than 15 acres he may store his excess wheat under marketing quota regulations or deliver it to the Government and in that way receive credit for his base acreage.)

"GATEWAYS TO THE MIND"

The amazing story of what scientists have learned about the human senses is told in the Bell System Science program, "Gateways to the Mind." This one-hour color program shows how we receive stimulations through our senses, transmit them as electrical impulses to the brain for possible action and store them in our memory for future reference. This scientific story of what really happens when we see, hear, taste, smell and feel is dramatically presented through the skillful blending of "live" action, explanatory animation and unusual documentary film. Narrator and guide for this adventure in science is Dr. Frank Baxter, "Gateways to the Mind" is the first Science Series program produced for the Bell System by Warner Brothers. Previous Science Series programs produced by Frank Capra, are "Our Mr. Sun", "Hemo the Magnificient," "The Strange Case of the Cosmic Rays", and "The Unchained Goddess", all of which are available on 16 mm color film for showings to schools, civic clubs, and any public groups. "Gateways to the Mind" can be seen on Thursday, October 23, 1958, from 7 - 8 P.M. on W. S. F. A. - TV. Channel 12. I hope that all of you will be watching and I know you will find this program both informative and entertaining.

GOOD SCHOOL BOARD

One of the most foolish and numerous arguments against the one-cent sales tax is "how do we know this money will be spent?"

The County Board of Education is compromised of honest, fairminded, christian gentlemen. We elected them to attend our school affairs. They have the school children and the county school at heart and by the position they hold, it is certainly clear they are doing a public service. Not for the money they collect as remuneration for their services -- for goodness they work for nothing -- but for a feeling of gratification for having served your city, your community, and your county.

Believe us when we say that the money will be administered properly and fairly if the citizens of Chilton County will but give the Board something to work with.

The members of the Board come from various parts of the county and one school will share the same as another school, according to its needs.

And goodness knows Chilton County has a crying need for better schools and equipment today.

HIGHWAY DILEMMA --

All states have increased their road building programs. The American Road Builders Association estimates the total outlay for highways this year will be $6.6 billion, a billion-dollar increase over 1957.

But most of the money will go into primary roads, particularly the 41,000-mile Federal interstate network. To take advantage of Federal provisions for aid, many states are reducing the amount of money they had planned to spend on non-Federal highways, such as secondary and county roads - the rural "back roads. If money has not been diverted, attention has - by state departments assigning priority attention to the "more important" roads.

Yet these older, secondary roads carry most of the traffic load. They connect our homes and farms with towns where we shop and work. The American Automobile Association estimates that 80 percent of all driving is on such roads.

Highway officials find themselves in a dilemma. They need all the Federal aid funds that are available to build fast, smooth primary roads for tomorrow's expected increase in driving. At the same time, they cannot afford to neglect the existing roads that handle today's needs.

Much can be done to make older roads safer with moderate, wise expenditures. Pavements can be repaired, easily visible center and edge strips added, shoulders graded and widened, and sight distances improved by trimming trees and shrubs and removing obstructions.

Especially needed, according to safety experts, are good markings of hazards-the unseen curve ahead, the narrow bridge, the pavement bump. Because roads are notoriously dangerous after dark, new traffic signs and hazard warnings are made of special materials that gleam brightly under headlights and give drivers 24-hour warning of the hazard.

Everybody agrees that it will be years before we can remove all hazards from old roads and build the necessary new roads. It would seem wise to make the roads we already have as safe as possible.

LETTER FROM MISS CROWE

MY TRIP TO MOBILE

By Esther Crowe

I was lonesome and blue, so I decided to visit my uncle and aunt and cousin over the week end in Mobile. I boarded a bus at 4:23 in Selma Saturay morning. I had a nice ride arriving at my aunt and uncles a little after 9:00.

Sunday morning my cousins and I went to church. Sunday afternoon they took me sight seeing. I saw the bay, old ships, and many other things of interest.

We went through the tunnel. Then we decided to walk around and take some snapshots, so the people back home could see them. As we were walking down a little path, a man and a boy were fishing in a stream near the path. They had caught one a big crab, and it was laying in the path. My cousin walked over it, and seeing it hollowed back "watch our Esther", I jumped just as it was about to get my leg. It sure had enough legs of its own.

Don't let anyone kid you about Mobile, its a wonderful and beautiful place. Ful of thrills, chills and spills.

Carry this motto when you visit. "Be careful, keep your eyes wide open, and be ready to jump."

To my surprise coming home on the bus Tuesday morning, who did I see, but a school pal. I hadn't seen, for two years. We talked of school, husbands, and old times, etc.

We are both 17, and we love life. A good life in these United States is hard to beat.

MT. PLEASANT FOR 1-CENT TAX

On Thursday night, October 9, at a meeting of citizens in the Mt. Pleasant Community, Mr. J. P. Payne, President of the Chilton County Board of Education, Mr. James Duke Heflin, Vice-President of the Board, and Mr. W. A. LeCroy, Superintendent of Education, discussed the proposed one-cent sales tax which will be voted on November 4 and what it will mean to the county ad to the Mt. Pleasant School if it passes.

After considerable discussion the group voted unanimously to endorse the tax and work for its passage.

Peach borers kill more Trees than any disease

1958 has been a very difficult year to keep on schedule with trunk sprays. Now is the time to make inspections and to apply basal treatments if borers are present. You may need to basal treat even though you applied three summer trunk sprays. If you applied only one or two sprays, chances are that little affect toward borer control is dectable. Only two materials have proven to be safe to use as basal fumigants in peach tree borer control.

They are:

1. Ethylene Dichloride and
2. Paradichlorobenzene (Trade Name P. D. B.)

Check with your County Agent for further details.

Fire Ant Program Outline

Recent changes in Federal - State Imported Fire Ant Program makes it more practical to land owners.

Features of new program are:

1. Farmers are no longer expected to share in cost of treating wooded areas.
2. State and Federal government will pay total cost of material if land owner will assume all cost of applying. Materials can be applied in connection with a fertilizer application.
3. Land owners may elect to share total cost of material and labor on 1|3 of his open land and State and Federal government will complete treatment of his farm.

Land owners may individually select one of the alternatives above. However, for economy sake it is desirable that an individual community select the one plan that the majority of land owners prefer.

Land owners within an approved area that have - on their own -treated during 1958 to effectively control fire ants will receive credit for their individual effort.

Community meetings will be held thoroughout the county to further discuss the new pest control reglations in more detail directly with land owners.

THINGS We see and hear

by BOB

LADY by the News the other day to buy a "news" and she said "do you have a today's paper". She was told we had a 'this week's paper this was a weekly publication. "What's wrong," she said in complete amazement; "why I can't understand a town this size not having a daily newspaper!" We appreciate her reference to our town as a sizeable one, however, we feel she isn't completely 'boned up' on the newspaper field.

A CAMPAIGN is being stressed this year for local merchants to cooperate on a single theme for their Christmas Season business and really go out for it. It is our contention that local businesses are, and will be, better stocked with quality goods this year than any previous year. Please, Mr. Merchant, for your own good and the sake of our community, don't just stand in the doorway now with that "here it is, come and get it" look. They ain't coming unless you tell them you've got the goods. . . and at competitive prices with the surrounding larger cities. The only way we can create more business is to sell the people on the undisputed fact that we have something to offer them. Don't take it for granted, however, that they know what you have and how it's priced. Take it from us, folks just don't know about every business in town, no matter what the owner might think. You've got to tell them and show them and sell them. . . and above all. . . please them!

DID you know that garbage collection alone, in the city of Clanton amounts to more than the ad valorem tax each year Bet you didn't know that!

ANOTHER strange comparison: The Clanton Police force costs no more each year than garbage collection. We don't know which is the most expensive to operate, but we don't like the comparison. . . somehow, it just doesn't look good!

LEARNED this week from brother Walker (that's Harold's daddy) over Maplesville way that a shebang of a Homecoming is due this year for the school there. Seems that the Class of '34 which had the first football squad there is going to be present, including cheerleaders and what have you. It promises to be quite a Homecoming when Maplesville High tangles with Isabella High. Watch CCN for further details and date.

WELL, most of the '59 automobiles are out on the market now. What do you think of 'em Yeh, we think they're O.K. Course we don't agree with every little detail of them, but as always, since there's nothing we can do about it, we'll probably get used to them. Anyhow, it's fun to look at the new cars. . . and wonder why you can't have one too!

Other Counties Commend Chilton On Our Move Toward Better Schools For Our Children

October 17, 1958

Mr. W. A. LeCroy
County Supt., of Education
Clanton, Alabama

Dear Mr. LeCroy:

I read a news item in the Birmingham News stating that your patrons of Chilton County are anticipating a levy of a 1% sales and use tax to be used for school construction and maintenance.

I want to congratulate you, your board, and patrons for this endeavor. We in Limestone County feel that the 1% tax is a life saver to our system. It has been in effect for one year and has brought in approximately $160,000 which is divided between city school system and county systems on an average daily attendance basis.

As a result we have a million dollar building program under way. This is to construct new schools, additional classrooms, maintenance, transportation, and equipment.

We felt this was the only way to have good educational facilities for the children of our county, as we are not receiving any assistance from the state.

I hope your tax is passed and a succesful program can be established.

Sincerely,
-s-George H. Roberts,
Supt., of Limestone
County Schools.

October 14, 1958

Mr. W. A. LeCroy
Superintendent
Chilton County Schools
Clanton, Alabama

Dear Mr. LeCroy:

I have noticed with great interest that you and the fine people of Chilton County are considering the passage of a one cent sales tax for schools. We in Bibb County have had such a tax for a little more than a year. During this period of time I have heard no complaint about the tax either from the merchants or the people paying it. It seems to be a tax which adapts itself to local support of schools. I understand that a check with the State Revenue Department shows that for each cent of the present states sales tax about $150,000 has been collected from Chilton County each year. The $150,000 you could expect from the proposed tax added to your present school program would be a tremendous step toward improving your school throughout all Chilton County.

As an example of what it could mean to your county, let me remind you that the new elementary school at Centreville which will house 13 teachers is being built for $124,750. Each year your proposed tax would provide enough money to build one such school plus leaving enough to remodel or rebuild one school such as our remodeling job done on the Randolph School. We in Bibb County will be happy to have you show these two buildings to any of your citizens who want to see what $150,000 could do each year for Chilton County.

I congratulate you and your Board for having furnished the leadership to have the people consider this issue. I am confident that your people can see need for more facilities and will give the upcoming tax a tremendous vote.

Yours for better schools,
-s-B. Hubbard
Ben C. Hubbard, Supt.,
Bibb County Schools.

Superintendent LeCroy has outlined below questions and answers that have been asked about the one-cent Sales Tax which will be voted on November 4.

1. Does this tax have a definite period of time in which it can be collected, or will it be like other taxes and continue indefinitely?

Answer: The sales tax like all other school taxes would be in force for a period of 20 years. If the people wish to continue it at that time, a chance would be given to say yes or no.

2. For what would the revenue derived from the one cent sales tax be used?

Answer: All of the revenue derived from the one cent sales tax would be earmarked or set aside by law for building, equipment and maintaining schools in all of Chilton county.

3. What regulations will the Board of Education have to follow in spending this money?

Answer: All money received from the one cent sales tax will be spent in accordance with the Alabama Purchasing laws. In other words, new buildings and major repairs will be on a contract basis and materials will be on a bid basis. This would assure the people of the county that they will be getting their money's worth on all purchases.

4. What will the one cent sales tax mean to each school?

Answer: Through a survey of actual school needs the Board of Education has determined the approximate amount of money to be spent on each school, and communities can find out what the tax will mean to each school by asking the Board of Education or the Superintendent of Education.

5. How will the improvements of school buildings under the Board's plan compare with improvements made in the past?

Answer: The passage of the proposed tax would give the Board an opportunity to build more needed classrooms, indoor restrooms, lunchrooms, science departments, libraries, gymnasiums and other badly needed facilities than have been built in the last 30 or 40 years.

6. What are some advantages of the sales tax as compared with an increase in ad valorem taxes or removal of exemptions?

Answer The sales tax places the responsibility on all people whereas the ad valorem tax places the burden only on the property owners and the removal of exemptions would place the burden on farm people who use seeds, feeds, fertilizers and insecticides.

7. What advantage, if any, are there in locally supporting a building program rather than depending upon the state?

Answer: A 100 to 150 million dollar building program in Alabama would allow Chilton County with her rather stable school population approximately enough money to build only one good school building. Most of the money would go into larger counties like Jefferson, Mobile, Montgomery, Madison and others where there has been a tremendous increase in school population. Under these conditions we could not build but would have to tack on to the poor facilities we already have and we would continue to have a big maintenance program which would have to be paid out of school money which otherwise could be used on the instructional program.

8. What is the advantage of letting qualified voters vote on the tax rather than have our legislators levy it?

Answer: The voters' approval would give our legislators bargaining power in the legislature that would help them protect our rural county of Chilton against removal of the present exemptions and an unfair increase in ad valorem taxes. Too, this would let everyone know that we in Chilton County are willing and ready to support adequate education for our boys and girls in our county. This would make us more independent in operating our schools locally.

9. There is talk of a state-wide one cent sales tax to be put on by the legislature. What will happen if the people vote "Yes" on the local tax and the legislature passes an extra one cent sales tax?

Answer: Your Board of Education has carefully considered this fact and in doing so has made an agreement with the local Representative and Senator to drop the local one cent sales tax proposed if the legislature were to pass the additional tax state wide.

Imaginary Trip 'Round World

ED'S NOTE: To better acquaint her students with creative writing and how to write letters, etc. Mrs. Lela Belle Moore of Clanton Elementary fourth grade is instructing her students by letting them write letters to their parents detailing their "world tour". The following is a letter written by Miss Susan Powell to her parents. It's kinda cute; we thought you'd like to see it.

Tutwiler Hotel
Birmingham, Alabama
Oct. 14, 1958

Dearest Mother & Daddy,

We are detained in Birmingham for a few days as Mrs. Moore was called to Memphis, due to the illness of her brother. Mrs. Bean stayed with us while Mrs. Moore was on her trip. Mr. and Mrs. Enfinger came up last night and had dinner with us.

I am so excited I could almost jump into the air. Mrs. Moore will be back tomorrow and we will continue our tour of Birmingham. We will go to Kiddieland, the Vulcan, and the zoo.

Mr. Jones at the bank was so kind to deposit our money and advised us to use travelers checks on our world tour.

We appreciate Mr. Petterson's patience with our tickets and baggage.

I will write again before we leave Birmingham about some of the sights we see.

With love,
Susan Powell

MORAL OBSERVATIONS

He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed shall doubtless come again with rejoicing bringing his sheaves with him. Psalms 126:6.

A naughty teen-age boy, after bad company and at the wrong places, which was contrary to his staying out late one night with mother's will and teaching, tiptoed in, to try to conceal the lateness of the hour from his mother. But as he passed the open door to her bed room, as he slipped down the hall, he could see her dim form kneeling in prayer by her bedside. He knew that she was praying for his. He went to his own bed, but he couldn't sleep. He rolled and tossed all the rest of the night, and finally surrendered his life to christ and became one of the worlds outstanding ministers.

A young man was saved during a revival service. The minister anxiously inquired of him just what caused him to surrender his life to christ, if it was because of any particular sermon that he had preached during the revival services. But the young man answered, "It was not because of any particular sermon, or anything else during the revival, but rather it was because of the prayers and christian influence of my christian mother."

How little seems our accomplishments sometimes, and how often we have heard these words spoken in discouragement, "It just doesn't seem to do any good!" We have heard it from mothers and fathers concerning the correction and teaching of their children. We have heard it from even ministers who had a hard parrish. We have heard it from so many who were attempting to carry the responsibility of doing a good work. It is easy to become discouraged when we can not see any visible results of our labours, but we should remember that God doesn't hold us responsible for the results. It is our business to sow the seeds of good works to best of our ability, and leave the results with God who is able to take the least and the weakest and bring about wonders that we never dreamed of.

I wonder sometimes how many who lie in their graves, the good seed that they sowed during their lives on earth, are still springing up in the hearts and lives of people. They never lived to see the results of thir labours, but as the Psalmist says, "They shall doubtless come again with rejoicing bringing their sheaves with them!

Archie Ogburn Heads 1958 Mental Health Campaign

Archie Ogburn of Thorsby has been appointed Chairman of the 1958 Mental Health Campaign in Chilton County. His appointment was announced this week by Paul Johnston. Birmingham attorney, and President of the Alabama Association for Mental Health.

After accepting the appointment, Ogburn stated that he felt the citizens of Chilton County would want to have a part in the fight against mental illness, America's No. 1 public health problem. He also stated that he felt support should be given to the movement to secure mental hygiene clinics in each strategic sections of the state

Ogburn also stated that in a short time he would call an organizational meeting of leading citizens to work out plans for the Fund Drive.

"We have found that these Fund Drives succeed best in communities where a large proportion of the population is given a chance to contribute," Johnston continue. "Alabama people have demonstrated their concern for the mentally ill in the past, and they respond when they are given a chance to help.'

With the funds contributed during the annual drive, the Alabama Association for Mental Health fights mental illness on many fronts

These include promoting legislation for better support of state institutions, providing services for mental patients and for recovering patients and for recovering patients developing education programs, helping to train mental health workers and supporting national research on mental illness.

"Mental illness is a potential threat to every Alabama family," said Johnston. "Today it strikes one person in ten. It strikes rich as well as poor, the educated as well as the uneducated. 'That's why this campaign is everybody's job."

ALA. POWER SETTLED IN NEW QUARTERS

If you haven't you should have! Doesn't make sense? Well, it will, when you take your first look at the new offices and facilities of the Clanton branch of Alabama Power Company. It's beautiful!

The entire building is excitingly paneled and the lighting is second to none. The display floor is exceptional in that they have ample room for their wares and you still have plenty of elbow room.

Local Superintendent of Ala. Power is Mr. Gordon L. Robertson who has been with the Company since August 1, 1923 and who, along with his family, has been in Clanton since September 1, 1951. Mr. Gordon took the helm of the local offices upon the retirement of the late Mr. T. L. Williams.

The entire force at the new offices seem to want to stress the fact that they keep the "weather" comfortable year 'round with an 'electric' heat pump. The operation was demonstrated to us, and aside from the fact that the temperature and atmosphere was very comfortable, the process itself is very interesting and we might add, somewhat appealing to our own wants and wishes.

Offices include space for the Superintendent's office, and R. L. Dick Scott also has his private office. He is the Recreational Director of the company-owned lands adjacent to lakes on the Coosa and Tallapoosa Rivers and supervises leasing of lots along the rivers to anyone interested.

There is, what we'd call a drifting room and file room, combined where engineering and book work is done. Three rest rooms are provided and also a utility room in the rear of the building for the men in transient.

All in all it's a modern, convenient and completely efficient building for your power company employees to better serve you, the public.

SHORT SHOTS THE NEWS LOOKS AT LOCAL BUSINESS

The Negative & the Positive

Joe Smith of Service Station fame says Jack Frost is just around the corner up there and Auntie Freeze is about the only thing that will keep Betsy percolating while Old Man Winter is around. Better take heed, motorists!

Ask Paul Bennett down Watson way what's he going to "sell" his week and he'll tell you "anything" or "all of it". One things for sure. If he did sell "all of it" and kept the change he wouldn't have to work the rest of the year. They have a noble stock of goods this season.

As a matter of record, every business in Clanton has a "noble" tock this year. We get that straight from the horses' mouth too! Every store we go into is stocked to the gills and now all we can think of they need is to let folks know they've got it so they won't do their year's Christmas shopping in Selma, Montgomery or Birmingham. It's here folks!

"Shack" and "Rip" over Clanton Motors way are out to sell Fords a'gain! So are Richard, Red. Dudley, Clement and Joe. The only thing wrong . . . . not enough merchandise. Like hot cakes, they're going.

Somebody said one of the Chevrolet's down in Hayes showroom looked just like a '58 model How about that 'Skeeter'? That convertible we saw down there sure didn't look like a '58.

Russ Shelton, Rusty and Dent are all groaning because they haven't got enough models in yet to be versatile in their sales approach. That's O.K. fellas, it's just the same old dilemma of the car salesmen. Too many customers, not enough to sell. They'll be coming in. . . probably already are in when you read this.

Jeff Miller showed us a gun the other day (from his huge array of toys at Miller's 5 and 10) that you didn't have to draw. . . all you have to do is say "sic 'em!" Aughta sell a heap of those Jeff.

Tom Shirley of Goodyear just got back from a two week and some odd visit to (Ohio was it). Anyhow, we asked him did he enjoy the trip and he said "sure did! Had a fine time!" We don't know whether he was supposed to have a fine time or not, but from the way he answered we'd say he mixed a little pleasure with business. What's the matter with that, anyhow? Just all in knowing how!

VERBENA TIES BULLDOGS N 20 TO 20 THRILLER

A fighting Verbena Red Devil squad played inspired football Friday night, Oct. 10th, to tie undefeated Montevallo. It was a thrilling game all the way and spectators were kept on their feet most of the night. The smaller Red Devil team came from behind in the last quarter to tie, and narrowly miss winning over favored Montevallo.

Willard Rice scored first for Verbena when he plunged over from the 2 yard line on the 4th down in the first quarter. Earl Griffin passed to Denson Dennis for the extra point. Montevallo scored next on a long pass from Smitherman to Thrasher with time running out in the 1st half. The try for extra point was no good. On the following kick-off, Earl Griffin made a beautiful 60 yard run, and nearly went all the way as the half ended.

Verbena scored again in the 3rd period with Milton Davis diving over from the 2 yard line, and then doing the same thing for the extra point. This score was set up by Willard Rice's 20 yard return of an intercepted pass. The Red Devil forward wall showed its fighting spirit by putting up a goal line stand and stopping Montevallo on the 1 yard line in the 3rd quarter.

Montevallo then scored two touchdowns in the 4th quarter. One on a long pass from Smitherman to Jarvis and the other on a 2 yard run by Smitherman, who also scored both extra points.

Verbena then trailed 20-14, but took the kick-off and didn't give up the ball until it had crossed the goal line. The big plays in this final drive were Rice's 30 yard run around end behind good blocking and a 15 yard pass from Griffin to Rice. Milton Davis scored the final touchdown from the 10 yard line as he made a determined run through a host of Montevallo tacklers. Verbena scored what appeared to be the winning point as Griffin passed to Rice. Verbena was penalized for backfield-in-motion and failed to score on the next try for point. The game ended in a 20-20 deadlock.

UNEMPLOYMENT PAYMENT RISES

Unemployment Insurance payments of Alabama's jobless workers during September totalled $3,931,086, Arthur D. Kelly, Director of the Department of Industrial Relations, announced today. This total included $1,600,059 paid under the temporary unemployment compensation program which extends duration for workers who have exhausted benefits under the regular program.

The $2,331,027 paid under the regular State unemployment compensation program marked the sixth successive month of decrease. During September a year ago, payments from the State's Trust Fund amounted to $1,147,752.

Exhaustion of benefit rights by claimants continued to be a dominant factor in this payment downtrent. Final payments were made to 4,489 persons during September. Initial claims, a rough index of new unemployment, filed during September totalled 17,156, nearly 3,000 more than were taken during August. A sizeable part of this increase was accounted for by partial claims filed by persons working less than full time. Claims for continued unemployment dropped to 127,096, about 13,000 below the August figure.

Unemployed veterans and federal workers were paid $184,349 during September as compared with $224,168 during August. Both of these programs are financed entirely from federal funds.

At the end of September, 55,177 persons were actively seeking work through local offices of the Alabama State Employment Service. During the month, these offices made 9,359 nonfarm job placements and 9,359 farm placements.

YOUR Health

ADMINISTERING DRUGS

How do you take your medicine—ingestion, injection, Inhalation, infusion, insufflation, or in a glass of water? There are various manners in which drugs are administered. The oral route by mouth is the oldest, safest, most convenient and most economical way of taking drugs.

Drugs taken by mouth are usually absorbed in the intestines. In some circustances, the oral manner of administration is not feasible. Certain drugs taken by mouth are destroyed by the action of the digestive juices before they can be absorbed. Sometimes there are substances in the gastrointestinal tract which delay absorption of the drug taken orally. Some drugs are so irritating that when taken by mouth they cause vomiting.

Injections of drugs may be subcutaneous or just beneath the skin, and such drugs are usually in liquid form. Intramuscular injections put the drugs deep into the muscle tissue. The intravenous injection puts the liquid drug directly into the blood through a vein.

There are instances in which a remedy in the form of a solid pill is implanted under the skin to be slowly absorbed over a period of weeks or months. Drugs are sometimes injected into the arachnoid space of the spinal cord. Gaseous and vaporous drugs are inhaled. Insufflation is the act of blowing a powder, vapor, gas, or air into a cavity, such as the lungs. And there are also drugs to be rubbed on the chest, or other parts of the body, which penetrate into the tissue just under the skin.

THE FAMILY BANK FOR 57 YEARS

For nearly three generations we have welcomed the accounts of women and children here — as well as those of their men-folks. A good many of our depositors had their first dollar invested with us in the form of a savings account opened when they were one or two years old. Since 1901 we have been part of the work and plans of (Chilton County) family life—for many men we have entered that crucial first dollar in the pass book, sold them traveler's checks for a honeymoon trip, helped finance their businesses and their homes. WHAT'S DOING IN LOCAL SOIL CONSERVATION

Carlos Smith of Lawley has asked for help in preparing a new Soil and Water Conservation Plan with the North Central District. Carlos plans are for 15 brood cows and 4 brood cows. For his cows' grazing he will have Pensacola Bahia grass and Coastal Bermuda overseeded with reseeding Crimson Clover. For hogs he will use Kudzu for summer grazing and reseeding Crimson for winter.

The woodland on Smith's place will be treated like a crop. Where the pines are thick enough he will deaden the hardwood. Where there isn't enough pine, the landowner will thicken stand by underplanting pines.

Thirty-two hundred feet of parallel terraces were staked off for Herbert Dennis and seven thousand feet of parallel terraces were staked off on Earnst Porter's farm at Thorsby.

A visit with Horace Mims of Temple community, found him busy hauling hay in from his five acres of Coastal Bermuda and Bahia grass. In 1956 Horace asked the Soil Conservation Service for help in terracing 15 acres which he was using for growing corn. To have parallel terraces a waterway system had to be established. Two waterways were shaped and seeded to Bahia grass. From the 3/4 acre of waterways and field borders Horace has cut at least a ton of good hay this year. Horace stated during the visit "I wouldn't plow up my waterways today for $200.00 if I knew I could get them back in 30 days, as good as they are now" "I only cut the gass on my waterways once this year, but lost a good cutting because the grass had bedded down." Horace also stated, "Next year I will cut it when needed." Not only is Horace carrying out a good program with his row crop land, but has an excellent program with beef cattle, hogs and laying hens.

C. H Guy, who owns the old Guy home place at Midway, was assisted by the Soil Conservation Service in staking out a pond. Mr. Guy's Soil and Water Conservation Farm Plan is going to be speeded up by signing a Conservation Reserve Contract

MAPLESVILLE VS PERRY COUNTY

On Friday night, Sept. 12, I went to Marion, Ala., to see a good football game. At 7:30 p.m., our Captain Bobby McAfee and Co-Captains met in the middle of the field to see who won the toss of the coin. We won and choose to receive. On the kickoff, John McAfee ran the ball back about 35 yards before 4 tacklers brought him down. We ran a couple of plays into Perry's line and picked up a few yards. Then on the third play Maplesville ran it's 28 reverse play all the way for a touchdown. Bobby Edwards ran 40 yards on this play for the touchdown and put the Red Devils ahead. He had help on the play with good field blocking by Henry Ed Perry and one other player. It rocked on until the first quarter was over. Then about half way through the second, our quarterback, Buddy Goff, threw Howard Graham, our R-ghtend a touchdown pass for 15 yards. Buddy McAfee then kicked the extra point to put Maplesville ahead 13 to 0.

The second half was strictly a defensive game. Neither team scored in the second half and the final score was Maplesville 13 Perry County 0.

Perry County couldn't score because of the great defense of Bobby Seales and Henry Ed Perry. A great ball game was played.

RED DEVILS vs TIGERS

On Friday night, September 19th. the Red Devils went to Clanton to challenge the Tigers in a football game. It was raining and very sloppy. Bobby McAfee was our captain, Bobby Seales and Tim co-captains. They met in the center of the field to see who had to kick. Clanton had to kick to us. Big John McAfee ran it back up to the 43 yard line. They held us there for 4 downs then they got the ball, and the very fist play they almost ran a touchdown. but Tim Moore caught him on the ten yard line. We held them on the next two plays, then on the next play Clanton scored. At the half Clanton was ahead 10 to 0.

During the halftime, their band took over the field and played several beautiful numbers. The Majorettes set their batons on fire and the lights were dimmed, while they did a fire dance. It was a lovely sight enjoyed by all.

The last half of the game went well, but Clanton defeated us with a score of 20-0. Quarterback Buddy Goff did not get to play in the Clanton game, due to the fact he broke his collar bone on Wednesday night in practice before the game. He acted as spotter for our team. He was replaced by William Earl Anderson. This was made a touchdown and we won with a score of 04-0.—Ralph Hayes, Reporter.

He ran two of these which covered 74 yards and caught a pass for 20 yards for the third one. Tim Moore ran one touchdown for 20 yards. Butch Higginbotham played some in this game for the first time since he broke his leg in the last season when Maplesville played Plantersville.

During the game several of the boys got all shook up, but none were seriously hurt. The coaches for each team happened to be brothers. Maplesville won 25-7.

The starting lineup was: Bobby McAfee, Gary Bearden, Bobby Edwards, Briggs Gibson, Tim Moore, Bobby Seales, William Anderson, Joseph Bearden, Howard Graham, John McAfee and Henry Ed Perry.

At the half the Seventh grade drew for the Ham they had been selling chances on. Butch Higginbotham was the lucky fellow.

MAPLESVILLE HIGH; TRAINING SCHOOL ALREADY ENDANGERED

In recent weeks your Board of Education and County Superintendent have gone into all the school communities and have presented to you, the voters, of Chilton County the facts about the conditions of your county school system. You have seen the pictures and many of you have visited the schools and know WHY your Board of Education is presenting the "one-cent sales tax proposal" to you.

As many of you know, the State Department of Education has certain requirements for accredtment of public high schools in the State of Alabama. These requirements set certain standards for location and need of schools, library facilities, adequate science departments, number of pupils per teacher, amount of classroom space per child, teacher certification and many other requirements. We have discussed with you the fact that none of the schools in Chilton County meet many of these standard requirements. Last year many of the schools in the state were placed on probation and some have lost their state accreditment because they did not meet these standards. That, of course, creates some very challenging problems for those boys and girls who desire valid high school diplomas, diplomas that will enable them to enroll in certain colleges, business schoos and to apply for jobs with specific educational reequirements.

On Tuesday, October 28, 1958, your Superintendent of Education was informed that the State Department of Education would place Maplesville High School on probation unless steps are taken immediately to correct the deficiencies in the above standard requirements. Last week a similar warning was drawn by your Board of Education on the Chilton County Training School. Other probationary warnings may be forthcoming when all annual accreditment reports are finally checked. This final check should be completed in about ten days or two weeks.

As your Superintendent, I feel that I have a responsibility to tell you the truth about the schools of Chilton County. This is what is happening to your schools. I do not feel that you want this type of school system in Chilton County. However, your County Board of Education and I have only the tools you give us with which to work in correcting the deficiencies, solving your school problems, and building the kind and type of school system you want for our Chilton County boys and girls.

The choice is yours. The verdict is in your hands. Your vote on the one-cent sales tax which is earmarked or set aside by law for building, equipping, and maintaining all our schools will determine the future of the boys and girls in Chilton County.

-s-W. A. LeCroy, Supt., of Education.

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

Next Tuesday, November 4th, is a very important day to the Citizens of our Country. On that day quite a number of people will be elected to serve us in various capacities for a definite length of time. These people will be put into office by you the voters. Now this gives us a glorious opportunity, as well as a great responsibility. This goes with being a citizen of a Country under a Democratic form of Government.

Since this is true, don't you think we should give the matter very serious consideration? We have the right to take part in a free election while lots of people in other Countries are denied this privilege; but we can use this right only by going out to the polls and Voting.

Oh, Yes, What I started out to say is: Please go to the Polls and Vote next Tuesday, November 4th.

Thank you, E. R. Yeargan, Chairman
Chilton County Demo. Campaign Com.

"LEGION URGES VOTE"

Next Tuesday, November 4th, elections will be held throughout our country. This is one of the privileges that makes our way of life superior to all others. Members of the American Legion have given many years of their lives to protect our Country and the right of an individual to vote.

W. R. Cobb, Commander of Chilton County American Legion Post No. 6, stated in an appeal to all members of the Legion, " It is the responsibility and duty of all of us, irrespective of party, to vote in the forthcoming elections. Exercise that right! Make your voice in our government heard through your vote in these elections".

Every Veteran who is eligible for membership in this fine patriotic, Veterans Service Organization should join immediately; to those of us who are not eligible, we should comply with this forsighted appeal.

TO THE CITIZENS AND VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

I greatly thank you from the depth of my heart for the courtesy and consideration you have shown me during this campaign.

If you do elect me your Probate Judge I will respond with the same treatment.

Many, many thanks.

J. C. White Makes Final Appeal To Voters

Dear Friends:

I would like to make my final appeal to you the voters of Chilton County. You honored me on June 3rd by nominating me to represent you on the Democrat Ticket in the November 4th General Election as your choice for Probate Judge of Chilton County. This was to me the highest honor our county offers.

Now, the time has come for you to make the final decision for not only me, but all candidates nominated in the May 6th and June 3rd Elections. My sindere hope is that each of you will take time off to go to the polls on next Tuesday and exercise the greatest privilege that we possess, that of the right to vote one's own convictions.

We certainly believe in the majority rule, now let us all join hands for the good of Chilton County and may each of us do our part in making Chilton County the most progressive and most prosperous County in Alabama.

May I again thank each of you for the many kind expressions of support and encouragement that so many hundreds of you have given me before and since the primary elections and may I urge a continuation of this support on my behalf as well as for all the other nominees selected by you the voters of Chilton County.

Your vote, your influence and your prayers will be greatly appreciated.

BLOOD CLOT DISSOLVING AGENT USED IN 52 PATIENTS

A new agent that appears promising in the treatment of blood clots that move from one spot to another was described in a preliminary report in a recent issue of the 'Journal" of the American Medical Association.

The agent is fibrinolysin (plasmin-, a derivative of human blood. Given intravenously, it attacks and dissolves fibrin, the essential substance of a clot, without disturbing normal coagulation of blood.

Fibrinolysin was given to 52 patients suffering from various types of thromboembolic disease in which a vessel is blocked by a clot that has broken loose from its site of fromation. Fibrinolysin acts rapidly and causes few serious adverse effects. Almost half of the patients developed fever after receiving fibrinolysin, and two showed delayed skin eruptions. Because of the danger of fever reaction, it cannot now be given safely to persons with coronary thrombosis.

In 48 patients with deep venous thrombophlebitis of the legs (in which clots occur in the deep veins) the results were "consistently encouraging." The patients' legs showed a loss of heat, tenderness, and size within 24 hours and there was no recurrence of clotting.

"Some beneficial effect" was noted in four of eight patients with pulmonary embolism (in which clots have moved into the lung area from other places-. There was rapid relief of chest discomfort and an interruption in the course of "recurrent embolization" which had not responded to treatment with drugs that prevent coagulation.

Fourteen patients with blocking of the cerebral arteries received the agent. Seven showed some degree of improvement (return of speech and movement), although it was maintained in only four.

from a Decorator's Notebook by Phyllis Drue

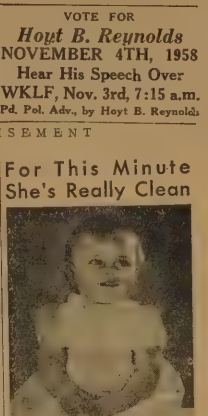
Part of the preparation for the holiday season is inspecting your interior decor with a critical eye. If the family budget doesn't permit any major changes, consider the windows. Certainly, an inexpensive and dramatic way to change the entire mood of a room is simply by changing the window treatment.

Venetian blinds teamed with curtains, draperies or just a valance can provide the answer. The wide range of new colors, textures and patterns in Venetians as well as in fabrics makes a new window decoration easy and fun to undertake.

Color should be considered first. If the room is decorated in shades of one color, use an accent color on the windows. Venetians are being made in tweeds and linen weaves which come in soft muted shades of yellow, green, pink and gray with plastic tapes to match. For draperies, pick a solid fabric in a matching or contrasting color.

In a room that doesn't get much sunlight, window treatment should be light and airy. Venetians in a delicate pattern of gold leaves on white will brighten up your room. Filmy white curtains in a miracle fiber will finish the window. If you prefer draperies, buy white ready-mades and add a ball fringe in a complementary color. The total effect will look expensive and custom made.

For This Minute She's Really Clean



Baby care experts recommend that all the baby's wearables and bedding be laundered apart from the family wash, and that diapers always be an entirely separate load by themselves. But complete cleanliness is the rule for both types of baby wash. To thoroughly clean baby clothes, there are two infallible rules: launder with a good detergent plus a chlorine-type bleach and hot water, and rinse thoroughly —three rinses.

These rules apply whether it's hand-laundry or machine. With the new BEADS-O'-BLEACH now on the market, tiny quick-dissolving beads supplement the work of the detergent in producing a truly clean washload. The guarantee of complete safety in using BEADS-O'-BLEACH eliminates every worry from modern laundering and yet assures a clean fresh smelling baby wardrobe.

Where Do We Go From '58 Cotton Production

Many Chilton County farmers are presently trying to answer the question above relative to their personal farming operations. A few facts are no secret. First, there will be no "Soil Bank" for cotton acreage in 1959. Then, we will either plant allotments or will suffer further losses in planted acreage history and alloted acreage. And, for certain, we will have increasingly competitive pressure for markets from the western section of the cotton industry.

Let's assume that we elect to grow cotton as a cash crop in 1959. Then it is important to study competition and formulate plans to, as nearly as possible, compete with those that are "squeezing" us for cotton market dollars. Western competition sizes up as follows:

1. Nearly 25 percent of the weather-plagued 1957 cotton crop was produced on irrigated land in California, Arizonia, New Mexico and Nevada by less than 2 percent of the country's cotton farms on only about 8 percent of the national planted acreage.

2. The average western yield in 1957 (970 pounds per acre) was over 3 times the average for other growers. The Alabama average was 346 pounds per acre.

3. Over 1/4 of the farm cotton income went to western producers in 1957. The western cotton crop in 1957 was more than double that of 1947. They accounted for but 10 per cent of the crop 10 years ago.

4. The average western cotton farm is about 5 times the size of the average cotton farm elsewhere in the country. Nearly 25 percent of the western farms grow over 100 acres of cotton compared with the national average of only 4 per cent of farms with this much cotton acreage. Western farms producing under 25 bales of cotton total only 30 percent compared to 70 percent elsewhere. Western cotton farms are highly mechanized with investment in machinery and equipment 10 times the national average.

5. Investment in fertilizers is higher in the West than any other region. And though the dry climate prevents the boll weevil scourage, western farmers lead in the us of insecticides and chemical weed control.

6. With strict quality controls for upland cotton and with 2/3 of the American cotton crop grown in the west, farm prices for cotton in the western states are well above the national average.

7. For us to compete on anything like an even basis with the West, we must increase efficiency in cotton production. Better fertilization and land preparation, better stands, insect control and a good job of harvesting, gin preparation and marketing for full value.

It is not too early to begin planning 1959 cotton projects. High yields produced economically is a must if profits are to be realized in face of competition mentioned above.

A Salute to TALLAPOOSA COUNTY

Center of Alabama's Important TEXTILE INDUSTRY

Renowned as the site of the famous Battle of Horseshoe Bend (now a state park), where Gen. Andrew Jackson "broke the back" of the great Creek Indian Nation, Tallapoosa is also the textile center of the state.

Here the hum of spindles and looms means payrolls for thousands of Alabamians, while others earn livelihoods from agriculture and industry.

Waters of the Tallapoosa River, impounded by impressive Martin Dam, fan out into a lake of some 740 shore line miles, affording excellent fishing and recreational facilities.

Named for this historic river, Tallapoosa was designated a county in 1832, with Dadeville as its seat of government. Alexander City has long been headquarters for the textile industry.

In Alabama — as throughout America — the choice of a name has always been the inalienable right of its residents, just like the right to enjoy the beverage of their choice . . . whether it be coffee, tea, milk or the light, bright beverages of moderation — beer and ale.

In this friendly, freedom-loving land of ours
Beer belongs... Enjoy it

Just Don't Be A Zero

Political talk tends to be in terms of millions these days. For instance, fewer than a dozen massive unions reported to the government that their 1946 political expenditure for candidates was more than $1.7 million. Other unions also kicked in.

What do the unions hope to buy with such huge sums? Labor union bosses have stated clearly that they want more Federal spending programs, and more Federal controls. That will mean less money in your pocket after taxes, more inflation, and less money for your own community and state governments.

It's pretty hard to buck labor's millions. But it can be done. There are more Americans opposed to the kind of government labor bosses want than there are in favor of it. Many of those opposed are rank and file union members.

The solution lies in action by the millions of individuals who oppose the labor boss ideal—a government which sounds like a blueprint for a well-run, humane, costly penitentiary.

Election day is the time for you as an individual, to go to the polls and stop the labor bosses in their tracks.

PROGRESSIVE GRANDPAPPY--

We at Chilton County News are not satisfied with the way "Grandpappy did things". The reason for this is simple. We don't believe 'grandpappy' was satisfied with the way 'his' grandpappy did things; simply because we have progressed down through the years and without this progressive outlook on the part of our forefathers, we'd still be chasing Indians.

It's a sure thing that we aren't still chasing Indians and we therefore feel that Americans, Alabamians and Chilton Countians, as a whole are progressive and want new ideas and better information so as to be equipped for today's trying situations and times.

That's why we strive, day in and day out, to give you better newspapering combined with new ideas, which to our way of thinking add to our better way of life.

We do not stick to the same old format because we believe that it is an insult on the intelligence of our readers to give them the same thing--every week--without adding to or changing from the old repitious palabar.

We believe that our readers appreciate effort in their behalf. That's our whole existence at the News. . . to better understand and better serve the people of Chilton County and surrounding area.

We had one little old lady one time tell us "you can cancel my subscription". When we asked her why, she said, "I can't read very well and you started changing the headings on my news each week and I can't find it anymore." She has a point, and we are sorry but the fact remains that the news IS there and we think in a better, easier to read form.

We don't want to go against the wants and wishes of our supporters and readers; however, we refuse to sacrifice our principles of progress for the comfort of repitition and staleness. . .

We want Chilton County to grow and we are doing everything in our power to see it done. We'd like very much to give the little old lady her own style of newspapering, but since this is impossible, we'd like to recommend that she get someone to read 'her' news to her and thereby alleviate her situation and at the same time maintain our friendship. . . which we regard very highly.

MORAL OBSERVATIONS

But we have this treasure in earthen vessels--2Cor. 4:7.

How often have we all known of something of great value, precious and cherished, being spilled, broken or damaged, because of the vessel or container being broken or given away!

How true this is of life! We, our mortal selves, are the earthen vessels that contain very precious treasurees. For example, an infant comes into the world. He is free of black marks on his character. He never told a lie, stole anything, or violated any of the principles of character. He is the symbol of innocence! He has a clean slate! He is endowed with the precious virtues of life! How valuable they are! Nothing on earth could adequately pay for one of them! How wonderful it would be if he could say at twenty, thirty, or fifty years of age, the earthen vessel has never been broken away, and I still have what God endowed me with! I have no black marks on my character, and all the virtues of my life are inviolate!

How many in the world today would give two worlds like this if they could only have the innocence and the purity of character that God endowed them with! But it was put into earthen vessels, and the vessels were broken on the rocks of sin and temptation, and the precious treasure was spilled to the ground!

Some are endowed with talents or gifts that are precious treasures. How often do we see this treasure lost or wasted because the vessel is weak! Many are the treasures of life, but above everything else is the precious treasure of our soul! "For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" How alarmingly frightening it is when we think that our soul, the most precious treasure that we are capable of possessing in contained in the flimsey, breakable, earthen vessel of our mortal selves that is so prone to sin and ungodliness!

May God help us to pray for strength and guidance to preserve and keep the precious treasures of life that he has so richly endowed us with, Amen.

TO THE CITIZENS AND VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

I favor for several reasons Hoyt Brown Reynolds for your Probate Judge in your November 4th, General election.

Hoyt Reynolds has always been a good man, conservative, Free Hearted, knows values, Financial and etc. I honestly believe he will make you the people of Chilton County a good, honst, Probate Judge. I do not know anything that can be said against him. He has always been loyal to his family and also to Chilton County as a whole. I have talked with Hoyt Reynolds on several occasions about running for Probate Judge, and I am telling you the Voters Now I believe he will lead you here in Chilton County in any Financial help in his Position and Capacity to bring industry to Clanton and Chilton County.

I am, John Wilmer Stanfield. I am the son of John Wesley Stanfield and nephew of Sam Stanfield, who both were in the Lumber business here in Clanton and elsewhere. My father lived in Clanton about fifty years and I lived in Clanton twenty years. I have been a life lone Democrat until recently.

NOW, In my opinion it looks like under the circumstances the Northern element of the Democratic party and the Northern element of the Republican party are in a very tight place politically in the Southern States.

I have thought about the situation seriously and I have decided to VOTE for The Man or Woman of my choice regardless of affiliation or Party I want to be INDEPENDENT, not Hog Tied, The Northern Democrats and the Northern Republicans are trying to FORCE SOCIAL EQUALITY ON THE SOUTHERN STATES. You can lead a horse to the trough, but you CANNOT MAKE HIM DRINK.

I believe in States Rights and not so much Centralization of Power in Washington, D. C. If you go on with the Northern Element of the Democratic and Republican Parties it might be disastrous for us. VOTE for the MAN or WOMAN of your choice inside your State and County.

PLEASE do not VOTE under the Rooster and do not VOTE under the ELEPHANT or the Whole INDEPENDENT line. Under this short cut way you might VOTE for some Man or Woman you do not want to vote for.

Vote each Candidate separately and when you get down to the Probate Judge line Skip over and Vote for HOYT BROWN REYNOLDS and show the Northern element in Washington that we can Vote Democratic, Republican and INDEPENDENT too. Put your COUNTRY your Fireside and Your Children ahead of any Party.

I, again, want this to be known Here and Now, that I am an Independent, will split my Ballot and Vote for the MAN or WOMAN of my choice.—I Am, Sincerely, John Wilmer Stanfield.

THE "AMEN" CORNER

"I personally don't believe any nation should have ANY national debt. Seems to me, on the other hand, that a great nation like the United States should, in all its years of existence, have made a little money instead of having got about $300-million in debt. A private corporation in business that long and that much in the red would figure it had done a pretty poor job. Even my little granddaughter, Muffie, has $9.16 in her piggie bank. Looks as if the United States could have piled up at least $15 or $20 on the asset side in all these years." — Don Herold.

Clanton Police Praised By Tire Troubled Travelers

October 24, 1958

Mr. Hollis Jackson
Mayor, City of Clanton
Dear Hollis:

While having trouble on a Birmingham last Wednesday evening, one of my Birmingham friends walked over to our table to tell my wife and I about an experience he had in Clanton. It seems that He and his friend were going to the river to do some fishing, when a tire on their trailer blew out, about a mile north of Clanton. While they were on the side of the road pondering what they would do about getting a tire in Clanton that was an odd size for the trailer, our Chief of Police and one of his officers stopped to see what their trouble was. After finding out, they immediately began gan calling one place after another until they located the necessary size tire, and helped them get on their way.

These people have been made to feel kindly towards our City, because of his courtesy shown them by the Chief and his officer, and deeply appreciate their kindnes.

They were very anxious that I tell you about this and to express their appreciation.

Most Sincerely
I. S. (Doc) Levine

Corn Varieties Demonstration Results Prove Interesting

Top yields recorded were 114.8 bushels per acre with twenty-seven (27) different plots producing one hundred (100) bushels per acre.

In the field meeting Monday, October 13th, farmers and seedsmen observed 102 plots of harvested corn consisting of most recommended varieties for Central Alabama.

Top yields recorded were 114.8 bushels per acre produced by two different hybrids. Twenty-seven different yield checks "weighed-out" yields of over 100 bushels per acre, while 52 others recorded yields of 90 to 100 bushels per acre and 57 plots produced yields in the 80 to 90 bushels per acre bracket. Only 26 of the 162 plots fell below 80 bushels per acre. Thirteen of the 26 fell in the 70 to 80 bushel class, 11 corns produced in the 60 to 70 bushel bracket, and only two corns produced recorded yields of 50 bushels per acre or less.

Seed corns observed in the variety observation plots were produced by several major hybrid corn organizations-Funks "G" hybrid Seed Corn Company, Pfister Associated Seed Company, Coker Pedigreed Seed Company, McCurdy Seed Company and Greenwood's Hybrid Seed Corn Company were principal commercial firms represented. All companies had corns that proved adapted from major characteristics and produced creditable yields.

The rather detailed study of corn varieties did bring attention to some of the weak characteristics of some strains of seed corn and gives some insight to corns for future use in Chilton County.

Insect Control Major Problems of Cattlemen

Insect control is rapidly becoming one of the major problems facing cattlemen who try to produce high-quality animals. Many insects are injurious to cattle, but one of the worst is the cattle grub.

Cattle grubs damage the carcass by tunneling through some of the areas from which the best cuts of meat are taken. They also cause a reduction in milk flow of dairy cattle. And the hides of infested animals are rendered almost worthless. In many areas, this pest costs Alabama farmers thousands of dollars, yet no effort is made to control it.

The life cycle of the cattle grub is an interesting one. Unlike most insects, it produces only one generation a year. However, from seven to ten months are required for its completion. The adult insect is a large hairy fly resembling a bumble bee, although not nearly so large. One might think the eggs are laid on the backs of the animals, where the grubs appear later. Actually, the cattle grub lays its eggs on the lower part of the animal's legs, preferably on the "heels", and is consequently called the "heel fly". Sneaky in her egg-laying habits, the female lights on the ground near cattle that are resting, cautiously sneaks up to an animal, and lays the eggs firmly on the hairs of the heel or leg. A dozen or more eggs may be placed on one hair.

The eggs hatch a few days after they are laid, and the young maggots work their way down to the base of the hair and begin penetrating the skin. Penetration requires several hours and is very irritating to the animal. From the point of entrance the maggots work their way up through the connective tissue to the body cavity. They remain there for several months but are constantly on the move, searching for food.

By November the grubs start migrating toward the surface of the back. In this region they cut small round holes, through which they receive a supply of air. Shortly after the maggots reach the back, their presence can be readily detected by the tumors or lumps they cause. If left undisturbed, the grubs remain just under the skin for two months before they squeeze out of the back through the air holes and drop to the ground to pupate. This occurs in late February and March in Alabama. Adults emerge some five weeks later.

Until recently, the control of cattle grubs was beyond reach of many farmers. However, with the newly available systemic poisons, contarl procedures are rather simple. Two new chemicals that we now recommend for grub control are co-ral and trolene. Both are a little more expensive than other materials but are more effective.

Co-ral is available as a 25 per cent wettable powder. Mix 16 gallons of it with 100 gallons of water and spray it on cattle until they are thoroughly wet. About one quart per animal will usually be required.

Trolene is available in the form of boluses (pills). Each bolus contains 37.5 grams of trolene. It is administered orally, at the rate of 37.5 grams of 300 pounds of body weight. It is probably advisable to have a veterinarian do the job. To be effective, co-ral and trolene must be applied during the months of August, September, and October. Neither medication is recommended for lactating dairy animals or for calves under six months of age.

Rotenone has been used for many years for the control of the grubs it is effective either as a two percent dust, applied over the back and rubbed into the hair, or as a spary. The spray is made by mixing 7.5 pounds of five percent rotenone in 100 gallons of water. For best results it must be applied with 200 to 400 pounds of pressure However, this material is effective only after the grubs have cut through the hid. If rotenone is used, cattle should be sprayed in December, January, and again in February.

FROM RAGS TO RICHES

A Local Story With Possibilities

Thomas J. Tate, Clanton, received the idea of a revolutionary fire detection system some 12 years ago and tried to give it away.

To this day, Mr. Tate says he is extremely happy that nobody would accept it because it has distinct possibilities of making him considerably better off financially than he has ever been before.

In other words, people are finally realizing the possibilities of his invention.

It is an inspired invention, in the broadest sense. He got the idea after the Winecoff Hotel fire in Atlanta in 1946 killed 119 persons.

At one time Mr. Tate turned down a certified check for $2 million for fear taxes would take it all. He now stands to make much more than that--even after taxes.

Truly rags to riches--Mr. Tate was born on a farm in Clay County and grew up barefoot and knowing the trying times of being something besides wealthy. He's not wealthy yet, but at least he's on the right road.

DON'T know whether you h read about the egg grading chine at Jones Seed & Feed any or not but that machine lay eggs out at the proper wei and grade faster than a rod can run at feeding time. In grade A large bin, if an doesn't weight enough t ave 24 ounces to the dozen th chine carries it on to the next bin. Then if it is too light for the medium bin it goes on to the small. After that there is a bin for little bitsy eggs. We don't know what they do with those but it's amazing to see the ladies down here work those eggs throu the assembly line. Only the ones sembling anything -- everybody knows eggs come already shelled until you crack it against the edge of the skillet. It will be very interesting though and we want to thank S. A. Jones for asking us through and explaining it all to us.

SO. BELL HAS NEW FACILITIES IN CHILTON

Southern Bell Telephone Company completed construction of new telephone facilities last week that will enable the utility to provide additional service in the eastern section of the Clanton exchange area.

I. M. Commander, Clanton manager of the firm, said the new lines will serve an estimated 44 initial subscribers and furnish 11 applicants with higher grades of service. The area receiving service is along and adjacent to the Higgins Ferry Road and in the vicinity of Mitchell Lake. The project cost an estimated $20,176.

DEDICATED TO LATE MR. WALKER

ON OCTOBER 24th, 1959 the Maplesville High School had a Homecoming, and what a Homecoming! The team of 1934 was present along with many local celebrities.

The group was entertained at a dinner in their honor with the present principal, Mr. J. E. Daniels presiding.

The entire affair was dedicated to Mr. Wheeler Walker, chairman of the occasion, who passed away October 19, and who had worked long, hard and diligently to bring up the events of the evening.

The overall program was a huge success, even to the satisfaction of the score which was a 20-20 tie, and everyone was happy.

JONES OPENS EGG GRADING SERVICE HERE

S. A. Jones of the Jones Seed & Feed Company has inaugurated a long needed service to the egg producers of Chilton County. Instead of peddling their products, finding a buyer wherever possible, the Jones Seed & Feed Company is equipped to buy, grade, and ship the eggs to the best markets. Top New York market prices less 1 cent per dozen are paid the producers for the eggs.

Jones Seed & Feed Company also has a cooling room for the fresh eggs that holds 500 cases. At 30 dozen per case, that's 15 thousand eggs. At present Mr. Jones is working only at about half capacity.

There are 15 to 18 producers using the egg grading machine facilities at present and Jones Seed & Feed Company is shipping 225 cases each week. A few of the eggs are sold local but the bulk go to the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company at Birmingham. Brand name for the eggs which are packed in regular brightly printed cartons is "CHILCO FARM FRESH EGGS".

Largest producer in the county is the Tapscott Farms on Mineral Springs Road.

Deliveries are made to Birmingham each Tuesday and Friday.

$ Grows on Trees

The boys of the Clanton FFA Chapter were given the opportunity to make some money for themselves by collecting pine cones. There were 27 boys who participated in this project. (Photo By Scott)

The project began on October 6, 1958 and was completed on October 27, 1958. The boys collected the cones for the State Department of Forestry so that they could get seed to carry on the reforestration program.

The boys would not have known about the cones if Mr. Knox Davis the Chilton County Forest Ranger, had not invited the boys to try this project.

The boys collected 186 bushels of cones which netted them $279.60. The boys who collected the most were James Smith, Harlis Minor, Toby Mayfield, Bobby Ellison and James Henderson.

Democratic Landslide; White Beats Reynolds

The Democratic party seemed to have taken over in Tuesday's general election. The Senate, the House and the Governorships in most of the states won easily and few Republicans were allowed the margin.

In Chilton County J. C. White, the Democratic candidate won over Hoyt Brown Reynolds, running as an Independent, by 3221 to 157 votes. All other local candidates won with no opposition.

The one-cent sales tax proponents won by a vote of 2031 for and 1259 against. Only five of the 28 boxes in the county voted against the tax.

The Amendments fared better in this county than in most. Two of the three Amendments were leading. Amendment No. 1 led by 652 to 623 votes: Amendment No. 2 was defeated by 788 to 457 and Amendment No. 3 won by a vote of 657 to 585.

VERBENA ROLLS OVER COLUMBIANA 27-0

The Verbena Red Devils scored once in each period to overpower Columbiana in the rain and mud last Friday night in a Mid-State Conference game. Verbena's hard charging line led by Kennith Scarbrough, Joe Daniel, and Charles Courtney gave up only three first downs and kept Columbiana backed in its own territory most of the night. Butch Davis, Charles Patterson, Wayne Smith, Bobby Tatum, and Bernie Mullins refused to yield ground all night, as the entire forward wall of Verbena played well on defense. Wallace Scarbrough played an outstanding game at defensive halfback.

Fullback Davis was the leading ground gainer for the night with 130 yards to his credit. He scored twice on runs of 40 and 8 yards. Righthalf Willard Rice tallied on a 4 yard run and Quarterback Earl Griffin scored on a 3 yard run. End Bernie Mullins scored two extra points on passes from Earl Griffin and Denson Dennis ran the other point. The all-round play of quarterback Griffin and lefthalf Dennis was well above par for the evening.

Verbena plays its last home game of the season Friday night against Billingsley in another mid State Conference game. The Red Devil's record is now 6-1-1.

'Sweeping' Improvement In Mail Service

G. C. Harris, Regional Operations Director, Memphis Region, Post Office Department, speaking for Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield, announced sweeping improvements in the mail service to provide next-day delivery of first class letter mail throughout the 16,972 square mile Birmingham Metropolitan and Postal district area. This area embraces the City of Birmingham, 24 nearby counties in Central Alabama and the State Capitol of Montgomery.

"Barring the human error feature which cannot be completely eliminated first class letters mailed before 5:00 p.m. on a business day would be delivered to their destinations anywhere within the area" Harris declared in a press conference in the Office of Postmaster Roy Moncus at Birmingham.

Regional Operations Director Harris said, "The improvement is the result of more than two months intensive study and planning by Regional Postal officials in cooperation with the postmasters at the 275 post offices located in the 24-county area. The changes involve a revision of mail processing procedures in a number of post offices, as well as some changes in the transportation patterns for the area."

Chilton County is included among the 24 counties in Alabama within the Birmingham metropolitan postal district.

Give them a Faith to live by

Worship with them this week

Naturally you want them to have all the good things in life : : : a happy home . . . a good education . . . plenty of chances to meet other nice young people. But be sure to give them the most precious gift of all . . . Faith.

The wonderful part is that faith is yours to give : : : no matter who you are, what you do for a living, how much money you have in the bank.

Faith is the gift you give a little at a time. Every week you worship with the children at your church or synagogue. The youngsters see you . . . the biggest, smartest, most important people in their world . . . asking God for help, thanking Him for blessings. Then it's clear to them . . . here they can always find the strength they need, always find the happiness they want.

Then you've done the best a parent—any parent—can do.

PROUDLY IT WAVES --- AND WHY?

A color guard, a rolling drum, marching feet; these things bring out a patriotic feeling in each of us.

We can be proud of ourselves as Americans because we, as a generation have fought and to a great degree won our freedoms and preserved our heritage and beliefs.

But, let's not get too proud! Let us keep in mind the enormous cost we h a v e paid for our freedoms through loss of life and broken homes and heart.

The price of peace does not come cheap! We have a heritage and we can thank the men and women who have fought and died for that heritage that we are a free and great America.

We salute all Veterans and their respective organizations on November 11, Veterans' Day, 1958.

And thanks!

HAPPINESS is about the only thing a man continues to search for after he has found it.

IT IS easy to find people who say just what they think--in fact, they are more numerous than popular.

A HEATED political argument is a perfect example of an irresistible force meeting an immovable object.

THE MORE we learn about this old world of ours the more we want to stick around and see what happens next.

SOME people think they were given a conscience so they could detect the faults of their next door neighbor.

JUST ABOUT PERFECT

Not since we were a kid do we remember an October so full of sunshine and beautiful cool weather.

In Chilton County the weather was perfect. The scenery was beautiful and the combination made the world a wonderful place to live in.

TRICK OR TREAT? ?

Those words just about made us sick to the stomach the past week end and we were just wondering whether the old fashioned way of celebrating Hallowe'en wasn't best.

Is it a good lesson to the children to let them knock on every door and beg candy, fruits or cookies with the threat, "trick or treat?"

The old way wasn't too good for the kids either. We mean where they set out at dark to destroy property and play a little too rough with the practical joke. However, we do seem to remember a lull about a decade or so ago, when the trend was for Halowe'en parties where all enjoyed bobbing for apples, candied apples on a string, pumpkin jack-o-lanterns and all the other little games and goodies that went with the season.

We wish the trend would start back to those days. The influences and the effects we believe was better for youth than either of the first two; the thoughtless prank or the "trick or treat" craze.

COMPLETE FAILURE

President Eisenhower need a rebuff at the polls. He has completely failed his friends who supported him so wholehearted through his political career.

He never was the man for the job -- he isn't the man for the job to be done now--he is not the man for the job that must be done in the future.

WILL MAN INVADE HEAVEN?

Will Science minded man conquer the Universe? Or invade Heaven. Today man says "I will Ascend". I will reach and conquer other planets, I will conquer and rule the Universe. A Kremlin leader once said, "We will chase God out of Heaven and destroy Him and wipe out all Christianity from this earth". But this leader is dead now and God still rules the Universe.

Science minded man today is not the only one that has said in his heart, "I will invade and conquer space. The Bible reveals that a greater percentage, who actually holds unrealized and invisible sway over todays world. leaders once said the same thing. You may not believe this is a devil, most people today do not believe the Bible, but God said there is a devil, God who pronounced sentence on all the leading Cities, and Nations of the Ancient World. And brought it to pass, Says off Satan the Devil, thou hast said in thine heart, I will ascend above the heights of the clouds, I will be like the most high (Isaiah 14: 13-4.) Yes Satan was going to invade Gods Heaven, he was going to conquer and rule the Universe. (What happened) He was brought back to earth where God had placed him (Verse 15) God has warned us of the similarity of conditions, now with those of the days of Noah, when man started building the tower of Bable, to reach into Heaven; so the Lord scattered them abroad upon the face of all the earth and they left off. to build the City (Gen 11 ch.) This race between the U. S. and Russia to conquer space is no longer a matter of Scientific curiosity, it has become a race for survival, it would end in the armihilation of human life from off this planet. But Jesus said "Except those days should be shortened there should no flesh be saved, But for the elects sake those days shall be shortened. (Matt. 24: 22).

God has decreed. The Heaven even the Heavens are the Eternals. But the earth hath he given to the children of men. (Psa. 115:16.) Men are soon going to learn that Gods purpose stands, God is not mocked.

LOCALLY MADE "COOSA NUGGET" INVADES FLORIDA

Recently a letter to the "Chamber of Commerce, Clanton, Ala." referred to "a doctor who lives in Clanton and makes the Coosa Nugget feathered fishing lure."

They were referring to none other than Clanton's own Dr. J. L. Bennett, local chiropractor and manufacturer of the now famed "Coosa Nugget" fish bait.

The letter was from the Black Bass Cottages in Leesburg, Florida ("Where the Big Bass Bite") and where, according to the letter, some of the world record catches of largemouth black bass have been taken.

Black Bass Cottages, is located midway between Leesburg and Eustis at the intersection of State Route 44 and Haines Creek. This creek connects Lake Eustis and Lake Griffin, two of the largest lakes in Central Florida.

Dr. Bennett says some Chilton Countians were down in Florida using his Coosa Nugget and Ray Burson, proprietor of Black Bass Cottages reported that they were really "reeling 'em in!"

Mr. Burson has ordered some Coosa Nuggets, naturally and Dr. Bennett complied with the order, naturally.

So, the Coosa Nugget has finally invaded the Florida Lakes. First reports are good. We look forward to hearing more interesting reports on Coosa Nugget in Florida.

By the way, Black Bass Cottages can accomodate you and your party and the rates are favorable. What's more, they sell Coosa Nugget fish bait, which is reason enough to pay them a visit the next time you are in Central Florida on a fishing trip.

SELDEN GOES 6TH YEAR WITH 100% ATTENDANCE IN CONGRESS

Washington D. C.—For the sixth consecutive year, Rep. Armistead Selden has attained one of the highest "on the record" voting averages in the House of Representatives.

The 6th District congressman again scored a 100% average for answering roll call votes during the second session of the 85th Congress which adjourned in August. This percentage is based on 93 roll calls on which members of the House voted for or against legislation. Only 21 others of the 429 House members whose votes were recorded equaled the 100% voting record attained by Congressman Selden during the 85th Congress.

ALABAMIAN ENTERS HALL OF FAME FOR 'GOLDEN MIRACLE DRUG'

Dr. Benjamin Minge Duggar Acclaimed Throughout World As Developer Of Aureomycin

A few days ago in Washington a small container of dirt was presented to the Smithsonian Institution. With it was enshrined the name of a native son of Alabama who devoted the twilight years of his life to producing a "miracle drug" which in ten years has saved the health and life of millions throughout the world.

The container held the original soil sample from which the late Dr. Benjamin Mine Duggar of Gallion-Prairieville, near Demopolis, extracted a golden mold with antibiotic qualities which was named Aureomycin Chlort tracycline.

Dr. Druggar died September 10, 1954 at the age of 84 but the success of his discovery was attested by the presence at the presentation ceremonies of an 18-year-old Suffolk, Virginia, housewife who, as a child of eight, became the first person to be saved from possible death by Aureomycin.

Why art thou cast down, O my soul, and why art thou disquieted in me? Hope thou in God.—(Psalms 42:5.)

All of us have our moments of despondency when it seems easier to sink deeper than to make the effort to pull ourselves up. But God's good and His love are ever present to help and strengthen us, if we will but seek Him in prayer.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Extra space for 60 jars of food is available for very little cost. Nine shelves, four and one-half inches deep, can be built inside any ordinary full-size closet door.

Who gains from the convenience of the processed, packaged items at today's modern grocery store? The homemaker who saves time--and, in some cases, money. Remember when you took a jug to be filled with vinegar or bought a 49-pound sack of flour?

Any pan with a tight-fitting lid may be used for "waterless" cooking. "Waterless" cooking simply means using an amount of water that will be evaporated by the time the vegetable is done.

Three medium apples weight about one pound; six to eight apples of medium size are required for a nine-inch pie. In one peck there are about 40 medium-size apples, and in a bushel, 96 to 144 apples.

Tomatoes are a good source of vitamin C, one cupful furnishing two-thirds of the daily requirement. Although vitamin C is often destroyed in cooking or storage, it stands up well in cooked or canned tomatoes.

Tomatoes originated as wild tomatoes in South America.

Don't refreeze quick - frozen foods once they've thawed. There's usually a loss of quality when thawed foods are frozen, so use them promptly.

The amount of poultry droppings in a poultry house can be estimated by dividing the total pounds of feed by two.

Twenty years from now the most severe shortage may be men and women trained to produce and handle food and fiber.

BIG NEWS FROM
CHILTON COUNTY NEWS

Hallowe'en Fun

What a wonderful experience to be in suspense! Yes, suspense in anticipation of a gala event. Such was the experience of the Better Speech Club the past Friday afternoon. An air of secrecy pervaded our classroom all week. It was climaxed Friday afternoon when a group of mothers appeared with seasonable festival refreshments.

Upon entering the classroom about one-thirty from a brief rest period, we found all things in readiness for a lovely Holloween party. Each desk was appropriately spread and there before us was the well arranged punch table. As we passed up to be served, lovely music was furnished by Charlotte Cackler, Judith Little, Brenda Mims Robert Mullins, Sharon Jones, Mary Arkie Cleckler, Annette Gay, Faye Williams, and Beverly Hicks. Sherry Cox and Gayla Wyatt presided at the punch bowl while the Club Officers; Jim Wade, Faye Williams, Robert Mullins, Joe Hayes and George Tucker passed candies, nuts, and cup cakes carrying out the Halloween motif. Our joy was complete as we did an intriguing Halloween rhythm about the roof and heard reports and readings on Halloween by Gayla Wyatt, Beverly Hicks, Ronald Hay Charlotte Cacker, Mary Arkie Cleckler, Joe Hayes, Mike Johnston. Judith Little, Linda Holley, Sandra Poole, Faye Williams, and Sharron Jones.

We are enjoying school and detect constant progress, but such an experience as this party afforded makes us realize even more that school is fun and can be made a continuous series of such experiences.

Jemison Wins Over Marbury 9 to 0

Jemison and Marbury fought it out in the rain and mud at Jemison Friday night.

Marbury lost their best opportunity to score in the first quarter when they had a first down on Jemison's 18 inch line and lost yardage and the ball to the Jemison Panthers.

Jemison's threat in the first half was broken up by a pass interception.

The first points in the game came in the third quarter when Marbury held Jemison on the three yard line and gained possession of the ball only to be tackled in the end zone by Donnie Guy, giving Jemison their first two points.

The first and only touchdown came in the fourth quarter when Bill Ray caught a pass in the end zone that looked impossible thrown by Donald Owens.

The extra point was made on a quarter back sneak by Owens.

No other score was made in the game having the final score a 9 to 0 in favor of Jemison.

PONTIAC PRESENTS FRESH 1959 STYLING

Unmatched in beauty and unprecedented in fresh styling approach, the 1959 Pontiac debuts with 14 all - new breath-taking body styles.

The exciting new line of automobiles, from the luxurious Bonnevilles to the lowest priced Catalina models, is lower and wider. Window area is up to 37 percent greater, providing unsurpassed visibility for driving safety.

Imparting added appeal is the standardization of dazzling Magic-Mirror acrylic lacquer finishes, 15 solid colors and 42 recommended twi-tone combinations. The high gloss lacquer, introduced by Pontiac in 1956 and known as the most durable finish in the industry, is two to five times more weather resistant than other paints. The '59 Pontiac line will entice even the artist's eye with such colors as Royal Amethyst, Gulfstream Blue, Shoreline Gold, Seaspray Green, Canyon Copper, Silvermist Gray, and Mandalay Red.

From every angle, clean, tasteful styling highlights the dynamic new cars. A 60 percent greater area Vista-Panoramic windshield extending into the roof and a large wrap-around rear window, lend a spectacular effect of aircraft design. The startling new fourdoor Vita hardtop, available in all series, features a modernistic roof over-hang in the rear.

Dual head lamps mounted in twin grilles, wrap-around two-bar bumper, and a V-shaped hood design extending rearward from the grilles, are predominant features of the front view.

CATTLE PROFITS DEPEND ON HERD BULL

Decisions Alabama cattlemen will be making during the coming months will greatly influence beef cattle profits in 1960

Possibly one of the biggest decisions will be whether to add herd bulls for the coming fall and winter feeding season. The cattlemen will have to decide now if the bulls he has are capable of improving the quality of calves he will sell in 1960 or if he should cull some of these and replace them with new bulls.

As the quality of his brood cow herd improves, a cattleman will find it harder to select bulls to continue the improvement program.

"Most of the guesswork in bull selection can be eliminated when bulls of proved ability can be purchased. These bulls can be selected after they have sired enough calves to determine whether they ar good breeding bulls. Or, "you can select bulls that have been performance tested bulls' weaning weights, as well as their ability to gain and do well on food, will be on record."

Unfortunately, there are not enough of these two classes of bulls to supply the needs of commercial beef producers in Alabama. So, the next best is a bull that has weight for age, conformation that indicates a high percentage of red meat--full spring of ribs, heavy fion, long level rump, and bulging hindquarters--and is from a mother of known milking ability.

DISCOVERY OF RADIUM

Sixty years ago this year Pierre and Marie Curie discovered radium The discovery was the beginning of years of research and experimentation. They found that radium gave off light, heat, and electricity continuously without undergoing any apparent change. Medical men became intrigued with this new element and its strange physiological properties. Professor Curie intrusted a specimen of radium to a dermatologist at the St. Louis Hospital in Paris and a first attempt was made to treat lesions of the skin, including cancer, with radium.

Marie Curie was born Marie Sklodowska in Poland and her parents were both professors of physics in a Warsaw school. Marie went to Paris to study mathematics and physics and at the Sorbonen she met Pierre Curie, son of a Paris physician, who was also studying physics. They were married in 1895 and began their collaboration in scientific research.

A long and difficult struggle followed for this energetic and inspired young couple. Working in a small grubby shanty with only crude facilities. the Curies extracted a small amount of pure radium from several tons of pitchblende ore given them by the Austrian government. As with William Conrad Roentgen, discoverer of x-rays. the Curies did not profit in any financial way from their discovery. They did not take out patents on the substance or on any purifying process involved. And they published their experiments so that others might benefit from them.

Madame Curie was presented with the Nobel Prize for chemistry in 1911 and the name of Curie will live forever as benefactor to the world.

Practical Baby Gift Sets They're New—No-iron Sheets

If you know a brand new parent, you've probably got an old problem: what to give as a gift. Here's a welcome tip about a gift that's beautiful, yet practical and suited to your budget. It's an attractive new Baby Gift Set made by Johnson & Johnson.

The Set comes in three sizes, Small, Medium and Deluxe, and contains the most frequently needed baby toiletry products. The Small Set has Baby Powder, Baby Cream, Baby Lotion and Cotton Buds. The Medium and Deluxe Sets have the same, plus Baby Oil and Baby Soap.

One of the really wonderful features about the Medium and Deluxe Sets is a waterproof plastic tray that can be removed from the package and placed right next to Baby's bath or dressing table. The tray also contains special insets in which the toiletry bottles can be stood upright during use. This means the bottles can't tip over.

The striking pink, blue and white color scheme of the Sets makes them very attractive as gifts. And inside there's a lovely picture of a beautiful baby; so beautiful, in fact, that it's suitable for framing.

Cotton bed sheets that need no ironing, the first of their kind ever produced, have been perfected by the Pequot Division of Indian Head Mills, Inc., and are now available in leading stores throughout the country.

The Pequot "Easy-Care" sheets, with matching pillow cases, have a wrinkle-resistant, non-chlorine retentive finish that produces a beautifully smooth appearance without ironing, regardless of how they are washed, and whether they are machine or line-dried.

The new no-iron sheets dry twice as fast as ordinary cotton sheets, shrink less, require no special laundering, can be washed with any type of bleach. Available in combed percale and muslin, they wrinkle less during actual use than conventional sheets.

Based on an average home use of six sheets per week, the "Easy-Care" no-iron sheets can save a family more than $60 a year in laundry bills, and many days of ironing..

POPLAR SPRINGS CHURCH BRIEFS

We had a wonderful attendance of almost 90 in Church Sunday, and another good attendance on Sunday night. Everyone enjoyed the message brought by Bro. Fred Donovan and enjoyed having he and his good wife with us.

We had several visitors out at Church Sunday and invite them back at any time, and may we take this opportunity to urge everyone that does not attend church somewhere else to join us at our church services. We believe you will go away saying it was good to have been in the house of the Lord.

THANKING YOU

We would like to take this opportunity to express our appreciation to everyone that helped us in anyway after our house burned. You just can't imagine how humble and grateful it makes us to know how good people are. I know the Lord is rejoicing in Heaven and too that his richest blessings will be poured out on each of you that sent things or prayed a prayer for us. We will always be grateful and thankful for all the good friends everywhere. God bless each of you all is our prayer. -- Louise Messer and family.

LOOK For "No Time For Sergeants"

TOTS and TEENS

By Mrs. Joan Cameron

The transformation of a sub-teen tomboy into a young lady can be as startling as the change of a caterpillar into a butterfly.

Last summer, when my daughter Nancy was 12, she spent half her day in the sun and the other half in the water. She returned to school the picture of a healthy tomboy; hair sunstreaked and unmanageable; tan fading unevenly; lips dry and chapped; hands rough and hard. Suddenly she discovered boys and wanted to look like a young lady.

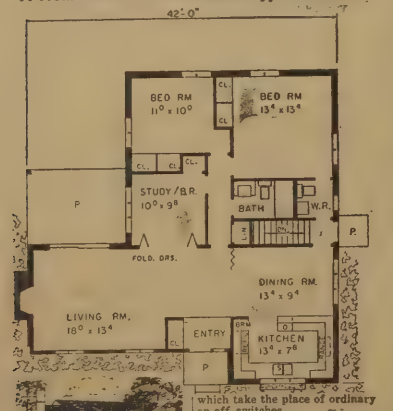
Taming the Tomboy

As a result, she was self conscious and unhappy until time and a few simple beauty routines repaired the ravages of sun and water. First came the weekly hot oil shampoo. We warmed a bottle of Vaseline Hair Tonic, a pure petrolatum base non-alcoholic preparation, parted her hair systematically, and applied the tonic directly to the scalp. Then followed a fingertip massage until her scalp was loose and wriggly, a wrung out hot terry cloth towel wrapped a la turban, and a regular shampoo when the towel cooled. Between the hot oil treatment and a daily rubbing of the ends of her hair with the same tonic, Nancy's hair soon became soft and glossy.

The fading tan we left to "mother nature" since Nancy was too young for pancake and powder, but her lips soon were brought back to a smooth, moist condition by daily applications of a lip pomade. My regular hand lotion softened her hands and nightly rubbing of petroleum jelly on the cuticles allowed us to work her finger nails into shape.

In several weeks, Nancy had completed the transformation into a young lady. This summer, she has made sure that she won't have to pay the piper for her days on the beach by continuing these simple grooming routines.

A Home Built for Provincial Type Furniture



This is a traditional style home whose exterior of brick, wood siding and field stone make an ideal background for antique or provincial furniture.

The entry opens directly into the living room and dining area. There is a closet for coat storage here. The living room has a fireplace at one end and sliding glass doors leading to a porch. This room opens directly into the dining area or can be shut off from it by means of folding doors, which lends itself to expansion for entertaining large groups.

Structural lighting in the living room features built in illuminated valances over the front windows and over the sliding window wall to the patio. Light is thrown both upward to the ceiling to create a feeling of spaciousness and downward over the draperies to give a daylight effect. Intensity of the light can be adjusted to any level with built in Luxtrol light controls which take the place of ordinary on-off switches.

A chandelier in the dining room can also be adjusted by a Luxtrol light control so that the hostess may have a candlelight effect or any other level of illumination by merely turning a dial.

The kitchen is to the front with the sink under windows facing the street which gives good supervision of the entrance. There is a pass thru from the kitchen to the dining room.

The master bedroom has double closets and a washroom at one corner. This washroom is also accessible for the side entrance and the basement stairway.

The other two bedrooms are of average size and have closets for storage also. The front bedroom can double as a study quest room and has folding doors opening into the living room which would be of advantage when entertaining larger groups.

There is a full basement with a large area set aside for recreation or hobby room.

Plans are available for $15 for one set or $35 for three sets from Clifford N. Wright, Architect, 19115 Schoolcraft, Detroit 23, Michigan.

Giblets, frozen, do not keep as long as the rest of the chicken. Giblets should be used within three months after freezing. Chickens can be kept frozen from six months to a year, depending on freshness of the bird when bought, wrapping, and temperature of the freezer.

Labeling packages of frozen foods is a safer way than trusting memory as to package contents and date of freezing.

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

BREAK THE DRIFT

It is much harder to swim upstream than to allow yourself to be swept downstream by the current. Yet, it is in swimming against the currents of life that you exercise your muscles and build your strength.

In going downstream you are in danger of becoming caught in the drift.

Numberless people today are caught in the drift. They are filled with hopelessness, fear and despair. They don't know what to do, what church to go to, what books to read, what schools to attend, what jobs to hold, what friends to have. They are lost sheep in the midst of a world lost without God.

It is terrible to be caught in the drift.

How important it is to have a man, to have a woman, in this world to break the drift of spiritual darkness in the souls of people today! Oh, that we could see people as they really are—on a ceaseless treadmill, utterly miserable, sick, in a stream of desire, millions dying without finding their missions in life.

In their faces is the look which says, "I don't know God."

When I saw the distress of the people, I thought I could not endure it. I thought my heart would burst in my flesh because I knew there had to be people to break the drift, to help those people caught in the drift. Someone had to bring them spiritual illumination, to make Jesus real to them.

We are in the midst of a world lost without God, fear-possessed, confused, beaten down. Our purpose must be to break that drift. Someone has to love Jesus enough to do it.

Abraham and David did it in their time, and Paul did it in his time. Now, we must do it in our time. Even if it means leading dangerous lives, we must do it, for such is our purpose—to break the drift.

Talk to yourself. Preach to yourself. Stand up against fear. That is what you must do to break the drift in your life and to prepare yourself to break the drift in the lives of others. You are to stand with strength and power, for God is with you.

You can do it.

Break the drift in your life before it is too late. You are what your believing is, and if you are believing hopelessness, you are hopeless. If you are believing defeat, you are defeated.

Raise yourself. Stand up. That is always a good thing to do to break the drift.

Turn to God. Believe in God, and he will help you break the drift. Turn to Jesus, and he will give you power over all the power of the enemy and nothing shall hurt you.

Christianity is a striking force, a living power. Christianity is not something you don't do; it is something you do. It is only by doing that you can break the drift. Only in Christianity, only in faith in God through Christ Jesus, can you break the drift.

IT'S not just old soldiers that die. There's sadness in old businesses dieing. "The muffled drums sad roll has beat, the soldier's last tattoo. No more on life's parade shall meet that brave and fallen few. On life's eternal camping ground their silent tents are spread, While glory guards with solumn round the Bivuoc of the dead." What we're getting at is the fact that the T. U. Crumpton Mercantile Company has closed it's doors after 72 years of service to Maplesville and surrounding community. Thats a long long time and we bet it brings back memories to many people of a past era who had all but forgotten the place existed. We know personally, that fifty to seventy years ago our parents traded at the T. U. Crumpton store. Think of the memories, the happiness and the heartbreak that old store could tell -- if it could talk.

RUFE EVANS was by to see us last week. He is the new District Manager for Southern Bell Telephone Co. and Mr. Commander, who is taking a desk job again, was introducing him around. We congratulate Rufe on his promotion and offer our cooperation.

WE had some accidents last week among our cowboys. One a colt and the other a fellow who ain't a colt any longer. Otto Jones was breaking in a colt and the little fellow got too frisky and jammed him against the wall and put him on crutches for a few days. But he shouldn't feel bad (the man, not the colt), because another fellow had a horse on top of him and got smashed up pretty bad. That was Gene Wilkinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dock Wilkinson. Dock, you know is bookkeeper at Lambert Motors. Gene is doing nicely at home.

SAW Bea Bryan Saturday night in town. You know she works in Birmingham now. She don't think too much of the Magic City but says it is alright if she can come to Clanton every Saturday and Sunday.

THANKS to John Melton the barber at West Point where the Selma Road and Second Ave. run together, for a big box of black walnuts. Didn't have a bit of trouble finding plenty of big black walnuts when we were a kid but but we don't get around the woods much any more. There is nothing that give the Thanksgiving cake the rich flavor of black walnuts.

BET you never knew the kids at Clanton Elementary School drink 24,000 cartons of milk every month. Prof. Abrams says that most of it is chocolate milk. That, my friend is a lot of milk and sounds like the kids are getting the better things of life along with their lunches at Clanton Elementary.

SAW G. C. Walker's picture in last week's Montgomery Advertiser. He was pretty hard to see because some pretty girls managed to get into the picture and Grover ain't as pretty as he used to be. He was at Auburn's homecoming along with some other old Grads and some pretty students. By the way, he graduated in 1908.

SOME of these Clanton women are complaining about not being able to keep their husbands two feet on the ground. Seems every chance they get a bunch of them take off into the wild blue yonder and mama stays at home alone while they ride around on cloud seven. We don't see how they get away with it. The wife at our house house-broke us a long time ago.

MR. J. W. Jones is in Highland Baptist Hospital at Birmingham and underwent surgery Wednesday. Hope he is progressing fine by now--haven't heard.

POPE PAYNE has retired after 37 years in the Hardware business. He has been at Thorsby for many years but operated a store at Maplesville before going there. He is one of our most valued members of the Board of Education.

Sources close to Civil Defense Rescue Squad work in Chilton County disclosed early this week that the County Board of Revenue and Control had appropriated an additional $600 to County Civil Defense and that manipulations were going through for the rental of the old National Guard Armory building as a storehouse for CD equipment and as a meeting place.

Burton Mullins is local head of Civil Defense. Alvin Ellison is president of the local Civil Defense Rescue Squad. Earl Wilson is vice-president.

The additional appropriation brought the yearly total to $1100 by the County Board and thus surpassed the amount previously asked for.

Civil Defense in Chilton is becoming acutely active and vital to our community.

Lecroy Gives Opinion On Recent Voting

To The People of Chilton County:

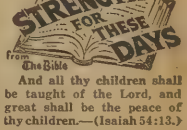
On November 4 you were given the privilege of going to the polls and voting your conviction on the one-cent sales tax proposal. You voted in a magnificent way. Two thousand and thirty-one votes were cast for the tax and one thousand two hundred and sixty were cast against it.

Your Board of Education and Superintendent are deeply grateful for this fine vote and just as soon as the bill is introduced in the legislature and becomes a law the Board and Superintendent will begin immediately to administer a school improvement program for your school system that will make it one of which every citizen of the county will be proud.

This proposal was known about over the entire state and the eyes of Alabama were watching us to see what we would do to make the badly needed improvements. In this time of needs for public education we can be justly proud that the people of Chilton County have taken this forward step which will show the entire state what can be done by the majority of people working together to reach common goals.

Your Board of Education and Superintendent want to thank you most sincerely for your fine interest, enthusiasm, and cooperation in making possible a better educational program for the boys and girls of Chilton County.

-s-W. A. LeCroy, Supt.



And all thy children shall be taught of the Lord, and great shall be the peace of thy children.—(Isaiah 54:13.)

We seek the best there is for our children in schooling and material happiness. But the greatest gift that parents can give their children is religious training and devoted example in the home, for these will comfort and sustain them the rest of their lives.

Couples Celebrate 45th And 40th Together

The members of the Thorsby Congregational Church and a few friends of Rev and Mrs. N A Long met at the home of Mr. and Mrs Rascoe Maddox, to honor them on Sunday afternoon, this being their 45th wedding anniversary and also the anniversary of 40 years as a minister of the gospel for Rev. Long.

Rev Long, who has been pastor of the Thorsby church for the past three years, is retiring on the 15th of December.

So, the occasion was also a farewell to these dear folks. They have recently built a new home in south Alabama, which they hope to occupy shortly. They were presented with two electric end table lamps to help light their new home.

The Maddox home was beautifully decorated in yellow and white autumn blossoms. In the dining room the table was a thing of beauty, with lace cloth and crystal candle holders bearing tall yellow candles. The center piece, a tiered embossed cake, was surrounded with 45 tiny yellow candles, which were blown out by the "bride and groom". Mrs Maddox was assisted in serving a delicious plate and frappe by Mrs. James Kincaid Mrs Lloyd Howard, and Linda and Shirley Beasley.

Club Women's Driving Contests Make Life Safer

By Jeanne Smith, Dodge Safety Consultant

MEMBERS of women's clubs are competing "behind the wheel" these days instead of engaging in cooking, sewing or knitting contests.

Miss Smith

In Peoria, Ill., for instance, women in the Association of Commerce recently organized a "Safe - T - Drivette" in which representatives of 25 clubs participated.

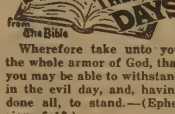
Following a written examination on safe driving techniques, the women took to their steering wheels and met in combat on a roped-off downtown street.

A gold bracelet was awarded the club member who most skillfully demonstrated her ability to park and to maneuver a car on the planned obstacle course.

Driving duels, similar to the Peoria contest, are held every spring in Arlington, Va., between a representative from each of the Federated Women's clubs and a member of each of the men's service organizations.

An obstacle course is set up in a large parking lot, with the top scoring man and woman receiving trophies attesting to their driving skills.

But, more important than any trophy, is the comment of a police officer who said, "After these contests, driving is a lot safer for everyone involved. They remember the first rule of safety—courtesy to others."



Wherefore take unto you the whole armor of God, that you may be able to withstand in the evil day, and, having done all, to stand.—(Ephesians 6:13.)

Why should we try to go it alone, humanly weak as we are, when God's love, His guidance and power are ours for the asking through prayer? He is ever present and willing; when we let our foolish pride and self-centeredness cut us off from Him, we deprive ourselves needlessly of strength and help.

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

"BEFORE YOU SHOOT YOURSELF, CALL THIS NUMBER"

At our International Headquarters in Tulsa, Oklahoma, we have a group of people who are engaged in prayer 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. This is called the Abundant Life Prayer Group Day and night this Group is receiving requests for prayer from people everywhere. The requests are sent in by mail and telegraph, and many come by long-distance telephone. Calls for help in prayer have come from as far away as Oslo, Norway, and from as near as a Tulsa hospital

The other day, a member of our Abundant Life Prayer Group answered the telephone. The call was coming from a point more than 1,000 miles away. A man's voice said, "I have a loaded revolver in my hand, and I am ready to take my life." Then, in a last desperate plea, the man cried, "Can you help me?"

The Abundant Life Prayer Partner sympathetically, prayerfully, and with understanding listened to the complete story told by "the voice" at the other end of the line.

"For three days, I have been locked in my room with my revolver loaded ready to take my life. But each time I have tried to pull the trigger, something has restrained me. At one time I knew the Lord as my Saviour, but I drifted away from him. The further I strayed from the Lord, the more my life became involved, and I ended up serving a prison term. Now, I have been released and have tried to go straight, but nobody wants to hire an ex-convict. Life has lost its meaning and I just can't go on any longer. Can you help me?"

This time, the question was drowned in convulsive sobs. The Prayer Partner lovingly and prayerfully spoke to the man and told him of the goodness of God. As she talked with him and prayed with him, he suddenly interrupted her, his voice ringing with a new vibrance. He told her the light had suddenly broken through into his heart as prayer went up to God in his behalf. The Sun of righteousness had dawned in this man's life with healing in his wings to restore life and health to this individual who only moments before was determined to take his own life.

Only when she was sure that the man had peace in his heart did the Abundant Life Prayer Partner venture the question which had been in her mind from the beginning of the conversation. "How did you happen to call the Abundant Life Prayer Group?" she asked.

The man replied, "A lady gave me your telephone number and said to me, 'Before you shoot yourself, call this number!'"

This incident (one of hundreds that have come to our attention) pinpoints a truth that we should never forget: There is no distance in prayer. God is here and God is there. He is with me, and he is with you. Nearer than breathing and faster than thought, he can respond to the cry of every anxious heart who turns to him for help. He is the answer—the only answer—to the needs of this world today.

TOTS and TEENS

By Mrs. Joan Cameron

As the mother of a pair of boys and two daughters, I'm convinced that it's much more difficult to keep a sick little boy in bed than a little girl.

Jeff, our younger boy, is the worst. The only time he'll accept being confined to bed is when he's too ill to know the difference. If he's banished to bed with a cold, he'll complain constantly about the boredom and discomfort.

Bed Tricks for Tots

Yet, our pediatrician advises keeping the children in bed for at least the first day of a cold, and for as long as their temperature is above normal. Colds in young children, he says, can be the forerunners of more serious ailments if not handled carefully.

To keep Jeff comfortable and amused, I've had to develop a pattern above and beyond the normal confined-to-bed-with-a-cold routine. When he gets diluted fruit juices several times a day, we make believe we're at a soda parlor. I use an ice cream soda glass and he orders a different juice each time. When I put on new lipstick, he uses a stick of Vaseline Lip-Ice Pomade. While he's imitating Mom, the pomade serves to ease the effect of cold sores, fever blisters, and the hot dry lips that usually accompany a cold. I also keep a pan of water on the radiator to moisturize the air in the room, and put petroleum jelly around his nostrils to give relief to his tender nose.

Since staying in bed restricts a child's physical activities, I try to give him mentally stimulating things to keep him busy. Making different kinds of figures to play with out of pipe cleaners will satisfy Jeff for several hours a day. Coloring books and crayons use up some more time, and little plastic cars and soldiers are always a dependable standby.

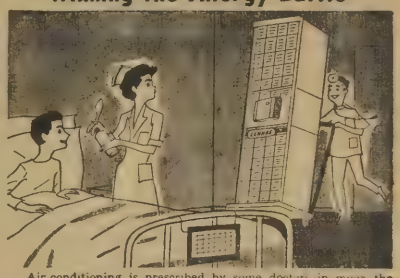
Winning the Allergy Battle



Air conditioning is prescribed by some doctors in much the same way they prescribe pills. It has been discovered that temperature and humidity play a great part in the body's welfare, and their effect on an ill person is even greater than on a well one. Heart patients, for instance, are found to improve much more rapidly when surrounded by controlled air because there is no strain put on the heart to combat excessive heat or humidity. And, psychologically, any bed patient feels better if he isn't using up what little energy he has battling indoor weather conditions—hot or cold.

As for the field of dermatology, doctors are recommending, more and more, that patients with skin problems spend as much time as possible in air-conditioned surroundings. Asked by Lennox Industries President John W. Norris—Lennox is one of the country's largest manufacturers of central air-conditioning equipment—about the latest developments in the treatment of skin disturbances, one doctor had this to say: "We have found that year 'round air conditioning is extremely beneficial in the treatment of rashes and allergies such as hay fever and asthma. It not only helps the allergy itself, but permits the patient to get a comfortable night's sleep—an important treatment in any skin case. There is no doubt that although year 'round air conditioning is more expensive than a bottle of pills, it is by far the best kind of health insurance that can be bought."

Jemison Tops Billingsley 25 To 14

(By Hubert Ray)

Three minutes after kicking off to Billingsley, the Panthers had gained possession of the ball and scored a touchdown. Horace (Dougie) Davis scored for Jemison from the four yard line. To try for the extra point was no good. Bill Ray made the second touchdown for Jemison on a long pass from Donnie Guy in the second quarter and again Billingsley stopped the attempt for the extra point.

The third touchdown also came in the second quarter when Guy intercepted a pass and went all the way. Again, Billingsley stopped the extra point.

Billingsley's first score came in the third quarter when Dennis broke loose and ran sixty yards for the touchdown. McGowin made the extra point.

The Panthers was next to score in the fourth quarter when Donald Owens passed to Bill Ray. Owens passed to Guy for the extra point.

Billingsley's second touchdown came after they recovered a fumble deep in Jemison's territory. Cox made the touchdown and Strickland made the extra point.

The final score, Jemison 25; Billingsley 14. The Jemison Panthers now have five wins and three losses. They will be trying hard for their sixth victory, when they meet the Isabella Mustangs on Friday night at Jemison. So everyone come out and enjoy a good football game.

In 1945, Mrs. ONeal was laid to rest at Old New Hope Christian Church. Mr. O'Neal lived at the old home place several years after Mrs. O'Neal died, but then decided to rent his place and move with his son, Earl O'Neal, and make his home.

Old New Hope Christian Church had disbanded some time before and Mr. O'Neal attended the Plantersville Christian Church as long as his health permitted. He never failed to read his Bible. He looked forward to visits with his friends and relatives. He talked freely with them about the Bible. He enjoyed reading and hearing the news of his County and state. He kept in close touch with the friends he made along life's way; always inquiring of their whereabouts and welfare.

Mr. ONeal celebrated his 86th birthday on Wednesday, November 5, 1958. Several close friends visited him and he enjoyed so much their visits. Early Thursday morning he became seriously ill. After visiting Mr. O'Neal's grave early Sunday afternoon, your reporter was talking to several colored women near the cemetery and one of them had this to say "we've worked for Mr. O'Neal and he was always good to us. All of our lives we've respected him and his family. They were good folks and we'll miss him". Yes, we will all miss Mr. O'Neal, and we've lost a true friend, a kind and considerate neighbor.

SUBSCRIPTION RATE $2.00 PER YEAR

IF you don't keep on the right side of some people you get left.

YOU never get so rich that you can afford to lose a friend.

WHAT you get out of life depends on what you put in.

IF a person is narrow minded--give them a wide berth.

IF you let your temper get the best of you, you lose your sense of reason.

THOUGHTS ON POLITICS

As you know in the past election the whole nation, practically, went Democratic. What we want now is to get Chilton County Democratic in spirit, as well as politically.

We vaguely suspect that all who have entered our Democratic Primaries and run under the Democratic Rooster aren't, at Heart, true Democrats.

Our sincere hope is that the present group, and we can speak for most of them, are real Democrats. To run under the banner of the Democratic Party and then flop to the Republican rule, is true hypocracy.

In January the Chilton County Democratic Executive Committee meets and elects a new Chirman. This is a very important office and we hope the local committeemen give their choice and thoughtful consideration.

WHICH IS WHICH?

Let's drop the question of which comes first the chicken or the egg. Let's talk about seasons.

Which to you is the most beautiful, Fall or Spring?

Granted in Spring the whole world takes on new life. The flowers bloom and the trees bud out. The grass is the most beautiful green and the birds take on new life and try harder to make music for anyone who cares enough to listen.

And Fall is "the end". The leaves are dying. The birds are leaving for winter quarters. The grass turns brown and dies and yet;

Nothing is more beautiful than the Fall of the year. More beautiful color than you can imagine and more shades than the most gifted artist could ever put on canvas.

Which is the most beautiful season?

Calling the Signals

Well, fellow members of the U. S. student body it looks as if we've picked our team for the big All-Star game opening in Washington in January. And now that the Nov. 4 election has decided which players will be in the starting line-up, we'd better coach them on what we expect.

We're up against the same opponent again next year—Inflation U. It's a tough fot that we've been losing to for years. It uses an attack that is so deceptive and shifty it can sneak the value right out of a dollar.

Inflation's big gun is a hulking fullback named Union Monoply. He's loaded with power and plays rough. We've managed to stop every other kind of monoply—but not this one. Last year he scared the daylights out of our whole team. They didn't even try to tackle him.

But if we're going to beat Inflation, we've got to stop Union Monoply. And that's why we picked ed you for our team, Mr. Congressman. We think you're man enough to do the job.

Okay, Big Team. Go in there and get 'em!

Notice that this is "National Tuna Week", "American Education Week", "YWCA World Fellowship Week" and thrown in for good measure (get this now) starting tomorrow is "Save A WIFE Week" We don't know whether that last one is a typographical error or a practical joke, but at any rate it's food for thought!

Not only that but "National Cat Week" is here and "Pumpkin Pie Time" is good all the month of November. Starting November 27th we have a week called "National Prosperity Week". We know a lot that could be done during that particular time if our lawmakers and what have you would take it on themselves to improve the situation of our pocketbooks!

Notice that Chilton County High under likeable Coach Finlayson is at this time Champion of Chilton County. In the county competition the Tigers have a 3 to 0 record; that's 'wins' and we congratulate them on their good season under their new coaching staff.

NOTE TO TELEPHONE OPERATORS: "How come when we pick up the telephone lately you don't say 'numbah puhleeze' like you usta? As a matter of fact you don't say nothing! Had a number of comments lately on the slow responsiveness of local operators. All we want to know is whasamatter?"

FRED Thompson, (he'll take you through the 'cleaners') is the new owner of a Volkswagen Convertible and he took us for a spin in it the other day. Quite a little jalopy and we can assure you that it will run and is very comfortable too. What was most fun was his enthusiasm. . he likes it!

A letter from our big sister (and we might add a 'come once a year variety') informs us that one of her four youngsters is enclined towards the arts, another is pretty good at everything and a third likes mathematics. Further reports indicated that the fourth (the only girl, by the way) was very talented in "playground". She even went so far as to say she liked that most. Some future. huh!

A reader who, as myself, was incarcerated for years in a stone-walled, grassless city, writes that he, too, likes to see grass growing between occasional cracks in sidewalks in his hometown.

I'll bet there may be hundreds of such strange characters as we — perhaps even a Mrs. or two of the fussy type who can't abide even a spot of comfortable dust around the house . . .

"Comfortable' dust, I said. Show me a house that doesn't have a smidge of clean, honest dust in it, and I'll prove (to myself, anyway) that it isn't a comfortable house where a man can sprawl out with his pipe and his newspaper, or munch an eatin' apple in calm male content! . . .

C. W. Harder

An interesting anti trust suit has been filed in the Federal court in Washington, D. C. which could have far reaching effects.

An organization called the National Milk Producers Federation which represents 126 dairy cooperatives, has filed against the National Tax Equality Association.

The suit charges that a campaign of villification has been carried on against them for the purpose of creating resentment against the cooperatives and destroying their goodwill in order to effect a monopoly for the non-cooperative dairy firms.

Recently, the trucking industry won a case of this sort against the railroads and their public relations counsel for tactics that allegedly were designed to destroy the trucking industry.

This growth of public relations firms in this direction is becoming a hazard to the welfare of the nation. Whereas public relations were once used solely in a positive manner to build up goodwill for their clients, now a great deal is destructive strategy aimed through the use of false front "citizens" groups, and other strategems, to destroy.

On several occasions, voting through the National Federation of Independent Business, the nation's independent businessmen have voted on this question of cooperatives. The sentiment is strong to put cooperatives on the same tax basis as private enterprise for equality.

But in so voting, the nation's Independent businessmen are not going on record as wishing to outlaw cooperatives, no more than they go on record in favor of outlawing Big Business. The only point at issue is putting all enterprise on the same footing, under the same rules.

Unfortunately, in the dairy business in the nation today, there exists all the ailments of a sick industry brought on by monopolism. Very few independent dairy distributors any longer exist, with the bulk of the dairy product distribution falling into the clutches of two or three huge corporations who even own, or have an interest in, big food chains, merely to blank out competition from distribution in these stores.

* * *

Obviously, the dairy producers need protection from the predators in the dairy distribution business. It is difficult to tell what is the best form of operation in a free market, when a free market does not exist.

* * *

Destruction of dairy cooperatives is not the answer. For in addition, even with their tax favoritism, cooperatives have not been able to stop the march of monopoly in milk.

The problem is grave. On one side is the welfare of the nation's infants. On another side, is the problem of the welfare of the independent dairy farmer. In the middle, and threatening the welfare of both are the huge dairy combines. And while infants cannot organize, the independent milk producers can.

But undoubtedly, the only practical solution to entire problem would be for the anti trust laws to be so rigidly enforced in the dairy industry that a free and open market would exist. As it stands now, milk distribution is a national disgrace.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

If one glass tumbler sticks to another, don't try to force them apart. Fill the glass on top with cold water, then dip the bottom one in hot water. They'll come apart without strain or breakage.

Never soak an earthenware bowl or pot it food has scorched in it. Add a teaspoonful of baking soda to the water and let it stand only until the particles have loosened.

To make those hard-to-budge drawers slide much more easily put thumbtacks on the runners.

Stitch and tension adjustments are very important for the best operation of your sewing machine. If you have difficulty in making the proper adjustments yourself, call a machine service expert.

Soak all cooking utensils if you dont have time to wash them before dinner. They'll be much easies to wash later.

Place a cut apple in your cookie jar or fruitcake box. It will keep soft cookies soft and fruitcakes moist.

If you misplace a milk-bottle cap, place an egg in the mouth of the bottle and your milk will be well protected.

To store tennis racquets for the winter, cover them first with a coating of petroleum jelly. This will prevent strings from snapping.

Go to the Bazaar at the First Methodist Church on Thursday November 13th. Gifts and food will be on sale from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

PRIVATE PRESERVES GOOD FOR CITY GAME HUNTERS

Would you like to hunt where you won't have to worry about posted signs and where there are plenty of game birds to be hunted?

A dream?

Not so, says API Extension Fish and Wildlife Specialist Earl F. Kennamer. There are 308 places in America where hunters can follow their favorite hobby in shooting preserves. In fact, continues Kennamer, there are two such hunting preserves in Alabama.

Pen game shooting or private preserve hunting may be a promising enterprise for a man who has 10 to 100 acres of land and wants to make a little money. And, besides a source of income for the landowner, a hunting preserve gives city hunters a place to hunt and takes pressure off the game we have.

Here's how game preserves work The owner furnishes the land, the hunting dogs, and game. All the hunter has to take with him are his guns and shells. The owner of the preserve raises or buys game (pheasants in Alabama), turns them loose, and in a few hours the hunters go after them. Because only stocked game is bagged, there is no-limit hunting.

Charges vary according to the services offered by the owner. Some preserves operate as resorts, with many attractions. Others simply provide hunting for a fee, with no frills. Guides and dogs are furnished, but most preserves permit you to use your own dog. Some presrves charge by the number of birds bagged, others by the number released. Some offer membrship rates.

The preserve season in the Southeast opened Oct. 1 and will continue through March 31.

Telephone Talk

By RUFE EVANS
Your Telephone Manager

HOW TO FOIL A FUNGUS! Did it ever occur to you that telephone poles are edible? Not for you—but they do make a tasty dish for mushrooms! The mushrooms that like to eat wood are wild, like the fungus you find growing on stumps in the woods. That's why telephone scientists feed telephone poles to mushrooms to learn how to keep the poles from being eaten. In laboratories they coat pieces of wood with different chemical compounds, then put samples in sealed jars with earth and the most destructive kind of fungus. Chemicals found most unappetizing are then used to treat telephone poles so they'll last longer. Just another example of the day-in, day-out research that enables us to keep your service dependable and continually improving.

"Then what did he say?"

Are these familiar words at your house? If you have a teen-ager, you can't help overhearing just such remarks. It seems that endless telephone visits are a part of growing up. No need to make them a family affair, though. With an extension phone of her own, Suzy can talk in complete privacy. You'll really "tickle her pink," too, with a pretty pink phone, or one of the other lovely pastel colors, and her own listing in the telephone directory. For just a few cents extra a day it's so easy to give the whole family the wonderful convenience of extension phones in favorite "talking spots" throughout your home. Our Business Office will be glad to answer any questions you have, so just call us any time.

WHAT NEXT? Telephone installers run into some funny situations — sometimes with belligerent dogs, inquisitive youngsters, antagonistic bees — even pet alligators in one family's basement. Here's one we get a bang out of: A lady wanted an extension phone put in and her instructions to the Business Office included the following warning: "Please send a man who has had the measles."

ALABAMA 45th IN NATION

IN MILK PRODUCTION

Alabama dairymen averaged less than 7,000 pounds of milk per cow for all Dairy Herd Improvement Association cows on test last year.

Sounds like a lot of milk, doesn't it? But though it indicates progress, it isn't enough to keep every Alabama dairyman in business, "In fact," says API Extension Dairyman John Parrish, "Alabama ranks 45th in the nation in milk production."

Things are looking up though, reports the specialist. State dairymen produced more quality roughage this year than in any year since 1953. Most dairymen have culled herds rigidly, so production per cow should be greater in 1959.

The facts that a dairyman uses records to cull low-producing animals from his herd doesn't prove that he raises the quality, Parrish points out, unless proved sires are used to produce future generations. As we approach our main breeding season, it is important that dairymen study their programs and use the best sires available for future herd replacement.

Parrish also stressed the importance of having some cows calve in August. Markets always need more milk during August, he said, and the cow that calves then will be helping supply milk when needed. The cow will also be in peak production at the beginning of the base period in September.

Only 5.5 percent of Alabama dairy cows are on a dairy testing program. "If we can raise the number of cows on test to 10 per cent in 1959." says Parrish, "we feel that it will be one of the best things we can do to help Alabama dairymen produce more milk and increase their profits."

YOUR Health

IMMUNIZATION

Are your children immunized? That is, are they protected against the development of certain diseases such as whooping cough, smallpox, diptheria, or typhoid fever? Today, these conditions can be prevented; yet many parents deny this protection to their youngsters by neglecting to have them vaccinated.

What is immunization? Actually, there are many types of immunization which are somewhat complex. Simply, immunization is a state whereby a person through vaccination or injection, sets up within his own body a store house of substances to ward off the causative germs.

In most diseases, the body mechanism for producing immune bodies deteriorates in time. In influenza, for example, it is active for only a few weeks. For whooping cough and diptheria, it lasts one to three years. In other diseases, such as scarlet fever, the active immunity may continue for a life time. But in diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, and typhoid fever, active immunity may be quickly restablished with periodic booster shots.

It is a well-known fact that a community with eighty per cent of its population immunized will not develop an epidemic, since the remaining twenty per cent of succeptible inhabitants cannot furnish sufficient living space for the germ. However, the disease can recur in such a community if it brought in from the outside.

Since immunization provides an insurance toward good health of the individual and the community the parent who gives this foothold of good health to the child early is wise. The time for beginning these injections varies with the condition. For this reason the parent should consult with his physician.

For example, babies are susceptable to whooping cough from birth, and from forty to seventy per cent of those under six months who contract the disease die. Thus basic immunization against whooping cough should be started early, certainly by three months of age.

Don't postpone the protective immunization until your child goes to school. Protect him now. He may be fortunate through his growing years, only to contract a condition that may take his life as an adult. Help prevent disease by protecting your child with immunization.

GOOD BOAR NECESSARY FOR GOOD HOG FAMILY

Too many people in the purebred hog business are producing registered scrubs. According to G. B. Phillips, API Extension specialist in animal industry, Alabama needs more breeders of purebred hogs, but not more multipliers of registered hogs.

The be a successful swine breeder, Phillips reminds beginners in the business, you must have faith in the breed of your choice. And a good boar is absolutely necessary. Don't get into the purebred business if you are going to start with an ordinary registered boar. The beginner can't afford to let a few dollars keep him from buying a good boar.

You must learn to recognize good hogs. Even a market hog grower must be a keen judge of hogs. Some of the breeder's best-spent time is in visiting other breeders, shows, sales, and fairs where different types of hogs may be seen and studied.

Record keeping is a must. If you raise purebred hogs, certain records, such as breeding and farrowing dates, litters, and their ancestry are absolutely basic.

Sanitation is a must. You don't have to have expensive buildings and equipment but neat, clean ones are a strong selling point.

If your premises and hog lots are too unsanitary, your prospective customer may not say anything but he probably won't buy.

And along with other points, Phillips says, feeding and management are just as important to the purebred producers as to the market hog grower. You'll want to keep up with--and follow--latest information and methods that will cut coasts and make profits. and you'll want to do rigid culling. Very few herd owners should offer for sale more than about half of their stock for breeding purposes.

Flashlight cells and other dry batteries will last longer if stored in the refrigerator, but better let them thaw before using.

FOLKS and THINGS About Town

by Ben

CENTRAL Alabama has enjoyed unseasonable warm weather for the past several days but Wednesday morning turned up a little more like a November morn. In fact it was a perfect Fall day. The weatherman says it will remain cool this week but we had better get ready for December--this kind of weather just can't hold out always.

DOCK Wilkinson told us a funny experience the other day. He said it happened on a Christmas Day some years ago, and the weather was just about like this balmy weather we are having now. He was riding his motorcycle when he run over a dog. The empact cut the dog in half and split the front frame of his motorcycle enough to throw axle grease all in his face and covered his goggles. The funny things was Dock didn't know the axle grease was what it was. He thought it was "dog". He had to drive several miles home afraid to breathe hardly. Surely not open his mouth until he could get to a wash room to wash off the axle grease not dog.

TUESDAY a week ago Doug Barton's son Richard had a birthday. This past Tuesday his daughter Susan had a birthday and next Tuesay he and his wife celebrate their Anniversary. His family is getting a kin to the newspaper field. Everything that happens--happens on Tuesday.

BROTHER, you gotta see John and Gilly Studdard's new home. It is really pretty. Beautiful rooms, beautiful kitchen and breakfast nook, beautiful halls and plenty of spacious closets. But that garage. You won't believe this unless you go and see it. Johnnie had a chandalier hanging in his big double garage. Now that's a "first" and we know it. But the way it happened is that after ordering all the light fixtures Gilly forgot the garage so Johnnie, "do it yourself artist that he is" just took the chandalier from his old living room and put it in the garage. It serves the purpose and he ain't figguring on having any "balls" out there.

DID you hear about the Mountaineer who asked the teacher what his son would learn in college. She told him that he would learn things like history, spelling, trigonometry. . .That old Mountaineer told her: "Give him plenty of that trigger-nometry. . .he's the worst darn shot in the family.

A KIND friend who reads this column called us last week and wants the receipt for the cake cooked with black walnut flavor so here she goes: Grease and Flour-2-9" layer pans or 13x9" oblong pan. Fold in-1 1|3 cup Black Walnuts, (cut up) Pour into prepared pans, bake at 350 - 25 to 30 minutes. until cake tests done. Cool, finish with creamy caramel icing and garnish with Clipped Walnuts.

FOOTBALL FOES - ARMY BUDDIES

(L to R) James Thornhill, a former Half Back with the Isabella High "Mustangs" shakes hands with Thomas Minor a former Right End with the Chilton County High "Tigers" as the two rival football players join the Regular Army under the Buddy Plan.

Two star high school football players from Chilton County were enemies for the past several years while they played against each other during the high school football season. This week all ill feeling, if there ever was any, was cast aside as the two players asserted their keenest friendship for each other. To prove it, they joined the Regular Army for three years under the Buddy Plan which assures their staying together during all basic training cycles. They also chose the same Army branch for their assignments--the Military Police Corps.

Tornhill and Minor, both of whom graduated from high school this year, played against each other in scheduled games during the past three football seasons. Although Minor's team, the Chilton County High "Tigers" scored decisive victories of 33 to 6 in 1956 and 33 to 7 in 1957 against Thornhill's team, the Isabella "Mustangs", Thornhill proudly pointed out that the Mustangs scored on the Tigers each time.

Thornhill is the son of Mrs. Ineta Cunningham, Rte 3, Clanton, and Minor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Kelly, 402 Airport Road, Clanton.

Processing for their enlistment and assignments was accomplished by SFC H. Smith of the Montgomery Army Recruiting Station who comes to Clanton on Monday and Friday of each week.

Here's A Crackerjack !

The local Lions Club is sponsoring their annual Cracker Jack sale for the benefit of their sight conservation program next Saturday, November 22. As most everyone knows by now, Lions throughout Alabama are devoted to the preservation and conservation of sight for citizens of all ages; and this project has developed into one of the most popular with the local people.

The sale will be conducted one day only--next Saturday--and in the same manner as last year. The Lions will have three or four teams on the main streets dispensing delicious Cracker Jacks. There is no price set on the Cracker Jacks. Any contribution you care to make for the sight conservation program for peoples less fortunate will be acceptable and appreciated and, you will receive a taste treat you might have forgotten (if you happen to be a little older) in addition to the blessing that always is a part of giving.

So, look for the Lions and the Cracker Jacks; and help provide sight for those less fortunate than you. And, enjoy the Cracker Jacks, too. Don't forget to look for the prizes, or, can you remember how important that prize once was?

EPISCOPAL CHURCH BEING REMODELED

Extensive remodeling of Trinity Episcopal Church is now in progress with plans for completion before Christmas. This building program is under the direction of Nelson Smith, prominent Birmingham architect.

Services are now being held at Trinity each Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in one of the rooms at the rear of the church. The public is still cordially welcomed to these services.

A continuous supply of fresh water for laying hens will pay off in higher egg production.

Find the strength for your life...

WORSHIP TOGETHER THIS WEEK

Somewhere in your town a man you may have never seen waits hopefully for you.

He is a minister. A priest. A rabbi. A man used to speaking out... making decisions . . . taking action for himself, for his congregation and his community.

But where you're concerned, he can only wait and hope you will come.

He holds something in trust for you—the powerful, crucial first introduction to Faith. And he is anxious to pass it on.

The strength and confidence of Faith can mean many things to many men . . . and to the families who count on them.

So together with your family start to find that Faith this week.

WHAT KIND OF A RISK WAS COLUMBUS?

We're frank to say that Columbus' venture was a poor banking risk, even though the Queen of Spain's investment finally did pay off. A bank today cannot gamble its depositors' fund on "long shot" chances. But this bank continually finances business men, large and small, on legitimate buying, selling and expansion programs, supplying short and medium term credit at reasonable rates. We are particularly interested in cooperating with new firms planning to locate in this city.

Nine Com'unities Are Fire Ant Control Districts

Resulting from community meetings held Thursday and Friday, November 13th and 14th, nine different Chilton County communities are in the process of completing landowners' applications for Federal-State aid to eradicate fire ants.

Individual communities, after an explanation of present program, in all cases elected to accept responsibility of distributing fire ant control insecticides on all of their open lands, with other cooperating Agencies-Federal-State-paying entire cost of the insecticides.

The following communities elected secretaries that are now taking additional agreements from their neighboring landowners to complete communities and complete applications for initial fire ant control work.

THORSBY--F. F. Singley, Thorsby Tractor & Implement Co.

COLLINS CHAPEL--C. C. Carlton, Experiment Station Office.

UNION GROVE--Edwy Conway, Near Glass' Store, Jemison, Rt. 2.

JEMISON--L. C. Shields, Vo-Ag. Department, Jemison School.

FAIRVIEW -- Clyde Headley, Near Fairview Store, Clanton, Rt. 3.

CLANTON, Beat 4 farms--Mrs. Doris Glenn, County Agent's Office, Clanton.

PROVIDENCE--Beat 16 Mr. Baker at new store on left across from B-16 voting place.

PLETCHER--Hudson Crane and Oscare Sewell, Pletcher, Ala.

CONCORD--Ollie H. McDowell, McDowell's store on Higgins Ferry Road near Concord School.

Individuals serving as secretaries of fire ant control areas are doing so without compensation. Landowners in the various areas listed above are encouraged to drop by secretaries' residences or offices and complete applications as soon as possible.

An opportunity to cooperate in this program will be offered to other communities at meetings to be held Thursday and Friday, November 20th and 21st.

SELDEN TO REPRESENT US IN EUROPE

Rep. Armistead Selden, congressman from the 6th Alabama District, left on Thursday, November 13 for a two-week trip Europe, during which time he will represent the American government at two official functions.

Mr. Selden, a member of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs will travel by military plane with the other members of the official group. He goes directly to Paris where, as an official delegate, he will attend the seven-day Parliamentarian's Conference of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). Representatives from the other 14 NATO nations will also attend this important meeting.

From Paris, Rep. Selden will fly to Italy, where he will visit the U. S. Navy's celebrated Sixth Fleet. One of Selden's 6th District constituents, Admiral Charles R. (Cat) Brown of Tuscaloosa, has just relinquished command of this fleet and will assume the command of allied forces in South Europe January 1.

From Italy, Congressman Selden will go to London where he will attend on November 26 the redication of the American War Memorial Chapel. This memorial, located at historic St. Paul's Cathedral, will be dedicated by Queen Elizabeth II in memory of the thousands of British-based Americans who lost their lives during World War II.

Congressman Selden is one of nine members of the U. S. House of Representatives selected by Speaker Rayburn to represent the United States on these occasions.

Mrs. Selden will accompany the Alabama congressman on the trip. While she will travel in the plane assigned to carr ythe House members and their wives, her other expenses will be paid by Rep. Selden.

MAPLESVILLE MERCHANTS SUPPORT CHURCH PAGE

This week's County Church Calendar and message of "Faith" is sponsored largely by the merchants of Maplesville. Along with them however, in its customary spot is Spigener Funeral Home in Clanton.

These Maplesville business houses are fully aware of what faith means to you and your family and believe in cooperating fully with any effort in behalf of our community churches.

The Bank of Maplesville, Graham Lumber Company, J. P. Thomas Grocery, Brown Bros. Hdwe, and Latham Feed & Seed Co. along with Spigener Funeral Home in Clanton invite you to turn to page two of the News this week and see if your church is represented. If it isn't, how would you like to see it there? If you would, notify one of these businesses or direct to the Chilton County News and your church will be included.

You might also take a look at what these merchants offer you through their merchandising department. They are there for your benefit. Patronize your local merchants: It's Good Business!

BULLY FOR BILL

We were pleased to note the other day where a member of the present administrative body of the State of Alabama actually was commended for outstanding service to the people of his state.

It was Col Bill Lyerly, head of the Public Safety Department, and we certainly agree with the group which proclaimed him a very vital influence on the highway safety program of the State of Alabama.

It makes our heart glad that folks (at least some folks) can still "see" the good when it hits them square between the bifocals. Congratulations to the optometrists and to friend William who truly has done a splendid, rim-us job for the state during his tenure as Safety Director.

Transfusions Easier Now; But Your Blood Vitally Needed

Not many years ago, a doctor found himself struggling against many handicaps whenever one of his patients needed a blood transfusion.

Often the doctor had to set up his own blood collection agency in a hurry--and do it under the most adverse circumstances. He would have to track down prospective donors by telephone and make arrangements to have their blood tested. If the blood was needed because of a serious accident or some emergency, the doctor always was worried about the possibility that the blood might not be available in time to save the patient's life.

That method of collecting blood was complicated, time-consuming and costly.

Today, the American Red Cross has relieved doctors and patients in Chilton County of both the worry and the expense which was a part of the old method. When a patient needs blood in a hurry now, one call to the Birmingham Regional Blood Center will bring the blood to the doctor's hands. We know that the Red Cross will always have blood on hand when it is needed by our injured and sick --as long as the people in this county and all over the Region do their part by donating blood at least once a year.

The American Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at the First Methodist Church, Clanton, Ala., on Wednesday, November 26th from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. You are urged to support your Blood Program by giving your pint of blood this time!

THINGS We see and hear

by BOB

Had a pleasant call from Mrs. Earl Vaughn Saturday morning, who has recently moved to Clanton with her husband who is a new druggist at Wright's Drug Company. Mrs. Vaughn wanted to see the News so we obliged her by sending it to her. She's interested in getting acquainted around town and we sincerely hope that the townsfolk show them the courtesies they deserve as new members of our growing community. By the way, we do not know their home address but their P. O. box is 857.

The influence of your community press is evidenced many times in a detrimental way. The reason for this is oft times due to misrepresentation of the facts by someone interviewed by the reporter. Naturally the reporter is responsible for his actions and his words, but many times the party interviewed can give wrong information on wrong impressions which are construed by the reporter to be reliable. It is possible for the publicity derived from such a situation to be harmful in some ways. Not only must the reporter beware of false facts, but the good intentions of some folks can be harmful. What to do? Watch your intentions, boy!

SHOPPER: Are you supporting your community by supporting community merchants with your Christmas Shopping. Local merchants have gone deep this year to give you quality merchandise at competitive prices. If you disagree, all we can say is "you haven't been around lately". We know, because we deal with them every day and we see with our own eyes the wonderful stock for Christmas shoppers in Clanton this year. If you're in the habit of going elsewhere to shop, consider the savings at home this year. We think you'll be pleased with the results.

We have an apology to make to Mr. Leo Thompson. In a recent advertisement concerning Clanton Laundry and Cleaning Co. we spelled colors "CLOTHES". We looked it up in Webster's abbreviated version and sure enough he was right. We admit there is quite a difference in the spelling of the two words but the "colors" in your "clothes" will hold fast with that Sanitone service.

Something else bothering us, by George! Mr. Leo greeted us Monday morning with a "top 'o the mornin' to you". Boy, that made us feel good. We had seen no less than 20 persons already that day and his was the first optimistic greeting of the day. We too, feel the pangs of a Monday morning, but we are of the opinion that optimism on Monday is a sure cure for the blues that seem destined to accompany it, and you'll feel better for it come Tuesday.

SEEN ON THE SCENE: Wish you could have seen Mr. Grady Heflin on his front porch Sunday. Man he was takin' it easy. Must have just had a noble dinner 'cause he shore looked satisfied. Was even using some lumber (put there for expansion we presumee) to prop his feet on. All he needed to make it perfect was a mint julip and for all we know he had that, too!

A worn wrench can be restored to use by filing the teeth with a triangular file.

PUMPKIN PIE AND POLITICS

America's two most popular holiday desserts—pumpkin and mince pie—are much more than traditional holiday fare. During past centuries both have had political and religious implications.

Long before the Pilgrims observed our first Thanksgiving, politics entered into the eating of pumpkin pie in England in 1433. An act of Parliament that year forbade the eating of pumpkin pies by everyone below the rank of Baron. Prior to that they were sold by street vendors in early London. It was customary for the purchaser to stick his finger into the filling and pour some sweet juice into the opening. From this custom came the expression, "having a finger in the pie."

Such a small thing as the shape of a mince pie caused the Puritans to abolish, for several years, the observance of Christmas in the United States. In 1650, Colonial "pye bakers" produced the size of the hitherto huge mince pies. They began to make them smaller and baked them within a crust shaped like a manger.

This was too much for the Puritans. They outlawed the observance of Christmas because they thought that the manger-shaped pies were sacrilegious. But mince pie survived, and Christmas managed to outlive the controversial storm.

As many as 26 ingredients were used in the pumpkin and mince pies baked by the Pilgrims. Today's housewife doesn't have to look for the spices, herbs and other ingredients essential to the baking of holiday pies. Her baker supplies a finished product which truly can be termed a kingly dish, not only a Baronial delight.

Wes Gletty And The Constitution

Clanton, Alabama
Nov. 16, 1958

Dear Editor--

Under Hitler's rule people did not dare to call at the home of friends or gather at the home of neighbors. The Gestape was liable to burst in and take them all to the bastile, or to the gas chambers.

It makes me wonder if Bull Conner has ambitions of being a second Hitler. We are supposed to be living in the so called free world. in a Democracy. We have fought two world wars, to make the world free for Democracy. Our colored citizens have been drafted and taxed the same as white citizens to carry on these wars, and to keep up the cold war.

We hear much about Juvenile Delinquency, and many arguments as to the cause and remedy. How can we expect our Juveniles to respect any of our laws, when our adults and officials, even our Governors and Attorney's general, have no respect for our Constitution--which is the supreme law of our land--and of our Supreme Court? Neither do they have any respect for the sacred oath to their God, which they took on entering their office "To the best of their ability, to preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States". Such Hypocracy. Because a law or an article of the Constitution has been permitted to be violated for years, does not make it legal. We have had murders and robberies with us since history began, but it still does not make them legal. Is any one simple minded enough to believe that there is a legal way to violate laws

I for one, believe in Constitutional Government, and I believe one hundred percent in the Constitution of The United States. Every child should know the Constitution and what it contains. I have a limited supply of copies in booklet form, 32 Pages, which I will mail practically at cost. 20c Postpaid. Two dimes or five four cent stamps.

TRACING JEMISON RESIDENT

Chilton County News
Clanton, Alabama.

Sirs:

I am trying to get a copy of the obituary of a "Mrs. Waumbeam". I'm sorry I do not have much information on the person, not even her given name.

She passed away in either 1944 or 1945 in Jemison, Ala. I believe, an elderly woman, and is buried at one of the local cemeteries at Jemison. She was married to "Waumbeam" not to many years. Also had 3 children from a marriage to "Johnson". Childrens names were Melvin, Thomas and Bertus. Also two other children from a marriage to "Lites" Joe and Lola.

She had for many years lived in and around Jemison. So I believe most everyone knew her.

I know this isn't much information, but if you could find something on it, it would be greatly appreciated.

L. F. Johnson
Very sincerely,
423 1st Avenue

Forand Bill Is Socialistic Says Sudduth

Mr. Editor:

We in the hospital business still believe that the voluntary way is the ONLY way to provide Health Insurance here in the USA. The Forand Bill, which will be coming up again before the Congress, provides that Health care be an edded benefit of the Social Security program. We believe this to be Socialistic and that the Bill should be defeated. There are too many people already who are willing to "let the government do it" who do not share much of the expense of government.

We in America believe in Freedom; freedom to choose our doctor, freedom to choose our hospital. Health service provided by the government will take away this freedom.

Our job is to educate the people into providing health insurance themselves.

James N. Sudduth

A four-point program aimed at further increasing public acceptance of voluntary health care was outlined in Minneapolis October 12, by Ardell T. Everett, Chairman of the New Jersey state committee of the Health Insurance Council.

Speaking before the North Central Medical Conference. Mr. Everett called on the medical profession and the health insurance business to work together to preserve the freedom of health care.

Mr. Everett, who also is Second Vice-President of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, Newark, N. J., listed his four point program in this order:

1. Benefits and availability of voluntary health insurance must be expanded
2. Costs of health care must be controlled to the point that any increase can be justified to the public
3. Relationships between insurers and the providers of health services must be improved in the many areas of mutual interest
4. The public must be informed as to the advantages of voluntary health care and the dangers and cost of compulsory national health insurance.

Elaborating on his four points, Mr Everett said the availability of voluntary health insurance must be expanded even though over 123 million Americans have some form of protection against the costs of accidents or ill health. He gave examples of the insurance industry's "progress in offering broader benefits covering all areas of the practice of medicine" and then stated, "Much remains to be done and we are attempting to speed up the process."

Commenting on the control of health care costs, the insurance spokesman declared: "We believe that the medical profession in its organized bodies should and will take full actions necessary to correct any practices within the profession that eventually would lead to lay domination or public regulation of medicine in any form. Further, I believe that the average American is willing to pay for better prepaid medical care if he is assured that his premium money is being well spent."

Mr. Everett said the state committee program of the Health Insurance Council, established after a meeting of the trustees of the American Medical Association and several insurance executives, has begun work on the local level to improve relationships among medical societies, hospital groups and the nation's insurance companies.

SUICIDAL ATTEMPTS

The expression, "Suicides don't talk about it, just do it". is not true. Physicians in medical hospitals maintain that a large percentarge of suicides have shown one or more manifestations of a deep drive for self-destruction. These signs are not always obvious and the physician must be ever alert to the various abnormal ways in which patients behave and talk.

Patients with severe depressions. or those who develop unfounded feelings of self-accusation connected with an abiding sensation of guilt, are said to be those most likely to have suicidal thoughts. Their suffering is intense even if there exists no logical reason for their feeling, and they become submerged more and more deeply in morbid thoughts of suicide. In adition, when the patient has experience a dramatic or tragic death in the family, the predisposition toward suicide tends to be increased.

Many persons fail in a first attempt at suicide and information helpful to the mental patient can be gained from the would-be suicide's reaction. If he reacts with anger or disappointment that his act failed, it can be assumed that his intent is serious and that future attempts probably will be made. If the patient expresses relief at being rescued it is not likely that he will make further attempts.

There are three basic conscious or unconscious driving forces involved with the suicidal attempt: the yearning or hope for a great future satisfaction such as reunion in death with a lost loved one; hostility toward persons held to blame for present frustrations, which because of guilt, fear or or anxiety has become self-directed; and the feeling of hopelessness as to any betterment in life's situation or enviroment.

Physicians can frequently detect suicidal tendencies in mental patients and take steps to prevent the act. In this country, about 16,000 suicides are reported annually and, in addition, approximately 100,000 suicidal attempts are said to be made.

What can science possibly produce synthetically that can compare with the mouth-watering fragrance of fresh baked home-made bread?

There's a mellow old-fashioned house on my street, and as I passed by the other day there wafted from the kitchen an aroma that sped me back to "baking day" in my childhood home. Around to the backdoor I went, to find my neighbor, "Grandma" Eastland, taking loaves from her big oven and buttering the tops. She made me take a warm loaf home. Made me, did I say?

I'm in favor, sure, of every labor and time saving device today's housewives can get. But I wonder sometimes if they themselves, modern and young in heart though they may be, don't often experience an aromatic nostalgia — especially when they're tending the pop-up toaster!

A house is just a place to stay.
A floor and roof above it,
And it will always be that way
Until the day you love it. . . .
A mansion it could be, or shack,
But Home it's not, a minute;
The builder should just take it back
Unless your heart is in it.

ARE YOU RETIRING SOON

Are you retiring soon? If so, will you need your first social security check as soon as you can get it?

According to L. E. Brannon, Acting Manager of the Birmingham, Alabama Social Security Office, applicans can receive checks as early as the third of the month following the first month for which payment is made. For example, if yor are entitled to your first payment for the month of September 1958, you can receive the payment as early as October 3, 1958.

In order to receive such prompt payment the local office at 1710 First Avenue North, Birmingham, Alabama. should be contacted before you retire. A claim can be filed as much as three months before you reach 65 years of age if you are a man. or 62 years of age if you are a woman.

Early filing means that the necessary evidence to support your claim can be gathered together and certified or sent off to the payment center with your claim before the month you are to begin receiving payment. You can help speed the process by bringing to the office the necessary evidence when you come in to claim benefits. Phone the office by calling FA3-3421 and ask what you will need to bring with you to claim your social security benefits. It might save you a second trip.

DON'T GRAZE ALFALFA TOO SOON

First-year alfalfa looks mighty pretty and green in the fields now. It would almost make you think it was ready to graze, but API Extension Agronomist Bill Andrews warned farmers not to be tempted.

"It just costs too much to establish an acre in alfalfa to shorten the life of the stand and cut down on over-all yield by grazing too early," he emphasized.

"If you mow or graze first-year alfalfa before Christmas you reduce your hay yield 25 percent or more--and when you thin out the stand, weeds take over."

An established stand of a year or more can be grazed after frost without reducing total yield or damaging the stand. Andrews pointed out that grazing now will cut down on grazing or hay yield next summer, of course, but overall yield will be about the same.

On established stands of alfalfa, leave the last cutting of hay before frost. Andrews said this means alfalfa should not be cut for hay or grazed from the first of September to frost to allow the plants to build up a reserve food supply for a more vigorous. longer-lasting stand.

Whether or not to graze an old stand after frost depends on the needs of the invidual farmer. But as for alfalfa planted last September, Andrews emphatically declared, "Don't graze until about next March. Lives of more alfalfa stands are shortened by bad harvesting practices than almost any other thing."

Alabama has about 25,000 acres in alfalfa. Something like five times that acreage would be more in line with needs, Andrews believes.

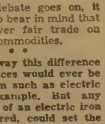
WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

In the next session of Congress there will be a big battle on the proposed national fair trade law.

In fact, a new lobby to fight this measure has been set up in Washington headed by [illegible] Alex Ackerman, formerly with the Federal Trade Commission. So far it has not been determined who is bankrolling this operation. There is some talk along the Potomac that the Japs, other foreign interests are behind this.



C. W. Harder

While the debate goes on, it is important to bear in mind that this is all over fair trade on brands, not commodities.

Here's the way this difference works. No prices would ever be set on an item such as electric irons, for example. But any manufacturer of an electric iron if he so desired, could set the fair trade price on his branded product. Other makers could if they wish sell their product for much less.

Now a manufacturer may want to build into his electric iron special features and materials that makes his product the 24 carat brand in the field. He may feel that there are people who would rather pay more for a quality item, fully guaranteed, and for which service is available from authorized dealers.

Now, he also knows that his dealers will not sell his iron as fast as the cheap items on the market. His product is built for particular people, and thus he must have a means of protecting his dealer's profits so that the dealer will continue to handle a high quality item despite its relative slow movement.

* * *

This was the classic practice before fair trade laws were largely sabotaged mostly by so-called discount houses.

Now obviously, if a manufacturer cannot hold dealers to sell a quality item because they can't get a profit commensurate with the slow moving aspects of a high priced quality item, he then only has one recourse. That is to build the cheapest item he can produce.

So, there is nothing that would please the Japs and other producers of goods with sweat shop labor than to have no fair trade prices on any brand so that there will be no quality American made goods in the market.

Thus, if in every line there is no standard of comparison, the consumer will find that there is no quality difference between a shoddy American made item and a shoddy Jap made article.

So, from the consumer's standpoint the issue really boils down to this. Shall American consumers be offered a choice of quality brands along with plentiful offerings of cheap merchandise, or shall their choice be confined, like in Moscow, to nothing but cheap shoddy merchandise.

If the issue is decided on the latter basis, the future looms quite clear. With the constant breaking down of the protective tariffs by government, if all merchandising in America is brought down to a price basis alone, eventually the only thing the American consumer will be able to buy will be cheap, shoddy foreign made items. And that substantial element of U. S. industry built on producing quality merchandise will sink into oblivion.

Speech Club Celebrates Education Week, 14th

One of the most informative and pressive observances of Ameri- n Education Week was "A Skit a Day's Work" presented by rs. Curry Thomas' Better Speech ub on November 14, 1958 at the anton Elementary School.

Previously the parents and rela- es had been invited in a letter om their boys and girls. Each itor was presented with a badge red and white, the club's col- .

George Tucker acted as host for e day, and in the beginning inted out the furnishings of the om and various examples of pu- 's work.

Offi rs of the club are: Presi- t Jan Wade; Vice-President, e Hayes; Secretary, Robert Mul- s; Treasurer, Faye Williams.

The president gave a brief welcome, followed by an inspiring de- tional and prayer by the class, l by Morgan Cole.

Arithmetic work demonstrated by nda Holly and James Littleton th Faye Williams as the leader. Beverely Hicks, Judith Little, ran Scott, Jerry Fulmer, Sandra ne Patty Williams and Jimmy Ed- rds explained "Social Studies."

Sharron Jones told about penmanship and Virginia Head made several remarks about good English.

A group of pupils gave a demonstration in rhythm, accompanied at the piano by Annette Gay following Jo Haye's remarks explaining that indoor play was for fun and rhythm and outdoor play was for exercise and skill.

Jean Howell told about the rules of the club.

Mark Arckie Cleckler, Sharron Jones, Robert Mullins demonstrated spelling and Mike Johnson told about Science.

For our musical enjoyment, Sharron Jones and Annette Gay gave a piano duet, Beverely Hicks and Robert Mullins each played a solo. The class harmonized "BELL Tones" and Tramp Away" and then sang "All Things Bright And Beautiful" accompanied by Beverly Hicks.

Health was explained by Linda Holly; reading by Brenda Mims; reports from the encyclopedia by Sharron Jones and Gayla Wyatt; reading from "Young Citizen" were Sherry Cox, Charlotte Clackler and Annette Gay and brief book reports were given by Janice Traywick, Rufran Smith and Linda Holly.

Kenneth Jackson told about club work, after which several boys and girls recited poems with expression. The skit was concluded with the class singing the Club song accompanied by Faye Williams.

Particularly interesting was the book of stories with illustrations, by class members, specimens of penmanship and art work of the pupils displayed in the room.

Many of the thirty-five parents and visitors attending, expressed their appreciation to Mrs. Thomas for the progress their child had made in the sixth grade.

A Year-Round Christmas Present

Christmas presents can be large or small, inexpensive or fabulous in price, but the best ones are the gifts that last—those that can be used and enjoyed every day. The Lennox Home Comfort Institute has come up with the ideal Christmas suggestion: Give your family a year-round present and, at the same time, insure their health and happiness. Sound like Utopia? Yes, but actually the gift is quite a real one—all-season air conditioning.

Lennox suggests that if it isn't feasible for Santa to put the actual unit under the tree on Chistmas morning, that you give the family the present in the form of a written resolution for 1959 and put it under the tree. The resolution: To install central air conditioning in 1959. For Mom . . . thanks to filtered air, less housework and fewer cleaning bills. For baby . . . due to temperature and humidity control, longer naps and fewer colds. For hayfever-ridden Sis . . . freedom from allergy-irritating dusts. For Granny . . . to help her sleep, fresh air without annoying street noises. And lastly, for Dad . . . the workroom he's always wanted in the once-blistering hot attic, plus the pleasure of watching his family greet him well and happy every evening.

Santa is bound to approve of a present like this.

Remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how He said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."—(The Acts 20, 35.)

Often, when spontaneously bestowing a friendly smile upon a lonely person or a word or deed of help and encouragement to one in distress, we have been wondrously rewarded by such an inner satisfaction as a fortune in dollars could not equal. Indeed we are blessed when we give, unselfishly, and in love.

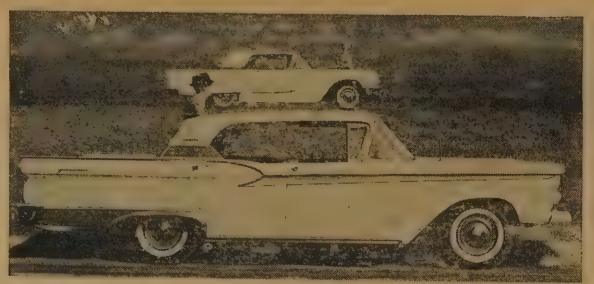
New Ford Sport Series -- Galaxie



A NEW SERIES in the 1959 Ford line— —the Galaxie— —captures more of the taste and styling flavor of the Thunderbird than any other Ford model. Compared here, the Galaxie Town Victoria in the foreground bears a strong resemblance to the 1959 four-passenger Thunderbird — — especially in the roof area, yet it is priced to sell only $48 above comparable models in the Ford Fairlane 500 series. The new luxury series includes six different body styles and will be available at Ford dealerships in early December.

"And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me." — (St. John 12:32.)

This statement of Jesus signified that he should be lifted up to die upon the cross. It also signified that he should be lifted up from death into life, and from life here into life in eternity. And it is significant today that wherever we. his followers, lift him up. Christ continues to draw men unto him.

Panthers Win Over Mustangs 15 to 12

(By Hubert Ray)

We all enjoyed a wonderful football game between Jemison and Isabella at Jemison Friday night. It was a great one and a sad one. Sad because for the Jemison Panthers, it ended a great football season and for some wonderful boys, it ended football playing. These boys are as follows Harry Benson, Charles Collins, J. T. Glass, John Lewis, Wayne Martin, Zane Martin, Donald Owens, Bill Ray, Jerry Robinson. They have played great football and have been coached by two great coaches, Otts and Lowery.

Isabella was first to score when James Conway caught a pass in the end zone thrown by Leonard Coggins in the first quarter. Coggins scored for the Mustangs in the second quarter giving them a 12-0 lead.

The Panthers first touchdown came late in the second quarter by Donald Owens on a quarterback sneak. Jerry Robinson kicked for the extra point. Jemison's next points came when Isabella gained possession of the ball on their six inch line and Charles Collins made the tackel behind the goal line for a safety, making the score 12 to 9 in the third quarter.

George Plier scored for the Panthers in the fourth quarter on a beautiful 40 yard run leaving the final score, Jemison 15, Isabella12. Jemison closes the season with six wins and three loses. Winning over Verbena. Calera, Plantersville, Marbury, Billingsley and Isabella. They lost to Montevallo, Maplesville, and Clanton. This gave Jemison 120 points scored and gave up 105 points.

$3,437,267 PAID TO NONWORKERS IN OCTOBER

Payments during October to jobless workers covered by the Alabama Unemployment Compensation Law totalled $3,437,267, Arthur D. Kelly, Director of the Department of Industrial Relations announced today. This amount included $1-142,895 paid under the temporary unemployment compensation program which extends duration for workers who have exhausted benefits under the regular program.

Payments under the regular unemployment compensation program, which have shown a continuous month-to-month decrease since March 1958, totalled $2,294,372. During October a year ago, $1,488,097 was paid from the State's Trust Fund.

Final payments were issued to 4,343 persons, bringing to 47,016 the total number of jobless workers who have exhausted benefit rights since the first of the year.

Initial claims, denoting new unemployment, were filed by 16,951 persons, about 200 fewer than were filed during September. Claims for continued unemployment dropped to 124,010, some 3,100 below the September figure.

Unemployed veterans and federal workers were paid $154,619 during October as compared with $184,-349 during the preceding month. These programs were financed entirely from wederal funds.

The Alabama State Employment Service made 8,518 nonfarm job placements and 5,127 farm placements during the month. At the end of October, 54,086 jobseekers were registered with local offices of the Employment Service.

ARTIFICIAL INSEMINATION HELPS IMPROVE HERDS

There should be more quality dairy animals in Alabama next year, since more dairymen have become interested in artificial breeding.

Last year about 20,000 cows were bred artificially in the state This year, according to API Extension Dairyman John Parrish, indications are that the figure may reach 30,-000. This trend for Alabama dairymen is in keeping with experimental research, thus showing the value of the production - proved sire.

"If we go back to study the history of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's dairy herd at Beltsville, Md., we find interesting facts that prove the artificial breeding program is sound," Parrish continued.

"The Beltsville herd was started in 1917. After studying the history of the cows and sires in the herd the U. S. D. A. pointed out that buying production - proved sires is a more reliable method than studying pedigrees. He also said that while pedigree analysis was for many years the basis for selecting herd sires, its over-all effects are not too impressive.

"Occasionally, a dairyman using artificial breeding says he's getting a great variation in milk production among daughters. But such variations in production increases are pretty well leveled out by the third proved-sire generation, according to a study of 400 records."

Artificial insemination services are available in 53 Alabama counties. Parrish urges dairymen who are interested in this method of breeding to see their county agents. Your county agent can tell you how to contact a technician.

FALL CALVES ARE MORE PROFITABLE

Fall-dropped calves are more profitable than those dropped in spring and early summer.

Stockyard sales receipts indicate that Alabama cattlemen are still selling too many calves in the fall of the year, says API Extension Cattleman R. C. Farquhar. These calves are bing sold when they weight approximately 400 pounds, which shows that they are born in the spring and early summer.

Research from several Alabama experiment substations proves conclusively that fall-dropped calves are more profitable. Calves that are dropped in the fall months, explained Farquhar, are selling for $50 more per head than those born in the spring. When a calf is born in the fall and winter months, it is large enough to use the additional milk flow its mother gets from spring grazing. In addition, the calf is able to convert spring grass into pounds.

Fall-dropped calves are large enough to sell in the latter part of June or the first of July, when there is a strong demand for fat slaughter calves. Selling calves at this time also lessens the number of cattle grazing during summer months when the grass may become short. Too, the cow can rebuild her body for the winter months.

There are numerous other reasons for a fall breeding program, noted Farquhar, such as the fact that cattle grow much better in cool months than they do in the summertime. There is also less danger of the cattle having external and internal parasites.

If you want September-dropped calves, Farquhar advises turning bulls in with the cow herd about the first of December. Or if you find October calves to be more profitable, breed in January.

Fight TB With Christmas Seals

Mrs. R. M. Tucker Chairman of the 1958 Christmas Seal Sale of Chilton County, announced today that Christmas Seals were mailed to homes throughout the county on Friday, November 14th.

The chairman said, "This year the Seals are most attractive. We'll enjoy using them to seal our holiday greetings and decorate our packages. But, as we all know, their decorative value is the least of it.

"The dollars we spend for Christmas Seals fight tuberculosis in many different ways. Here in Chilton County we spend our Christmas Seal money on a balanced program of TB education. Of course, there never seems to be enough money to do everything that could and should be done.

"There is one part of the TB contral program in which we all share when we make our Christmas Seal contributions. That is medical research, the hope for future eradication of TB. Knowledge about TB gained from research has increased rapidly in recent years, but there are still large gaps to be filled. Two fundamental problems. . .the underlying cause of the virulence of the TB germ and the mechanism of human resistance to it. .must be solved. The great dream is to find some reliable preventive that could be given to every one of us.

"Chilton County TB association will continue to join with other TB associations throughout the land and work diligently to make this dream come true.

"You can join in the fight and have a part in this great service to humanity through your purchase of Christmas Seals."

A Salute to
MARSHALL COUNTY
The "Vacation Land" of North Alabama . . .

Named for the first Chief Justice of the Supreme Court — JOHN MARSHALL — Marshall county was created in 1836. Guntersville is the flourishing county seat.

While this county points with pride to its agricultural and mineral wealth, the rapid strides of industry resulting from TVA developments on the Tennessee River have spearheaded economic progress.

Because of these nationally-known dams and lakes — and thousands of miles of beautiful shore line and navigable waters — Marshall county has become a mecca for tourists, fishermen, boating enthusiasts and vacationists. These visitors annually spend thousands of dollars.

Another big "spender" in our state is the Brewing Industry. Besides its local purchases, last year 23,500 residents of Alabama received income directly through the distribution and sale of the beverages of moderation — beer and ale. This is only one of many contributions the Brewing Industry is making to the economic welfare of our people and the forward march of Alabama.

In this friendly, freedom-loving land of ours Beer belongs... Enjoy it

YOU MUST HAVE LOVE

by ORAL ROBERTS

Six months before I was born, my mother was called to a neighbor's home to pray for their little child.

At that time Francis Engles was 5½ years old. He had taken the flu, which extended into pneumonia. His voice was raspy and the child rattled and wheezed, so inflamed were his lungs. His father never expected him to live through the night.

The boy was healed that night, at about 8:30 or 9 o'clock. His high fever left him immediately. He had not eaten for three days, but within ten minutes after prayer he was sitting up and asking for food. The next morning he joined his family for the first time in several days at the breakfast table. With childlike faith he accepted the healing of God offered to him, and his recovery was rapid.

So many people do not know how to accept the love of God because they do not know how to have childlike faith. We complicate things as we grow older.

Mr. Engles recently visited the Abundant Life International Headquarters in Tulsa, Oklahoma, for the first time. He is now 45 years of age, weighs 205 pounds and towers 6 feet 2 inches in height. Since his healing 40 years ago, he has enjoyed excellent health. He has retained and lived by his original childlike faith in the goodness of God and in the power of the Saviour of us all, Jesus of Nazareth.

Mr. Engles is a successful paving and grading contractor at Seaside, California. With his wife and two young daughters, he lives at Pacific Grove, California. He is a trustee in his church.

Before his visit to Oklahoma, my parents visited him in California. They had not seen each other for 38 years, and it was a grand reunion. Francis' mother, Mattie May Engles, lives at San Jose, California. She is now 66, but her faith in God is as young as ever. She has been a widow for about 40 years ago my mother prayed for the deliverance of her son. While my mother visited her in 1958, Mrs. Engles had an opportunity to return the honor of prayer.

A car door slammed on my mother's left hand, crushing it badly. The pain was so great that both women cried, but my mother said, "Don't cry, Mattie. Let's believe God. Pray for me."

They went into the house and Mrs. Engles prayed. The loving, healing hand of Jesus touched the swollen, bleeding, pain-racked hand of my mother. The pain left it, and she fell asleep. There was no more pain. The injury cleared up gradually, and within a week there was no sign that the hand had ever been crushed. Did not Jesus say, "They shall recover"?

Our lives are interwoven with the lives of each other, and it is necessary that we pray for one another. More especially, it is necessary to love one another.

In love, my mother prayed for her neighbor's child, and in love the neighbor prayed for her. In love God healed them both.

God is love, and if you are to have God, you must have love.

A Vicar's discovery!

New Best-Seller Came From Author's Experiences In War-Blitzed Church

"I feel my present particular calling is to help ordinary people to understand the Scriptures and the teaching of Christ by my writing."

So says J. B. Phillips, an English clergyman, teacher, journalist and author—around whom there is a widening circle of legend, international discussion and readership that today numbers millions.

In large measure, the "ordinary people" with whom Phillips is most vitally concerned are: (1) high school-age youngsters, with their special needs and many distractions; and (2) the "unconscious Christians," as he describes them, whose indifference to the church is only magnified by empty, token gestures and occasional attendance.

W. W. II Turning Point

It was as Vicar of The Church of the Good Shepherd in London during World War II that Phillips found a new and effective technique to influence these hard-to-reach groups.

At the close of youth group meetings, it had been his custom to read passages from St. Paul's letters in the King James Authorized Version of the Bible. Interest was polite, but fleeting. Phillips realized that most of his young people simply didn't understand "Bible language," and became convinced it was a stumbling block for many others as well.

Consequently, Phillips began translating St. Paul's letter to the Colossians into words more familiar to the people of his church. The response was overwhelming. In seeking to change a sluggish attitude toward the New Testament, Phillips had virtually discovered a message that fitted the times.

The bombings destroyed Phillips' church, but he continued translating the Epistles whenever time permitted. At war's end, the work that was to rank J. B. Phillips high among the religious writers of this century was well underway.

New Testament Completed

In the early fall of 1958, publication of "The New Testament in Modern English" (Macmillan: $6) was announced in the U.S. Less than a month later, it was on the nation's best-seller lists, even though the four sections of the book had each been published earlier in separate volumes.

Much of the interest, both here and abroad, in J. B. Phillips, his technique and his viewpoints, can only be explained by personal statements like these:

"In translating, I am not the author of anything. I simply put down on paper what I understand the Holy Spirit was saying long ago through the first writers."

"I attempted, as far as I could, to think myself into the heart and mind of Paul, for example, or of Mark or of John the Divine. Then I tried further to imagine myself as each of the New Testament authors writing his particular message for the people of today."

"Closely allied to intelligent Bible study lies Christian reading. It is a profound mistake to suppose that the Holy Spirit ceased to inspire when New Testament completed."

Looking Ahead

In the spring of 1957, J. B. Phillips was installed as Canon Prebendary of Chichester Cathedral in England.

With his wife and daughter, Jennifer, who attends a preparatory school, he now lives in Dorset, a small English Channel town.

Along with his church work, Phillips manages a heavy schedule of writing and speaking engagements, yet finds time to enjoy such varied hobbies as painting, radio, hi-fi and motoring.

Within the last 10 years, over a million copies of Phillips' books have been sold in the U.S. alone. His complete translation of the New Testament is expected to greatly increase this record in the Christmas gift seasons to come. And, naturally, the busy Vicar is already at work on a new manuscript.

J. B. Phillips:

Just as you received Christ, so go on living in him — in simple faith. Grow out of him as a plant grows out of the soil it is planted in, becoming more and more sure of the faith as you were taught it, and your lives will overflow with joy and thankfulness. Be careful that nobody spoils your faith through intellectualism or high-sounding nonsense.

King James:

(Colossians II, 6-8) As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him:

Rooted and built up in him, and stablished in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving. Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ.

TO NON-WORKERS — NEARLY 3¼ MILLION IN OCTOBER

Payments during October to jobless workers covered by the Alabama Unemployment Compensation Law totalled $3,437,267, Arthur D. Kelly, Director of the Department of Industrial Relations announced today. This amount included $1-142,895 paid under the temporary unemployment compensation program which extends duration for workers who have exhausted benefits under the regular program.

Payments under the regular unemployment compensation program, which have shown a continuous month-to-month decrease since March 1958, totalled $2,294,372. During October a year ago, $1,488,097 was paid from the State's Trust Fund.

Final payments were issued to 4,343 persons, bringing to 47,016 the total number of jobless workers who have exhausted benefit rights since the first of the year.

Initial claims, denoting new unemployment, were filed by 16,951 persons, about 200 fewer than were filed during September. Claims for continued unemployment dropped to 124,010, some 3,100 below the September figure.

Unemployed veterans and federal workers were paid $154,619 during October as compared with $184,-349 during the preceding month. These programs were financed entirely from wederal funds.

A Square Deal for Dogs

Housing standards go under inspection
Whenever there comes any kind of election.
With every bounce of the political ball
New homes rise where tenements fall.
But neither politics, laws, or what-have-you protect Dog houses in the country from a state of neglect.
Leaky-roofed, ramshackled, they stand 'till they tumble
And the tenants just bear it with nary a grumble.
But Dog Week's a-coming . . . new homes are at bay
For our four-footed friends, thanks to FHA.
F stands for FRISKIES, the H is for HOUSING,
A for the AUTHORITY that FRISKIES is spousing.
During DOG WEEK all owners are called to heel
To turn do-it-yourselfers, with this fervent appeal.
Hear ye, professionals and all you unskilled,
A dog house is ever so easy to build.
From cinder blocks, lumber, cement and some nails
Come homes that bring thanks via glad wagging tails.

FOLKS and THINGS About Town

by Ben

BIRMINGHAM is a growing city. Sub-divisions are mushrooming in every part of the city but if our Little city had some streets in the condition that exist in some of her so called thoroughfares the citizens would run the Mayor and Councilmen out of town.

CHARLES WYATT who operated the ferry over the Coosa river was in to see us the past week. Mr. Wyatt is 74 years old and has operated the old ferry for the past 37 years. He lives within one mile of where he was born on Titus Rt. 2. yet we bet he has travelled a million miles just back and forth across the old river. In 37 years Mr. Wyatt could tell some interesting tales of experiences on the ferry.

SPEAKING of ferries we have a dedication coming up this next month. The new bridge will be dedicated in mid-December. Watch for reports as to the plans.

THE small boy was bored on a long trip. Suddenly he turned and said to his father: "I wish you would let Mother drive--it's more exciting".

POSTMASTER Luther Bean passes along a few hints for your Christmas mailing and we quote: "Please be sure to buy your stamps in advance and place them on your cards and letters before putting them in the box for collection. The postal regulations require that patrons stamp all greeting cards and letter mail during the month of December. Your carrier has a supply of stamps and you may buy them from him'. Now by granny that means you gotta do your own licking for the next month, but if you are like us the postal stamp isn't the only thing that will get a licking between now and the First of the year.

SAW where the husband got so sick he couldn' stand it any longer so he told his better half he didn't have anything to live for, anyway. "What do you mean you have nothing to live for? The house isn't paid for, the television isnt paid for, the car isn't paid for. . . ."

MRS J. F. Apperson has a flock of one chicken, or that is, had a flock of chicken. The other day while Mrs. Apperson was away a dog got after her flock and caught it. Horace Dennis took chase but couldn't overtake the thief so Claude Little joined in the chase and caught the dog. They saved the chicken but too late. Mrs. Apperson had to kill it anyway. Now, what she thinks is that somebody has a mighty smart dog--sending him out to catch their Thanksgiving dinner for them.

HAD a phone call Monday night asking us to correct a statement that those arrested in the recent arson case lived in the Providence community. Well we didn't say they did. In fact the article we wrote didn't mention Providence Community anywhere in it. We misunderstood the name of the party calling and after we checked our file we call the gentleman back who we understood it to be and he said he had never heard of the case -- He said he didn't even know what we were talking about. That left us sorta high and dry cause we didn't have anybody to fuss with. And too, it made us feel kinda foolish--and that ain't hard. Anyway to whomever called, we didn't say what you think we did--check our last weeks paper.

Public Office Closed Holidays

The Office of the Superintendent of Education will be closed Thursday, Friday and Saturday for the Thanksgiving Holidays.

JAYCEES HELP ON HIGHWAYS DURING HOLIDAYS

Fifteen Paycee organizations in Alabama will join the Highway Patrol in a state-wide safety program during the Thanksgiving holiday, according to State President David Barksdale.

Barksdale said the Jaycees and the Patrol will set up courtesy check points over the state for a simultaneous, one-h-our check.

State Safety Director Bill Lyerly has offered the full cooperation of the Highway Patrol, the Jaycees' president said.

Literature will be given motorists as they stop at the check-points which will merely say:

"Thank you for driving carefully. We wish you a happy holiday and a safe journey to your destination."

Believing that "scare" campaigns promoting safety are ineffective, the Jaycees are trying this new approach. Barksdale said.

"It will be the aim of the Alabama Jaycees to encourage safe driving by the positive approach," he said. "This approach, coupled with the concentrated effort, may help keep the driving public safety minded."

Cotton Acreage To Be Alloted Soon

Chilton County growers will receive official notice of their 1959 farm acreage allotments for cotton in the next few days. The notices are now being mailed by the County Agricultural Stablization and Conservation office.

Cotton acreage allotments for Chilton County farms have been determined by the County ASC Committee in accordance with the law and the regulations issued by the Secretary of Agriculture. In 1959, two allotments for upland cotton will be established for each farm, and if marketing quotas are in effect each farm operator will have an opportunity to choose the one he wants to comply with and to register his choice at the County ASC Office. If he elects the "regular"--Choice (A)--Allotment and complies with it, he will be eligible for price support at the full level available--not less than 80 percent of parity for 1959.

If he elects the Choice (B) allotment, (which is 40 percent larger than the Choice (A) allotment and complies with it, he will be eligible for price support at a lower level--75 percent less than under Choice (A).

If marketing quotas are not in effect, only "regular" allotments will be available and price support will be at 50 percent of parity, as directed by law.

The Chairman explained that the national allotment and reserve of 16,310,000 acres available for distribution is first apprportioned among states and the state allotment among counties. The county allotments are the distributed among farms on which cotton was planted or regarded as planted in any one of the past 3 years, with a small acreage reserved for specified uses. The minimum farm allotment is the smaller of the farm's 1958 allotment or 10 acres.

Farmers who do not intend to operate a farm for which a 1959 cotton allotment is established should immediately return the official allotment notice to the County ASC Office so that it can be sent to the person who will operate the farm next year. Cotton allotments are established for specific farms and may not be transferred by the operator or other producer from one farm to another.

Any changes in the land to be included in the farm for which the allotment is made should be reported to the County ASC Committee. Farm operators likewise are asked to check with the County ASC Office regarding any other question about the farm on which the allotment is established.

SELDEN REPORTS FROM PARIS ON NATO

(Editor's note: Congressman Armistead Selden was appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives as a delegate to the Fourth Annual Conference of NATO Parliamentarians which met in Paris, France last week. In the article that follows, the 6th District Congressman gives his personal report on the NATO Conference.)

I am writing you this report from Paris, France, where I have been a member of the United States delegation to the fourth annual conference of NATO Parliamentarians. For the past week we have met daily here in this famous city to exchange ideas with legislators from the 14 countries who are our partners in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Most of us will remember how important it was almost a decade ago that the 15 countries of the North Atlantic community joined hands as partners to halt the expanding threat of Communism which was sweeping toward western civilization from the aggressively ruthless Soviet Union. We recollect with horror how former friendly countries such as Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, and Iceland fell before the onslaught of one by one, all completely defenseless. So, in 1949, just when the European picture seemed virtually hopeless, NATO was born, and the military deterrent to this threat was established.

The many functions of NATO are carried out by the executive agencies of member governments. Our particular conference, however, gives representatives of the legislative branches of these governments a chance to review NATO's problems and the methods used in carrying out its tasks, and especially what its requirements may be for the future. This conference also provides a unique opportunity to learn to understand each other's problems, to discuss common aims and to promote cooperation. A singular advantage is thereby gained by any legislator who is selected by his government to learn first-hand the tremendous importance of NATO.

Briefing sessions, followed by question and answer periods, were among this conference's highlights. Speakers have included Gen. Lauris Norstad, the Supreme Allied Commander in Europe; Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, Commanding General of the U. S. Ordnance Missile Command, which is located in Huntsville, Ala.; Dr. Franz-Josef Strauss, the German Federal Republic's Defense Minister; Paul-Henri Spaak, NATO's Secretary General, and others who hold important positions in the free world.

U. S. DELEGATION

Representing the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives were two delegations, chosen by the Vice President and Speaker Rayburn, respectively. The Senate delegation, headed by Sen. Theodore F. Green (D-R. I.), includes Styles Bridges (R-N. H.), Everett Dirksen (R-Ill.), Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), Thomas H. Kuchel (R-Calif.), Henry M Jackson (D-Wash.), Jacob K. Javits (R-N. Y.), and Herman E Talmadge (D-Ga.).

The House delegation is headed by Rep. Wayne L. Hays (D-Ohio). Others, besides myself are George McGovern (D-S.D.), Frank E. Smith (D-Miss.), Isidore Dollinger (D-N. Y.), Gordon Canfield (R-N. J.), R J Corbett (R-Pa.) Jackson E. Betts (R-Ohio), and Karl M LeCompe (R-Ia.).

In the NATO Parliamentarians' Conference, even as in our own Congress, we use the system of careful deliberation of all subjects through the committee process. It is in this field of debate and analysis that the resolutions are prepared for reporting to the entire assembly of delegates for its consideration. Four committees were extremely active as the conference moved along with its sessions. They handled all questions relating to importantly current military, political, scientific, an economic subjects, before these questions were finally debated and voted on in open session.

I should point out here that no action of the conference commits any member country. It must be noted, however, that when reports are made back in the respective parliaments of the representatives members, they have been fully explored with intelligent and realistic discussion and consideration. It is with such knowledge that all delegate-legislators are equipped to meet the problems of NATO as are associated with their respective governments.

No other conclusion could be possibly advanced than to say that the Parliamentarians' Conference is of valuable assistance in the formulation of legislative policy as is affects the great Alliance of North Atlantic countries.

Perfect Thanksgiving

There's "food for thought" in a Thanksgiving Day visit to your house of worship

TODAY far too many of us think of Thanksgiving in terms of food and football—overlooking the fact that there is so much more food offered than that which is placed on the family table. For there is much "food for thought" as well.

Thanksgiving is a time to take stock of life's blessings . . . to take a bright-eyed child on your knee and talk to him quietly of things that really matter . . . of his great American heritage and the promise it holds for him. It's a time to take your whole family to your church or synagogue for an hour of prayer and thanks that will make your holiday mean so much more.

True, our lives are far removed from those of the Pilgrim Fathers. We live in the uncertainty of the Atomic Age. But we also live in the abundance of 20th Century America. Has any one of us so much or so little that he cannot find room or time in his heart for thanks?

This Thanksgiving, why not take your family to your church or synagogue? Wherever you are . . . whatever your beliefs may be . . . take time to offer your word of thanks.

Cotton Growers To Vote Dec 15th On Marketing Crops

The referendum on upland cotton marketing quotas to be held throughout cotton-producing areas on December 15, 1958, will be the thirteenth time growers have registered their choice on how they want to market their crop, Elmore B. Roberts, Chairman of the State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said today.

Marketing quotas have been in effect continuously for the last five crops. The first vote on cotton marketing quotas was held in March, 1938, and the last previous cotton referendum was in December, 1957. In the last vote, 92.9 percent of the farmers voting expressed approval of using the quotas for the 1958 cotton crop. At least two thirds of the farmers voting must favor quotas before they may continue in effect for 1959.

Under legislative provisions, the Secretary of Agriculture must proclaim a national marketing quota and a national acreage allotment for upland cotton whenever he finds that the total supply exceeds the normal supply.

At the time quotas was proclaimed, prospective supplies of upland cotton for the 1958-59 marketing year were estimated at 20.4 million running bales, including an August 1, 1958 carryover of 8.4 million bales, 1958 crop of 11.9 million bales (September estimate) and estimated imports of 60,000 bales. The "normal supply" figure of almost 16 million bales included estimated domestic consumption of 7.8 million bales and exports of 4.5 million bales, plus a 30 per cent "carryover" reserve of 3.7 million bales. Thus the prospective total supply for 1958-59 exceeds the normal supply by about 4.4 million bales, and quotas had to be proclaimed for the 1959 crop of upland cotton.

Marketing quotas operate through acreage allotments. In 1959, if quotas are approved in the referendum, farm operators will have an opportunity to elect a choice between (A) complying with their regular farm allotments and being eligible for the full price support available, or (B) complying with a farm allotment which is 40 percent larger and being eligible for price support at a level 15 percent of parity lower than under the first choice. Farm operators will be informed after the referendum of the proper time for registering their choice at the County ASC Office, if quotas are approved.

Under a quota program, growers who do not exceed their chosen cotton allotments may market free of [illegible] grower who exceeds the chosen cotton acreage allotment for his farm will be subject to a marketing quota penalty of 50 percent of parity on the farm's excess production. If quotas are not approved in the referendum, there will be noquota or penalties in effect for the 1959 upland cotton crop, only the "regular" allotments will be available, and price support on the crop will be at 50 percent of parity, as directed by law.

NEW PLANTS FROM OLD IN YOUR GARDEN

Chemical weed control machines, and other tractor spraying machines, are precision equipment. Such equipment requires special care at storage time.

If the spraying equipment is to be properly stored for the winter. Follow these suggestions.

First. the entire sprayer should be flushed with warm, soapy water and rinsed with clear water. Dismantle the equipment and drain the tank, pump, valves, hoses and pipes and nozzles. All water must be removed to prevent freezing.

Piston and gear pumps should be filled with oil after they are cleaned. And all openings must be covered or plugged to keep out dust and insects. To prevent rusting, flush the diaphragm and roller pumps with rush inhibitor and close the openings.

All nozzles should be removed after cleaning and placed in a cloth bag. This bag should be attached to the sprayer in order to keep the nozzles from being lost or damaged.

Hoses, pipes, and valves should be placed in a box or hung up. The tank should be left open so it will dry thoroughly, and after drying the inside should be coated with a lightweight oil. If the tank is rusty inside. discard it.

In the spring remove the sprayer from storage and test it under operating conditions before time for it to be used in the fields.

IS YOUR MACHINERY WINTERIZED

If you want more of your favorite plants, try producing new plants from old ones.

Increase the number of your plants by layering, Simple layering is particularly easy with plants that have flexible stems.

Stems are prepared for layering by making a notch on the under side, just below a node; this should be done in early spring.

Dig a trench about six inches deep near the stem. Mix peat, or some other organic material, with the loose soil. Slit the stem and bend it so that the slit part will be two or three inches deep in the trench. Then leave the tip, with leaves intact, to protrude above the ground. Firm the soil around the stem, and hold it in place with a bent wire, forked stick or stone. The plant will usually root in one to six months. depending on the individual plant.

Another method is air layering. This method may be used on plants having flexible stems, but is more valuable for obtaining new plants from those with upright, stiff stems that can't be bent over into the soil.

Select a well-branched upright stem, and prepare it as in simple layering. Pack three or four handfuls of sphagnum moss around the slit, then tie it in place with a string. A transparent freezer bag, with the closed end cut off, can be slipped over the wet moss and tied tightly at each end. Remove the rooted plants after white roots are visible through the plastic.

Layered stems are nourished by the parent plant until they have formed their own roots and are able to perform complete plant functions alone.

MONEY GROWS ON CHICKENS

A good poultry operation can fit well on almost any farm, large or small, that needs additional income.

Many Alabama farmers are raising their farm incomes new by producing poultry. But there are certain requirements one must meet if he wishes to be a successful poultryman.

First, a successful poultryman must have volume. Research has indicated that 1,000 layers or 10,000 broilers should constitute the minimum part-time unit. Full-time units should go as high as 2,500 to 3,000 layers or 20,000 to 30,000 broilers.

The poultryman who plays the market to establish his operation and doesn't intend to stay in the business is inviting disaster The enterprise should be set up as a long-time business, not for just a year.

Adequate housing and equipment are necessary for good production. "Because of defects in design or quality of materials." "many poultry houses aren't built so the grower can do an acceptable job of managing his flock."

And good management is especially important, since it means bringing together the chick. feed, house and equipment in a situation that will make the most efficient production. No one can do this but the grower.

A good poultryman should turn out a high-quality product. Alabama broilers are known throughout the country for their high quality. But it's entirely possible, with inspection and grading, that we will find considerable improvement could be made in the quality of the birds we produce.

BILLION DOLLARS FROM NAT'L FOREST TIMBER

On or about November 21, the National Forests of the United States will have placed the billion-the dollar of gross receipts into the United States Treasury. About nine million dollars of these receipts will have come from the three National Forests in Alabama.

The Counties in which the National Forests are located share in the gross receipts. Each year, twenty-five percent of the gross income is paid to the State for distribution to Counties on the basis of the National Forest acreage within each County. These contributions to the Counties are earmarked for road and school purposes. The amounts which many Counties receive represent an important share of their revenues.

Alabama National Forest receipts for Fiscal Year 1958 totalled $882,649. The Counties' shares (25 percent) amount to $220,664. The revenue is sizeable, but cash income represents only a small portion of total benefits.

Other National Forest benefits not measurable in dollars are even more important. Water is of primary importance. It yields more in the way of direct National Forest receipts but the importance of well managed forested watersheds to domestic consumers, navigation, flood control, and industrial users is tremendous. Similarly, outdoor recreation brings in no direct receipts. but it too is very important to the well-being of the people. Jobs, payrolls, stable soil, forest service road construction, road maintenance, forest highway contributions to the State road system, increased tourist trade, hunting, fishing, and increased fire protection all mean such to the economy.

The National Forests are managed in accordance with a philosophy of multiple use with provision for all types of outdoor activities, not on every acre but on the areas as a whole. Resources are managed for sustained yield production, designed to produce equal or greater yields in future years. The timber now being cut on the Alabama National Forests, for example, amounts to only about one-half of the annual growth. The other half is being left to build up understocked stands. As these stands approach full stocking the annual growth, cut, income and employment will be much greater.

HERE HAS CHIVALRY GONE?

Whatever became of old fashioned chivalry? It n't that men aren't willing to show it--it's just that omen won't accept it any more. If a lady drops someing and a man reaches to pick it up he's liable to get s head butted in the attempt. A woman never waits ny more for the male of the species to show her any nivalry.

Recently we dined with a lady at a public cafe. When we held a chair for the lady she looked at us ke we were either practicing or taking exercise and eached for her own chair and held it for herself. No nings like that make a man feel foolish and during ne years have made him less prone to aid a lady or ven attempt to show her the consideration which is roper but old-fashioned.

It isn't that the men need a lesson in chivalry -- 's the ladies need lessons in how to accept it.

THANKSGIVING!

Another Thanksgiving rolls 'round.

We give thanks again to our Creator and the Creator of all things for His goodness to us for the past year. But then, we have given thanks three-hundred and sixty-five days since last Thanksgiving for his goodness to us and to ours-to our friends and to all creation.

There are so many things for which to give thanks; the dawn of a morning, the setting of a sun. A little childs laugh or the good fortunes of another.

How do we count our blessings? They are so many they out-number the leaves on the tree. Man alone, is so very small and helpless. We sincerely believe the best way on earth to show our thanks and appreciation for the goodness shown us is to help others.

When the world learns to "Do Unto Others" then, and only then, will God understand our thanks to Him for His many blessings.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS from the Bible

Judge not, and ye shall not be judged; condemn not, and ye shall not be condemned; forgive, and ye shall be forgiven.—(St. Luke 6:37.)

When we pray God for forgiveness, do we first in our hearts forgive those we feel have wronged us? Do we judge and condemn others for errors and shortcomings without confessing our own? Let us always remember what Christ Jesus said of the greatest virtue—charity.

Local Boy Stars In Grape Bowl

Airman 2|C John A. Motley a former graduate of Maplesville High School and a member of the football team at Maplesville, Alabama.

The following appeared in "THE STARS AND STRIPES" Sunday Edition. October 19, 1958. This article was written by Gabe Buonauro, Staff Writer.

"Hahn Rallies to Turn Back SHAPE in Grape Bowl, 14-0"

HAHN, Germany (S & S) Quarterback John Motley passed to Jim Williams with less than three minutes remaining to give the Hahn Hawks a 14-6 win over the SHAPE Indians Saturday afternoon in the first annual Grape Bowl here.

With the score knotted at 6-6, Motley used two pass plays before hitting Williams to win the game's prize, a 500 silver cup.

Witnessing the Bowl game-highlight of a three-day October fest being staged by the Hahn NCO Club were over 2,000 fans, including German military and civilian guests. Representatives from SHAPE and USAF Hq swelled the list.

The Hawks, who have a 3-3-1 record, treated the fans to a thrilling second-half comeback

Trailing 6 to 0 and completely outclassed in the opening half, Hahn returned after intermission and quickly tied the game on Earl Ashpole's plunge from three-yards out. Bob Samnartino crashed over the five--yard line early in the opening period for SHAPE's lone touchdown.

Motley who was voted the game's outstanding back, started Hahn driving for its winning TD with less than four minutes remaining.

SHAPE, with its back to the goal, punted from the one out to the 34. There Ernest Coker returned the ball to the 20.

After one pass went incomplete Motley unleashed a 12-yard toss to Ashpole on the eight for a first down. On the next play, Motley attempted to keep the ball but passed at the last second to Williams.

Wingman Williams was selected the game's outstanding lineman.

Motley, a 6-foot, 1 inch, 175 pounder, passed to Ashpole for the two extra points. Early in the third quarter, Motley took over the quarterback chores and guided the Hawks on a 59-yard touchdown drive to even the score 6-6.

After five running plays brought the ball from the 41 to the Indians 47, Motley plunked a 44 yard pass into the outstretched hands of the halfback Carroll Mizell on the three

The SHAPE line stiffened and thwarted two thrusts. On the third attempt Ashpole made it up the middle. The attempted pass for the conversion failed.

District Indians had things pretty on the first period, the Hawks much their own way. They marched 75 yards to a touchdown.

Highlight of the six-play drive was halfback Gene Davis' 37-yard run. Sammartino, handling the quarterback slot for coach Bob Weber, took to the air on the next play. Charles Rhenborg gathered in Sammartino's flank pass and threaded his way to the 17.

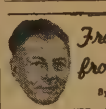
After Jim Coburn picked up two yards, Rehnborg took a pitchout from Sammartino and dashed to the five. From there Sammartine scored on a keeper.

The second quarter was played at midfield as both clubs were hit by a rash of penalties and a bad case of fumbles. At the end of the half, SHAPE had 109 yards on the ground and 44 in the air.

Hahn was held to a net gain of seven yards rushing.

Hahn looked like a new club in the second half. They picked up 70 yards on the ground and 77 in the air.

As a halftime attraction Octoberfest queen, Mrs. Arnold G. Krueger was crowned. "Johnnie" has many, many friends and relatives in this and adjoining communities who will be happy to hear from him and his outstanding playing.



From my front porch

By CARL HELM

The sound of sirens is sometimes a howl, sometimes a wail. But it can be a joyous sound, to herald a happy event!

So it was when they blew on a recent day in my hometown. Joyfully, blending with the ringing of bells. A noteworthy occasion, a happy one, as side by side the president of the corporation and the head of the union stood cheering and waving their hats! The Studebaker people were rolling off the production line the first of their 1959 cars.

It was a day of high excitement and rightly so, for this is the "new dimension in motoring" that my neighbors are sure will catch the whole country's fancy. A smaller, stylish, economical car; roomy, comfortable, easily parked: the Lark by Studebaker, made by proud and skilled craftsmen.

Eighty-five per cent of these people own or are buying their own homes. Their future and that of their children is tied into the bright promise of the remarkable car they are making. No wonder the whole town was excited!

Saving dollars . . . for himself

Meter reading is one of the costs of supplying electrical service. But members of this non-profit rural electric system read their own meters. That's one reason why our rates are so low, considering the comparatively small number of consumers we serve—per mile of line.

By sharing these duties and responsibilities, members effect savings for the system and themselves. Thus auto mileage and labor costs of meter reading are eliminated. That saving is passed along to all members—as part owners of this thriving business.

It's true cooperation—with savings and better service enjoyed by all.

Petite Pumpkin Pies

For a change of pace, how about making these Petite Pumpkin Pies especially for entertaining. One of the many fine features about making these tiny treats is they are so easy to serve — no trying to cut the large size pie in enough pieces to go round. They keep well, too, and can be made ahead of time and stored wrapped in foil and tucked in a tin box. Or, wrapped in foil and placed in the refrigerator — all ready for your guests at tea or dinner. Make double the amount of this recipe and you will be sure to have more than enough for even your youngster's friends home from school and also for the Holiday parties.

1 bar (½ cup) Good luck margarine
3-ounce package cream cheese
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
Pumpkin Filling
½ cup heavy cream, whipped

Let margarine soften in mixing bowl at room temperature about 1 hour. Add cream cheese and work with wooden spoon until smooth and creamy. Scrape bowl and spoon. Add ½ the flour and blend thoroughly, then remaining flour and mix well. Work with fingers into smooth dough. (If desired, refrigerate dough for easier shaping.) Pinch off small pieces of dough and shape into balls 1¼" in diameter. Put balls in cups of 1¾" muffin pans and with thumb, press dough against bottom and sides of cups. Spoon Pumpkin Filling into dough-lined cups, filling them not quite full. Bake in hot oven (400°F.) 18 to 21 minutes. Cool slightly then remove to wire racks to finish cooling. Serve with a fluffy cap of whipped cream. Makes 2 dozen.

PUMPKIN FILLING
½ cup canned or cooked pumpkin
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 egg, slightly beaten
½ cup milk

Combine pumpkin, sugar, salt, and spices. Add egg and milk and mix well. Makes enough filling for 2 dozen Petite Pumpkin Pies.

COUGHS, COLDS AND COMPLICATIONS

Infections of the respiratory tract cause more loss of time from schools than all other diseases combined; and, economically, the common cold alone costs the American public some two billion dollars a year.

Actually the respiratory tract involves the nose, the sinuses, the throat, the larynx, the trachea and the lungs. The entire nasal cavity is lined by mucous membrane; and it is the mucous membrane that is attacked by viruses, microorganisms or bacteria. The nose acts as a steam heating system supplying hear and moisture to the the nostrils trap and filter dust inhaled air. The coarse hairs in particles. However, finer particles pass these filtering stations and are deposited on some part of the nasal mucous membrane.

On the surface of the membrane are delicate hairs called cilia which cannot be seen with the naked eye and which move back and forth approximately 250 times a minute. A thin blanket of mucus lies directly on top of the cilia, and this, combined with the wavy movement of the hairs, constitutes an effective defense against attack by air-borne bacteria. It is when the defense is broken that these bacteria penetrate the outer covering of the mucus, getting into tissue proper and resulting in inflammation.

Complications following common cold may be sinusitis, pharyngitis, tonsilitis, laryngitis, or bronchitis. In all infections of the lower respiratory tract, coughing and expectoration of quantities of phlegm are common symptoms and cause great distress.

Unfortunately the exact cause of the common cold is not known. The so-called antihistaminics have proved of little value scientifically, since they do not act against the viruses or bacteria which are believed to cause infectious colds.

Until more is known about the common cold, bed rest and certain of the simpler drugs to relieve discomfort are to be recommended. While colds seem more frequent in the winter months, they are also common in all seasons of the year and, if neglected, can lead to many complications of the respiratory tract.

Westclox Photo

Gift-wrapping a big, special Christmas gift can mean even more to the recipient if the wrapping has a clever theme. For example, here's a handsome electric clock by Westclox named "Orbit," and, shewn with it, an imaginative wrapping idea with a "satellite and outer space" motif. After wrapping in a solid blue paper, add orbit tracks cut from gold paper, and gummed stars. The satellite is a styrofoam ball cut in half. Use toothpicks topped with Christmas beads as antennas. (Gift-wrapping idea by Dennison Manufacturing Co., leading maker of gift-wrap papers.)

S S Amendment Misunderstood

There has been some misunderstanding in regard to the recent amendments to the Social Security Law. L. E. Brannon, Acting District Manager of the Social Security Office, said today.

Most people understand about the automatic increase in social security checks which will be paid in February, 1959. However, in addition to the increase, which will be paid without any action on the part of beneficiaries, there are other changes which are not so well understood by the public, Mr. Brannon added. Leaflets are available free of charge at all Social Security offices reflecting these new provisions.

Other changes are:

1. The tax rate goes up in January, 1959, and applies to the first $4,800 of earnings.
2. Dependents of individuals receiving disability payments may now qualify.
3. More severely disabled individuals may now qauilfy as a result of the change in the earnings test, which is five years of social security employment credits in the ten year period before disability started.
4. Disability benefits will not be reduced because of other Federal disability payment.
5. Dependent parents may now qualify even though the deceased son or daughter was survived by another beneficiary.
6. More adopted children may now qualify because of the removal of the 3 year waiting period.

Christmas 'Bonus' to Pensioners

"A delayed Christmas bonus" will be included in January checks for most persons receiving old age pensions through the Department of Pensions and Security, it was revealed today by Clara Durham, Acting Director of the Chilton County Department.

"The State Board of Pensions and Security last week approved a one-month increase in the per cent of need met for old age pensioners," Miss Durham said, "but this increase cannot be paid until the January checks are released."

It was necessary, the acting director explained, for the State Board to approve the 1958-59 operating budget for the pensions and security program at its September meeting. Then actual year-end balances and revenue available had to be estimated, and there was no experience in administering the new new Federal formula that took effect October 1.

"Now experiences have shown effects of the new formula, and balances proved to be somewhat in excess of estimates, This provided money enough to allow the Christmas bonus, but information could not be secured in time to include the amount in December checks without delaying them," Miss Durham said. She added that plans already were made for the December checks to be mailed in time for Christmas.

"The January checks," she added, "are expected to be mailed about January 15."

Miss Durham went on to say that old age payments for the first quarter of the current fiscal year--October, November, December, 1958--have been figured at the rate of 78 percent of need up to a $65 maximum per case and within the policy regarding the $65 limit.

"The Christmas bonus will be paid by increasing the percent of need met to 90 for the month of January only," Miss Durham added. "Therefore, any person already affected by the $65 limit will not benefit, and the $65 limit may reduce the amount of bonus some pensioners will get." Miss Durham added that changes in a person's need also could affect the amount received.

According to the State Department of Pensions and Security, it is estimated that the average old age payment in the State will be close to the October average of $43.67 in December, but will probably increase to about $50 for January only. February payments are expected to drop to December levels.

In Chilton County the number of old age pensioners in October was 1326 and the average payment was $42.89, Miss Durham said.

Who is Eligible to Vote In Cotton Referendum

Farmers "eligible to vote" in the upcoming referendum on 1959 - crop cotton marketing quotas was today defined by Eddie Owen, Chairman, Agricultural Stablization and Conservation Committee.

"The general rule is that anyone who engaged in the production of upland cotton in 1958 is eligible to vote in the December 15 referendum," the Chairman explained. "This, of course, would include all persons--whether owner, operator, tenant, or sharecropper--who had an interest in the 1958 upland cotton crop.

"However, under provisions of law now in effect, the term 'eligible voter' also includes some other persons whose right to vote on cotton quotas may not be so well understood." Mr. Owen declared.

"For instance, any grower who had a 1958 cotton allotment for his farm but who produced no cotton this year is also eligible to cast a ballot on 1959 - crop quotas.

"Likewise, a farmer who placed his 1958 cotton allotment in the Soil Bank is eligible to vote in the December 15 referendum.

"These are principal classes of persons who are defined as 'eligible," the Chairman stated, "but a person may also qualify to vote as a guardian, administrator, executor, or trustee for another person. In such a case the person for whom he is acting may not also vote.

"Each individual's right to vote depends up on his or her own qualifications," Chairman Owen concluded, "and this applies to husbands and wives, as well s minors who engage in the production of cotton in 1958."

Where any person has a question about his eligibility to vote in the December 15 Referendum on Cotton Marketing Quotas, he is urged to get in touch with his local County ASC Office where he may obtain all the necessary facts.

RECEIPTS FROM 1958 FOREST PRODUCTION

Alabama National Forest receipts during the fiscal year 1958 totaled $882,649.13, a decrease of about $377,000 from the 1957 receipts. The decrease was due primarily to some reduction in volume cut and to lower stumpage prices, both of which were affected by general economic conditions and decreased demand for timber products during the period. Increased rainfall was another factor that affected the cut and income. The counties' share of 25% amounts to approximately $220,662. Most of these receipts resulted from the sale of timber. All such timber cut is cut on a sustained yield basis and all trees removed are marked prior to cutting. Sales are made to the highest bidder, following advertisement.

The total "twenty five percent" amount to be distrubuted to the counties in the Oakmulgee and Tuscaloosa Ranger Districts is $42,647.07. Of this amount Bibb County will receive $16,444.96, Chilton County $5,796.93, Dallas County $81,360.10, Hale County $7,733.60, Perry County $9,016.70 and Tuscaloosa County $2,327.78. The National Forest contributions are distributed to the counties on a basis of National Forest acreage within each county. Such money is to be used for road and school purposes within the respective counties.

The total resource income of about $170,588.00 received from the Oakmulgee and Tuscaloosa Ranger Districts far exceeds the operating expenditures which include many land management projects. Some of these are road construction and maintenance, improvement of administrative sites, wildlife management, recreational development, fire prevention and presuppression and fire suppression. In addition the timber growing stock is being increased in quanity and quality to insure greater returns in the future. not only cash gains but increased employment in the counties and state.

Blood Mobile Swamped With "Customers" 279 Pints Accepted

RED CROSS BLOOD PROGRAM HITS NEW RECORD

On the day before Thanksgiving the Red Cross Bloodmobile visited our County to receive donors for the blood program. The people of Chilton County responded and gave evidence of their gratitude for our many blessings by setting a peace-time record. What better way can we show our gratitude than by giving blood to save the life of a fellow-suffering human being.

Our quota for this Bloodmobile was set at 130 pints. It is a great pleasure to report to you that approximately 350 persons presented themselves to donate blood. From those who came, 279 were accepted, 41 were not accepted by the examining physicians, and approximately 30 arrived after registrations had closed.

We are very grateful to those who gave blood, and needless to say, we are just as grateful to those who could not be accepted, and all will be issued cards entitling them and their families to free Red Cross blood anywhere it may be needed.

Some arrived after closing time and it was regrettable that they could not be taken, but time did not permit as there were approximately 50 persons inside being processed at 5:00 p.m. It is hoped that you who could not be registered will come back at the next Bloodmobile visit in March, 1959.

Mrs. Joe Earl Gowan is doing a wonderful job as Blood Program chairman. Many persons responded to her call for help and all the volunteer workers showed great enthusiasm, efficiency and team work. The job was well done and everyone seemed to enjoy doing it.

Refreshments for the Bloodmobile were served to the donors and volunteers during the day, courtesy of Dixie Super Stores, Hall Brothers, A & P Tea Company, Tip's Big Saver, Coca-Cola Bottling Company, Upchurch Drug Company, Clanton Ice Company, Taylor Wholesale Grocery Company, and Piggly Wiggly. The generosity of these firms is gratefully acknowledged.

Your Red Cross officials wish to express our sincere appreciation to Radio Station WKLF, Mr. Marion Easterling and Mr. Curt Harris, to the Chilton County News, Mr. Ben Tucker and Mr. Bobby Tucker, to the Union-Banner, Mr. T. E. Wyatt and Mr. Carlos Wyatt. The excellent coverage and announcements concerning the Bloodmobile and fund campaigns have been instrumental to the success of your Red Cross activities.

Mrs. Grady Heflin, Co-Chairman of the Fund Drive. In the emergency fund drive just completed the quota of $2,500.00 was over subscribed. According to the latest report, $3,190.43 has been raised. Mrs. Heflin has given wholeheartedly of her time and talents and her ability to organize has shown in the results.

Mrs. Dick Hayes, Chapter Vice-Chairman and Chairman of the Fund Drive, has worked tirelessly in all activities of the Chapter, demonstrating her devotion to this community and her sense of public service, as well as a fine ability to get the job done.

The success of this work to date is due to the harmony, teamwork, and devotion to duty of all the contributors, donors, and volunteers, who, by rendering this service, are helping to strengthen our community and our country.

John M. Higgins, Chairman,
Chilton County Chapter

SELDEN IN EUROPE

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of three articles written by Congressman Selden from Europe while he was representing the United States at several official functions there. The third article, to be published next week, will tell of the dedication by Queen Elizabeth of the American War Memorial Chapel at St. Paul's Cathedral in London.

Although I will be back in Alabama before this column is published, I am writing it immediately following a visit to the USS Forrestal, the largest aircraft carrier presently operating in the Mediterranean with the United States Sixth Fleet.

From the NATO Parliamentarians Conference in Paris, which I attended as a delegate, our group flew to Rome, arriving there the night of November 21. Early the next morning the members of Congress present were loaded aboard two Grumman TF's and flown from the Rome airport to the deck of the Forrestal.

Although the ship to which I was assigned in World War II operated with aircraft carriers, this was my first experience of actually landing on the flight deck of a carrier. I must admit the carrier looked extremely small as we made our approach, but the Navy pilot set our plane down with such skill and precision that our landing was almost as smooth as landings made by commercial planes at the most modern airports.

USS FORRESTAL

The USS Forrestal, named for our first Secretary of Defense, was the first carrier of its class to be built. Five have been authorized by Congress, and two of the others are the USS Saratoga and the USS Ranger have also been commissioned.

In length the Forrestal is 1,036 feet and, if stood on end would reach to the 80th floor of the Empire State Building. Her flight deck covers more than four acres and is big enough to accomodate three football fields. The engines that drive the Forrestal can generate enough electricity to supply a city the size of New Orleans, and the ship's cruising speed is more than 35 miles an hour. When the air group is aboard, the Forrestal is manned by about 4,000 officers and men.

But the Forrestal is not just big for the sake of being big. [illegible] dictated by the mission [illegible] assigned such carriers. [illegible] are known counterpart spots on a map. An enemy, with guided missiles carrying atomic warheads could conceivably wipe out those bases almost at the same time. Carriers of the Forrestal class are, in effect, mobile air bases containing all the facilities of a land base. Yet, they cannot be pin-pointed for the attentions of long range intercontinental missiles because they may change their positions as much as 600 miles in a single day.

AIR DISPLAY

The highlight of our visit to the Forrestal and the Sixth Fleet was an air display which consisted of the launching from the carrier of some 40 (jet and propeller) fighter and bomber aircraft. For the launching of the jets, the Forrestal used four steam-driven catapults. For the propeller-driven planes, the flight deck provided the runway for a conventional takeoff. To launch the total group of 40 aircraft took only about 12 minutes, while approximately 20 minutes was required to bring this group back aboard.

The aerial part of the display demonstrated the fire-power capability and versatility of carrier based aircraft. The techniques of bomb delivery and in-flight refueling, along with an excellent display of airmanship, were also demonstrated. The aircraft participating included the F4D (Skyray), F8U (Crusader), A4D (Skyhawk), and A3D (Sky Warrior).

In addition to the air display, we were thoroughly briefed in connection with the entire operations of the Sixth Fleet.

ALABAMIANS ABOARD

While aboard the Forrestal, I met a number of Alabamians from all sections of our state. Lt. Cdr. Frank Thigpen, jr., a close friend of mine, was one of the first to greet me when I stepped off the plane.

Unfortunately, the Alabamian most closely identified with the Sixth Fleet was not aboard. I refer, of course, to Admiral Charles R. (Cat) Brown who relinquished command of the Sixth Fleet in September. Admiral Brown, a native of Tuscaloosa, is greatly loved and respected by the officers and men who have served with him, and they look forward to his return to the Mediterranean area in January as commander of allied forces in South Europe.

When it was learned that I represented Admiral Brown's home District, many inquires were made concerning the recent visit of Admiral and Mrs. Brown to Alabama.

YOU can tell it's about Christmas 'cause the garden clubs are getting their Holiday House ready for display. We can think of nothing which adds more to the spirit of this Yuletide season than gaily decorated homes and people meeting and having a fine time of it.

MOST (in fact, of all) local businessmen whom we have talked with lately are strong in their opinion of keeping business at home during this season when so much buying is being done. We agree wholeheartedly, but are they promoting their idea or are they just plain, everyday, griping about their poor lot in life? We hope it's the progressive of the two.

DID you know that your newspaper (community or otherwise) cannot exist entirely on revenue derived from advertising accounts. It must have subscribers, supporters to really do the job it is intended for. Do you support your newspaper in this commercial manner? It is a necessity, if you want a representative paper!

THE new highway (31) bypass is going along swell, in fact, we drove over several miles of it Sunday afternoon and the overpass too, and we think it's going to be a beautiful sight when finished. A long way yet, but it is progress. Go out and take a look at it for yourself.

LOCAL business houses have trouble agreeing on "will we open or will we close" policy around this time of year with reference to Wednesday afternoon. We think that is very indicative of why we have business leaks into the larger cities. We cannot cooperate to the extent of "pulling" business our way. That, my friends, is a situation in need of repair!

IS THERE A NEED FOR CONSISTENCY IN YOUR ADVERTISING?

OR SHOULD ----

PREACHERS preach only one sermon a year (People are against sin anyhow so why elaborate on the subject).

TEACHERS give only one lesson in a subject (the kids never forget once they've been told).

TRAFFIC LIGHTS be turned off to save electricity people know where they are by now, they'll remember how to drive).

FILLING STATION ATTENDANTS fill the gas tank only once a year (the car should go by now by itself).

OR SHOULD ----

A lesson be taken from the old rooster out in the barnyard. He's been wakin' up the farm since the beginning of time and still, when that old sun comes peepin' over the hill, the cock will crow!

WHAT IS HONEST?

We have been introduced to many sly ways of being "dishonest without getting dirty" in our rounds as a business promoter and the astonishing part of it is, some folks have themselves firmly convinced that honesty and half-honesty are synonymous.

Of course, there is the usual fellow ,who is not being dishonest, but is trying to work out a situation which is suitable for you and him and still ethical. We sympathize with this friend of ours and will strive earnestly to work something out.

However, the businessman who feels he can gain something for nothing merely by calling the dishonest deal by a more respectable name is fooling nobody but you know who.

We have given up advertising space and gladly, from the fellow or business firm with whom we could not make satisfactory arrangement because of ethical procedure.

Like as not, they seldom see our side of the thing though we always try to impress upon them our beliefs and our position. It is mostly a matter of opinion, we suppose, for it is hard to draw the line of right and wrong, but we would fare considerably better if they could see our side of the situation and what we believe to be fair as well as we try to understand their viewpoint. After all, it's we'uns who are losing the advertising revenue and not they. We don't rightly know what they lose on the deal.

PEACE COSTS MONEY--

Displayed on our office wall is a picture of a small boy, supposed to be listening to the blessing, and though his little hands are folded in awed reverence his primary interest, plainly shows to be the turkey in the center of the table.

The caption on this thought provoking picture is "Peace Costs Money".

Well, we as a cotton pickin', chicken pluckin' taxpayer agree 98% with that statement, but. . .

Why does peace cost money?

Now you say "that's a downright stupid question". In which case, we invite you to ask it yourself. . . "Why DOES peace cost money?

Why should we have to pay. . . money. . for peace?

Peace cannot be bought with money. Perhaps that's why we aren't attaining much of it these days (peace we mean!) We realize of course that it takes money to get our message to others of "wonderful peace".

Fact is, not many of US realize what peace is.

It is certainly not the state we're in due to the billion dollar spending for arms and defense, though some top ranking officials seem to think that is the sure way to peace.

For that matter, we do not believe we will ever attain world peace by showing who can lick who the hardest and fastest.

If we possess the knowledge and spirit of Christ the way we profess to, then we are fully aware that He certainly would not go about gaining peace in such a manner as we are striving in.

Of course, you say, but we're not Christ! And that my friend is your answer and the key to a situation badly in need of some assistance: to attain the lasting peace which we all seem to want, but can't seem to afford we simply must get to be. . . more like Christ.

We know it works, because He proved it to us. The most encouraging part of it is, we've never tried it, so even the most skeptical of us has a fifty-fifty chance.

Peace, which is personified in Christ, we know, can be attained by becoming more like Christ. Even an Atheist could figure that out through the use of scientific mathematics.

All things are possible. . .

Through Christ!

THINGS We see and hear

by BOB

DAUGHTER Terri was jining in with her brother the other evening telling ole Dad about their most recent visit to uncle Yeargan's farm. They saw the "piggies" and followed "unc" around all day, brought in wood for the fire. And Terri, who is somewhat of a tomboy, due to an older brother, enjoyed this last part best of all, even though she didn't know what her original intentions were: she said, "and then we threw corn at the chickens!"

ORVILLE Woods tells us of a recent experience of his grandfather (on his wife's side) which indicates that all is not lost when you reach sixth, seventy and even eighty mark in years. Fact is, according to Orville, granddaddy overpowered two hold-upmen at his curb market in Birmingham. His philosophy of the matter is what intrigued us. He figured they were gonna kill him anyway so he picked up the nearest object, which happened to be an ear of corn and walloped the daylights out of the holdup men. They even left their pistol behind when they lit out of there. How old is granddaddy? He's only 83 and he must be quite a fellow indeed!

Strangest thing, these TV stars who are claimed to be "different" from all the rest: who live model lives and who supposedly think for themselves. These same stars will get up and like some puppet in a show "commercialize" some product which they don't necessarily use or like. It's such a "put on" business!

Say, fellow receiver, did you remember to give exhuberant thanks for your many blessings as you carved up that old bird last Thursday. We had a terrific Thanksgiving. We sympathetically acknowledge that age old lament about eating too much of everything, but over all we had a lot to be genuinely thankful for. Hope yours was nearly so wonderful as ours was.

Since Thanksgiving marks, not only the "be thankful" season, but the arrival on the scene of one "Santa Claus" its time we started thinking about that gift list for this year. For most of us it should be little longer this year; if for no other reason that we're year older and during that time we should have gained a friend or two, either by cooperative relatives or our own wonderfully pleasing personality. Something to think about: what you gonna get all these friends and relatives? We'll give you a hint: whatever it is Clanton's got it! And if they ain't, they know where they can get it for you. . . cheap!

In contrast to the guest room will be the Master bedroom which serves as a setting for an old fashioned Christmas Eve featuring among other antique furnishings, handmade, double ring coverlet.

Mrs. James Duke Heflin, chairman of the Holiday House promises those who attend have in store a real treat, so don't plan your occasions until you attend the Holiday House and see the arrangement created by the Club members.

A child asks questions Faith can answer

"Why did my dog die ?"

He's your son, and he expects you to give him the answers—not just the everyday answers to everyday problems, but the big answers to the big problems. Like why his dog had to die.

All right. What will you tell him? How will you prepare him to face his life squarely—with confidence? Only by helping him find Faith—Faith in something greater than himself. And you yourself must have that Faith if you expect to help him find it. Begin this week to find the Faith for your life. Worship with all the family at your church or synagogue.

A Gift of Permanent Beauty!

Wouldn't Mom, Sis or Best Friend welcome a gift of "curly hair"—a Quick Home Permanent in this charming Angel-Wrap? Richard Hudnut suggests this easy-to-do, practical idea as an inexpensive gift or stocking filler. And she'll love this new home permanent that takes just half the time, half the work—lets her face the new year with a soft, natural-looking wave that lasts and lasts.

Wrap the Quick box neatly in pink paper. Cut big green eyes and oval red mouth from Christmas tape and apply to upper part of box. For hair, make five bows from pink Sasheen ribbon and tape across top. To make halo, string beads on a pipe cleaner and bend into a circle. Suspend halo from another pipe cleaner taped to back of head. A band of gift wrap tape forms the collar.

"Does She or Doesn't She?"

One out of every three women in the country now use hair coloring in one form or another. This tremendous acceptance started in 1950, when Lawrence M. Gelb introduced a new product and a new concept in hair-coloring.

The product was the now-famous Miss Clairol Hair Color Bath. Its one-step coloring action revolutionized haircoloring. Every woman could have her hair colored safely, easily and beautifully—hair color so natural only her hairdresser knows for sure.

"Miss Clairol," in shades from ash blonde to black, bleaches and tints in one process, making a complete haircoloring treatment a simple matter of minutes.

The company's "Come Alive" series of rinses, which give new and natural color highlights to gray hair and other shades, also have been tremendously successful. "Lady Clairol Whipped Creme Hair Lightener" has made bleaching safer, easier, faster, for thousands of women. Other exciting developments from the Clairol research laboratories include "Metalex," and "Hair-So-New," both superb hair conditioners, and the fabulous European hair cream, "Vitapointe."

These and other Clairol products have revolutionized haircoloring and women's attitudes toward this newest of the "natural" cosmetics which keep American women beautiful.

Brooks of Montgomery, State Chairman and Co-Chairman respectively, of the Alabama Heart Association's Annual Drive which will be held in February.

"We are extremely pleased and very proud to announce that Lieutenant Hudson has accepted County leadership in the 1959 HEART Fund Drive", said General Hanna. "His ability as a leader in community and civic endeavors is well known to the people of his County, and to many of us throughout the State, and we are confident that he will have the support of the people of Chilton County in the 1959 HEART FUND".

In accepting the Chairmanship, Lt. Hudson said that he felt it quite a privilege "to join in the battle against the diseases of heart and blood vessels the greatest menace to the general health and well-being of the people of our State and Country. There is scarcely a home that has not had a personal bout with some form of heart disease among its members, and it is alarming to me to realize that children as well as adults of all ages are tragically affected by these diseases".

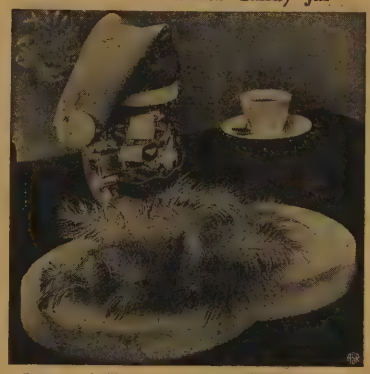
A Gift Idea: Santa Candy Jar



Santa never had it so good, filled to the brim with candies. And your holiday guests will enjoy helping themselves to candy from a Santa Candy jar.

Here's how he's made. First locate a glass chimney from a hurricane lamp or an old fashioned kerosene lamp. You may have one at home, or check any hardware store. This serves as the candy holder to be decorated with Santa's cheery face. Cut a circular base of Styrofoam, using a luncheon plate as a guide, and a sharp paring knife for the cutting tool. Firmly but carefully press the bottom of the chimney about one-fourth inch into the base, making certain pressure is not great enough to break the glass. Use a circular motion. Glue on eyes and moustache of felt. Tuck fluffy feathers about his chin for a beard.

Santa is famous for his long red cap. Make it by attaching red felt to a disc of Styrofoam cut with a coffee cup for a guide.

The table decoration is so easy to make and all materials are available at variety store Christmas counters. You may wish to try two or three face ideas, carolers for one. The clever candy jar makes an inexpensive pre-Christmas gift for neighbors and family.

The Christmas "Spirit" Is The "Giving" Not The "Guzzling"!

CLANTON, ALABAMA | VOLUME XXXVI | THURSDAY, DEC. 12, 1958 | NUMBER

Bridge Dedication Joins Coosa, Chilton

FOLKS and THINGS About Town

by Ben

THIS much talked about Christmas Spirit has us in tow and won't let go until we owe every danged business establishment in town. Gifts were never prettier or things higher or credit easier to get, than this Christmas Season. But you can't take it with you anyhow, however there's another saying, it takes about three weeks of this kind of Christmas Spirit to put you three months behind next year.

IF YOU want a job well done leave it to the ladies. They have proven that old saying many times recently here in Chilton County. The floats in the Christmas parade last Friday afternoon was no exception. They were just beautiful. We're reproducing some pictures but you would have to see them in person and in color to really appreciate them.

DID you hear about the old man buying him a hearing aid without the knowledge of his family? The first week he changed his will four times.

THEN there was the two nudists who were engaged but had to break it off because they were seeing too much of each other.

FOR the past week been working nights helping the wife count and check the T-B Seals sale. What we're leading up to is that most people don't pay too much attention to their Christmas Seals and lay them aside forgetting to send this money to the Chilton County T-B Association for research and help to those stricken with the dread disease. We ran upon a refreshing change in this attitude when a well known lady called and said that somehow she had been missed and to please send her some of the Seals she like to put them on her Christmas cards. And to you others out there --we got a couple million more we'd be tickled pink to send you if you would just let us know that you are interested. After the grown-up or child stricken is dead it's to late to be interested. They need your help now.

THIS morning for about a minute and a half we had fifty - thousand dollars. Campbell White and Phil Robira, who is asst treasurer of Transcontinental Gas was by the office on their way to pay to George Smith tax collector, $50,-744. It was Trans Continental Gas Co. taxes for this year and if we may add quite a sum. As Phil Robira said, that will buy a lot of service for the betterment of Chilton County. He passed several deserved compliments on the officials and the people of the county and we agreed with him heartily. We don't know why but our little tax "bite" don't seem half so bad now since we held that check from Transcontinental Gas Co.

A VERY dear friend calls us to urge more letter writing to the boys in service overseas and for more visitation to the shut-ins of our own community. The dear lady is right as she most always is and you should make it one of your New Year's resolutions -- to write more and visit more

TO YOU merchants who are slow about decorating your store windows, you better get busy. The Judges ride Friday of this week which is tomorrow and they can't judge what they can't see. We have some very attractive windows in town but could have a lot more. Come on, let's get the Chrismas spirit and throw a little holly and mistletoe in the window to create the feeling of Christmas, Peace on Earth and Good Will toward our fellowmen.

HAD an employee who saw that ad on the Editorial page last week "We Have Put The Boss To Work" say; "And They said it couldn't be done".

NOW we know where all these husbands are at night when they aren't at home They are out at the armory helping the Rescue Squad and Civil Defense get all that equipment together. They will have an "Open House" soon out there and you will be invited. Get ready to go. It will surprise you what Chairman Burton Mullins and a host of others have done for their county with the material purchased from Civil Defense.

No nation outlasts its topsoil.

Farmers probably will receive about as much in marketings next year as 1958 but gross income may be lower.

Research shows nine to 11 pounds of feed are required to produce one pound of gain on a beef calf.

Where is Old St. Nick ?

THIS is a scene along the enormously crowded Clanton streets Friday, December 5th when Santa made his official appearance here.

Observers estimated that the crowds surpassed any attraction of its kind ever held in Clanton.

At Last, Honored Guest

SANTA AND ADMIRERS

SANTA CLAUS in all his awesome grandeur greeted crowds gaily as his official float w o u n d its way through the City of Clanton last Friday afternoon. Crowds turned out to see him by the hundreds and clowns, gaily decorated, threw surprises to the youngsters. The Christmas Season was ushered into Clanton in a magnificent way and the "spirit" was evidenced by the crowds that turned out to welcome Santa to Central Alabama (Photo by Scott)

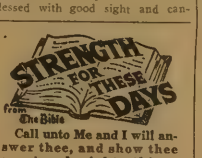
Cracker Jack Sales Buy Glasses For Nine

The Clanton Lions Club recently sold Cracker Jacks on the downtown streets and realized enough profit to buy glasses for nine more indigent Chilton Countians. Yes Sir ,that was another method the Lions use to ask for painless contributions. Every so often a Lion may call by your home with light bulbs, mops or brooms. You can rest assured of always receiving top notch quality merchandise at bargain prices. And you are not just making a purchase but you are actually contributing to the poor of your County.

Sight is one of our most important processions. Without sight we live in an entirely different world. You would be amazed at the large number of young and old people of Chilton County who are not blessed with good sight and cannot afford even a small medical correction. For years the Clanton Lions have assisted hundreds upon hundreds of our less fortunate neighbors. Through the facilities of Alabama Sight Association an Alabama Lions organization, modern medical aid is given to those who cannot help themselves.

You too can help! Support your Clanton Lions Club and you will share the joy of knowing that you are helping someone to a more happy and useful life.



Call unto Me and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things which thou knowest not.—(Jeremiah 33:3.).

Any human father hearing his child call out to him will gladly and tenderly help the child out of his distress, soothe his hurts and quiet his fears. And when the child asks help with a problem, the father will try to teach him as much as the child is able and willing to learn. How can we doubt our Heavenly Father's promise that He will do as much for us when we call on Him for help?

GEORGE WALLACE is the only "I seen my duty and I done it" statesman-politician to come down the pipe in many a day. It sometimes takes Wallace a spell to gather his intended forces, whatever they may be, but when he does get organized you can be genuinely impressed by the fact that he knows what he's talking about and can usually outperform and outmaneuver the most prolific adversary. He's a fellow who can really raise the rebel blood in us when we feel an injustice being done. He has the most makings for a good leader available to us anywhere and we predict that he will do much for the State of Alabama as well as the United States before his tenure of official capacities is completed.

LOOK for the big shebang to come off at the new bridge on highway 22 (Coosa River) on December 17th. You'll find details elsewhere in this newspaper and we hope you can find time to go and take in some of that free Barbecue. Not only that but speakers will be present and anyway, it's just a beautiful bridge. . . come on down and see it.

WE WANT A GUARANTEE--THAT'S ALL!

NOTHING makes us quite as nauseated as reading where some couple is planning marriage where one is white and the other a Negro. Mongrelization is the unrest by-product of integration and we'd like to know the person who is in favor of this. Before you answer, be sure you understand the full meaning of such a situation. We can see no good to come from creating a race of halfbreed people. Most assuredly it's up to the individual, but so is robbing a bank or committing murder up to the individual, yet we still maintain police forces. When we let down the barriers of racial separation we are leaving the decision of "will I or won't I" up to some persons who are incapable of making a right decision. Too many in our society cannot muster the will power to ward off temptations which are bound to arise. Have there been any provisions made by anyone concerning what we will do should integration bring about such a situation as outlined here. Is there any guarantee that such will not happen. We had much rather go to war for a principle than accept Integration and the by-products of same. We are not of a closed mind! If someone can give us any sane reasons for actions of Integration when the Negro can get the same provisions otherwise (with the acception of social mixing) then we will listen wholeheartedly to that line of thought. Until someone does give evidence of a guarantee that there would be no mongrelization then we are firmly, wholeheartedly and justifiably against any form of Integration of the races and are willing to stand and be counted.

By the same token and at the same time we are definitely against discrimination toward anyone. We firmly believe that discrimination can be done away with without sacrificing principle to the satisfaction of all who are truly concerned.

JUST ONE WISH...

PEACE AT CHRISTMAS --

Through all his history man has sought peace, prayed for it, worked for it, lost it, and painfully renewed the struggle to achieve and hold on to it.

The greatest news ever told, first received by shepherds watching their flocks, proclaimed the Divine promise of peace for man—peace with his Maker, himself and his fellow men.

The greatest Christmas gift ever given, the Babe born in Bethlehem, taught the way to peace—through supreme love of God and all human beings.

At this Christmas season of 1958 this newspaper joins in the universal wish for peace on earth, good will among men.

The line is, of course, never too long and we're never too busy to help a friend, so if you're not already one of the Chilton County News famliy, do something about that bad situation at once.

THE FREE GIFT OF CHRISTMAS

by James Hyslop

ALL MANKIND's sympathies and attention were captivated because of the way in which God sent His Son into the world. A baby, a mother, a housing problem, a starry night, quiet shepherds a divine announcements. . .

These things provide the romance the pathos, the tender appeal of the nativity. They are simple enough to be understood by the lowly and unlearned, and universal enough to command the attention of sages and kings.

The virgin birth was only the beginning of a life which, in all its aspects, is related to every person. John tells us that He was the true light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world. Into a despairing world therefore. Christ brings the light of hope.

Of all the millions of human beings born previously, not one had been able to provide the solution to the world's crying needs. If the Incarnation is a fact, as I believe it to be, it certainly means that 2,000 years ago the Lord God decided that the hopelessness of humanity had been fully demonstrated. And to hopeless humanity, God presented His Son as a gift: "God so loved the world. that He gave His only begotten Son" (John 3:16). He did not undertake to force Him upon the world. Here was a free gift to be accepted or rejected according to individual or collective preference.

But wonder of wonders. God's gift to the world was despised and rejected of men. That rejection proved a fatal defectiveness in the life of every person, religious or otherwise. We human beings drove our Messiah from this planet. But you and I, as individuals, must face the challenge of His life and of His person, Christianity declares that redemption is still available through His life and death. God's offer of salvation continues to be presented with all the gentleness and loving grace suggested by the Nativity. The promise of forgiveness, life abundant and life eternal comes today from a risen and glorified Saviour: "Behold, I stand at the door and knock: if any many hear My voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with Me" (Revelation 3:20). What have you done with God's gift?

Luckily for us, this time it covered the whole town.

THINGS We see and hear

by BOB

Eddie Helms, down Goodyear way says buy a bargain. don't buy a pig in a poke. . .unless of course you want a poke with a pig in it!

Some folks fail to see the credibility of the old saying "If you can't lick 'em, jine 'em". Well, we've never had a desire before to "lick" the total abstiners. . . the folks who don't partake of alcohol. any form or fashion. However, we have always been of the opinion that a person, using his will power and we've always believed in the moderation of everything. . .well, we just believed that a fellow who took a drink now and then was not necessarily on the road to wreck and ruin through the use of alcoholic beverages, however strong. Well, it was a pure cast of not understanding the situation and we're none the less ashamed of that fact even if there are a million or two or three who too, do not understand the situation. Ignorance was our excuse. . . we didn't know that the discipline of our church called for "total abstinence" and we therefore had a more lenient outlook on what a man wanted for himself. The point has also been well taken that our bodies are the temples of God and we wonder. . .how much more respect we humans seem to have for the temples which we build with our hands than we do for the "temples" which the Lord God Himself "built". How do you plead?

We are told of an old gentleman out at the Nursing Home who professes himself to be something less than a complete Christian. We couldn't term him an Atheist because we personally do not believe in the word. but he is lonely, heartsore no doubt and greatly in need of moral support. The only thing that seems to turn his head toward a more Christian attitude is the presence of a certain group of Sunday School boys and girls. According to attendants at the Home, each time this group comes to present a program for them he can tell them even before he's seen them and always is quoted as saying "that's just beautiful". Now we ask you. . .could a man with such a vision for the beauty on this earth be considered an Atheist? On the contrary; we feel that down deep he will make a fine Christian. Ironical as it seems, the best Christians are the ones who are the hardest to win!

We'll have to hand it to local merchants this year. They seem to be working well toward efforts to keep business at home. Every store in town is decorating and giving out the "spirit" of Christmas which is "giving".

On a bright sunny day, pinpoints of light showing in the roof indicate leaks A wire or straw pushed through the holes help the home repairman to locate leaks from the outside.

From my front porch

By CARL HELM

There's a jolly friend of mine with twinkling eyes who flew to Alaska and sold an icebox to an Eskimo.

He set up a haystack on a street corner, had a passerby drop in a needle; he burrowed in the stack for a week till he found it.

He took a bull into a china shop, turned it loose, and no damage resulted.

What was his idea? He would not believe "it couldn't be done," so he did it. He had fun in the process, and people had fun watching him.

They got a laugh out of what seemed senseless antics, and a chuckle when they saw the pointed moral that some "impossible" things can be done when you try hard enough . . .

What a privilege it is to be able to encourage people to laugh — and, at the same time, encourage their courage! No wonder my friend is a happy man!

BULGER VOTED CLANTON FUTURE FARMER of YEAR

Donald Bulger has been chosen the Future Farmer of the Year of the Clanton FFA Chapter.

Donald's parents moved to the farm in March of 1957. Donald had always had an interest in farming and especially livestock. As soon as he got himself settled on the farm, he went to the local livestock auction sale and purchased three baby heifer calves. which he raised on a bottle. Today he has three fine young heifers.

He realized that a good pasture was necessary and he set out immediately to fence a twenty acre field for his future pasture. He fenced this field with four strands of barbed wire.

Donald realized that home grown feed was important and in the spring of 1958 he rented a tractor to prepare for his livestock and corn, cotton garden and other crops To pay for the use of this tractor he did some plowing for the owner of the tractor.

He bought a calf in the fall of 1957 and fed him out for showing in the South Alabama Fat Stock Show in the spring of 1958.

He exhibited and showed the [illegible] Sears Roebuck [illegible] Alabama Fair [illegible] Lamar County.

[illegible] Future Farmer FFA Chapter [illegible] and green hand [illegible] and graded one of [illegible] for the greatest boar [illegible] and now has two [illegible] breeding purposes. He kept four Landrace gilts for breeding stock. He also built a 500 capacity laying house and bought 300 started pullets for commercial egg production.

His supervised farming program for his first year in agriculture consisted of two market beef calves, 400 laying hens, one show calf, one sow, three beef heifers, five and one-half acres of corn and a home garden. From these projects he received $2,359.10 as a total labor income.

In addition to carrying these projects, Donald assisted his father almost full time in his care of the City Park at Clanton.

According to J. Reed Thompson, Donald's Vocational Agriculture teacher at Chilton County High School, Donald participated in many activities and clubs at the high school. The members of the Clanton FFA Chapter elected him as their reporter this year in addition to selecting him to receive this honor of being the Clanton Chapter's Future Farmer of the Year.

His ambition when he graduates from High School is to attend college and further his education in farming and specialize in livestock management.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. V L Bulger of Clanton Route 1.

Everyone who wishes to eat three times a day should take a very personal interest in the land and how it is used.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Add salt to cooking water after it begins to boil. Unsalted water boils sooner.

Add a little fat or oil to water when you cook spaghetti or macaroni This keeps it from boiling over.

If you grease molds used for gelatin, they're easier to remove.

If you rinse dishes in very hot water, they will dry in the air. Silverware may spot, so you'll be better satisfied if you dry it immediately with a towel.

Cook potatoes with the skins on-whether baked. boiled, or fried. You'll improve flavor and nutritional value, and save time.

Use a plastic bag or rolling pin to make bread or cookie crumbs -saves cleaning a messy table.

If you sift flour onto waxed paper, you'll eliminate a bowl to be washed.

Measure dry ingredients before liquid or sticky ones, and you won't have to stop and wash your measuring spoons.

Save steps by using a cart or tray to clear the table.

This plan for a one-floor house with full basement has many attractive points to offer for a small house.

The main entry with slate floor gives ready access to any room without passing through another.

The kitchen with adjoining family room is a convenient "U" shape. The sink is beneath windows facing the yard for good supervision of youngsters at play. There is a built in oven and cooking top.

The family room or dining area is part of the kitchen which is ideal for family conversation and supervision during meal preparation. This family room has a large closet for game storage or hobby equipment. There is also a large storage closet over the bulkhead of the stairway to the basement which has access to the attic as well.

The living room is away from traffic and can be closed from the family room by the use of folding doors as desired. It has floor length windows at the front. The sliding glass doors at the rear could lead to a terrace. A long unbroken wall provides for good furniture arrangement. The ceilings in the living room and family room slope with the roof making an attractive ceiling treatment illuminated from built in valances.

By throwing light against the ceiling, as well as down over the curtains and draperies, the valances give good general illumination and make the room seem larger while creating a daylight effect. Brightness of the light can be adjusted from a candleglow to full on with a built in Luxtrol light control, a new dial system that takes the place of ordinary on-off-switches.

General lighting in the bedrooms and den also comes from window valances which are Luxtrol controlled.

There are three bedrooms, one of which can be used as a combination study bedroom. This room has folding louvered doors separating it from the hall. All three bedrooms have built in chests with mirrors above and good closet storage.

There are two full baths separating the bedrooms, one has a tub and the other a shower. One could be used as the master bath and the other as a powder room guest bath.

The basement is arranged so that the laundry and heating equipment are to one side leaving a large free area for a recreation or hobby room.

These plans are available from Clifford N. Wright, Architect, 19115 Schoolcraft, Detroit 23, Michigan at $15 per set or $35 for three sets.

Festive Fruit Dessert:

Cranberry Holiday Mounds

Hi ho, it's holiday time! And here's a festive new treat the family will love. It's a surprise combination of rich buttery crackers and that favorite American fruit, the cranberry. The happy result: "Cranberry Holiday Mounds", a molded dessert that's as colorful as it is delicious. Easy to make, too—here's how:

Cranberry Holiday Mounds

One 1-lb. can cranberry sauce
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
2 cups finely crushed Hi Ho Cracker crumbs
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon sugar
½ cup chopped walnuts
1 cup heavy cream, whipped
Fresh orange slices

Empty cranberry sauce into a large bowl. Stir in gelatin. Add boiling water and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Chill until almost firm. Then stir in crumbs, rind, sugar and nuts. Fold in whipped cream and pour mixture into 6 individual holiday molds (or a 1-quart mold). Chill until firm. Unmold; place each individual mound on a chilled small plate, centered on a base of three orange slices. (If large mold is used, place on chilled serving plate and edge with orange slices.) Top, if desired, with whipped cream and whole cranberries. Makes 6 servings.

Second Chronicles

This second part of Ezra's history embraces the five hundred years from Solomon's enthronement (1037 B. C.) to the decree of Cyrus king of Persia (536 B. C.) ending the dispersion of Jerusalem. The history confines itself almost entirely to the kingdom of Judah; it discusses the ten-tribe kingdom only as it happens to become involved with the affairs of Judah. The record does not even note the fall of the kingdom of Israel before the invading of Assyrians, in the sixth year of Hezekiah's reign in Judah, in 740 B. C. Whereas the books of Kings gave more notice to Israel while it existed and less to Judah. Second Chronicles more than reverses matters by giving practically all its attention to Judah and no more incidental notice to Israel. This is because Ezra was primarily concerned with Jehovah's worship as centered at the temple in Jerusalem, whech the kings of Judah reigned. His record supplies us with a fuller view of the rulers of Jpdah than does that of Kings especially of conduct relative to Jehovah's worship.

The first nine chapters of Second Chronicles devote themselves to Solomon's reign; the story they narrate is very similar to that of First Kings, except that they condense or omit several things political, commercial or general, and concentrate more fully on things Levitical. Briefly, they tell of his request to be granted divine wisdom; his abundant riches; his contracts with Hiram king of Tyre relative to the temple constructed; the number and placement of his laborers; the start of the temple in the fourth year of his reign; its dimensions and ornaments and necessary furnishings and utensils; its completion; the transfer of the ark from the tabernacle to the temple amidst celebration; the descent of the glory-cloud of Jehovah upon the temple; Solomon's dedicatory prayer; the joyful feast of tabernacles that followed; Jehovah's nighttime appearance unto Solomon and assurance that his prayer was heard and would be heeded if the way of obedience was followed, but that utter deter destruction would fall upon the nation if it became disobedient his extensive building program throughout his kingdom; and, in closing, these nine chapters report on the visit of the queen of Sheba and once more mention his trading activities and the sumptuous riches of his kingdom. Omitted, however, is any account of Solomon's final ensnarement into demon-religion through the influence of his many heathen wives.

Harsh and oppressive rule on the part of Solomon's son Rehoboam provokes ten tribes to revolt. From the territories of these tribes the Levites flee to Judah and Jerusalem, and in their wake followed all those of the ten tribes who set their hearts to seek Jehovah. Jereboam of the ten tribe kingdom had supplanted Jehovah's worship with devilish calf-worship. But Rehoboam soon forsakes Jehovah's worship, and it is only by quick repentance that the capital of the southern kingdom is saved from the Egyptian hosts under Shishak. Rehoboam is succeeded by his son Abijah, who gains a God-given victory over Israel. His reign is followed by the good one of Asa, who abolished idolatry and fortified his kingdom. When 1,000,000 Ethiopians came against Judah, Jehovah gave His people a smashing victory. To stop the flow of Israelites into Judah the king of Israel started to erect barriers, but Asa countered by hiring the Syrians to battle Israel. For this he was rebuked, and died soon after. -- 10:1-16:14.

Jehosaphat reigns next, and his rule is also good. He believes in defense against demonism through knowledge. To beat back any inroads religion might have made and to forestall its gaining a strong foothold, Jehoshaphat inaugurates an educational campaign. He sent princes and priest and Levites, with the Book of the Law ,throughout all the cities of Judah to teach the people. (17:7-9 His kingdom prospered. He errs in making affinity with wicked Ahab of Israel to battle Syria, but recovers himself and walks on in Godliness. The climaxing event of his reign is the glorious victory gained over the combined forces of Moab, Ammon and Edom. The battle was God's he threw confusion into the ranks of the heathens that had ganged up on his people and they slew at each other in blind self-slaughter. -- 20:1-28.

Three wicked reigns follow, and undo the good accomplished by Asa and Jehoshaphat. First Jehoram, then Ahaziah, and finally that female Athaliah. The latter is the offspring of Ahab and Jezebel, and follows the parental footsteps. She gains the throne through murder, but in six years is herself killed when young Joash is brought from his hiding place in the temple precincts and installed as king. Under the wise direction of high priest Jehoiada Joash reigns righteously and effects repairs on the temple, but after Jehoiada's death the king and people fall into religious snares. A defeat at the hands of Syria comes as a judgment from Jehovah. (21.1-24:27) Next in line comes Amaziah, who starts his reign well but ends an idolater and a victim of murder. His son Uzziah did right in the sight of the Lord and prospered exceedingly militarily against the Philistines, Arabians, Mehunims and Ammonites. In this twentieth century he might be called a military genius; but his fame went to his head and he presumed to take over priestly duties, with the result that he was smitten with leprosy. (26-1-23. Jotham's good reign is followed by the wicked reign of Ahaz, and we are down to the year 745 B. C. and King Hezekiah. -- 27:1-29:27.

Godliness in his reign is outstanding. He reopens the temple, whose doors had been shut and whose service had been banned by the surpassingly wicked Ahaz;; reorganizes the Levites for temple service; and rallies the people generally to Jehovah's cause. (29:1-36) The two succeeding chapters elaborate on the Theocratic revival: the Passover celebration impends; posts bearing letters of invitation to join in the feast are dispatched throughout the length and breadth of both Judah and Israel; Judah's response was wholehearted, but the majority in Israel mocked, yet many turned their faces Jerusalemward and attended; the joyful feasting is extended even days; in popular uprising against demonism the people destroy all traces of idolatry in Judah, Benjamin, Ephraim and Manasseh; the law-arrangements for the care of the Levites and temple services are restored. Chapter 32 shows the goodly harvest of this broacast sowing of righteousness; the miraculous breaking of the power of invading Assyria under Sennacherib by Jehovah's wiping out the besieging army in a single night, leaving anly arrogant Sennacherib to totter back to his homeland and be slain in his religious temple by his own sons.

Tho two abominable reigns of Manasseh and Amon follow ,then comes the good reign of Josiah. Noteworthy during his reign was the time that a copy of the law was found when temple repairs were under way; also the jubilant Passover celebrated in the eighteenth year of his reign, because "there was no passover like to that kept in Israel from the days of Samuel the prophet". Faithful King Josiah died in a vain endeavor to stay the northward advance of the Egyptian hosts. -- 34:1-35:27. Cyrus, king of Persia, in 537 B. C. The final chapter tells that after a three-month reign Jehoahaz is dethroned by the king of Egypt and his brother Jehoiakim made king in his stead. During Jehoiakim's reign Egypt fell before the Babylonian armies of Nebuchadnezzaf and Jehoiakim was forced to become a tributary king unto the Chaldean monarch. Rebellion against Babylonish rule ended his kingship, and his son Jehoiachin had reigned only three month, and ten days before being carried off to Babylon captive. Now the last king of Judah ascends the throne, namely, Zedekian. In his ninth year he rebels against Nebuchadnezzar, despite the faithful counsel of the prophet Jeremiah, and in his eleventh year complete victory by Nebuchadnezzar ushers in the seventy-year period of desolation. Jerusalem, with it stemple, is razed to the ground. The last two verses leap the gap of the seventy-year desolation to proclaim the liberating decree of Cyrus, king of Persia, in 537 B. C.

The final chapter tells that af- EZRA next in series.

THE STRANGE "MR. X"

To everyone who knew him, Mr. X was an average man, a nice fellow who loved his wife and his children. Mr. X was a happy individual and a respected citizen in his community. No one could ever picture him a lawbreaker, much less a killer.

But one night, not too long ago, Mr. X joined a notorious society--the "Murder, Incorporated" of the highway. Here's how it happened:

Mr. X was seated behind the wheel of his brand new automobile. He was zooming along a highway at a fantastic, jet-like speed. He knew he was exceeding the speed limit, but he felt good piloting his powerful "spaceship". Besides, there was no traffic on the road. . . .His "air lanes" were clear and Mr. X was in a hurry.

Then, suddenly, there was tragedy. . .the dangerous, intricate curve in the road. . .the "pilot" lost control of the wheel. . .the crash. . .and Mr. X's crushed body and the flaming, mangled wreckage of his automobile became statistics in the bulging record book of death, destruction and misery.

Could this accident have been prevented? Yes, if Mr. X hadn't thought so lightly of his "cost of living" and stuck to a sensible driving speed. But he didn't, and an outside influence was needed, an influence that wasn't there.

He could have been apprehended by a state policeman before tradegy struck. He could have been given a ticket for violating the speed law and he could have been forced to "Slow Down and Live."

Unfortunately, there wasn't a policeman within miles of the scene of Mr. X's fatal "flight." And the wasteful death of Mr. X became another case of an under-staffed police force being unable to thwart physical, mental and financial ruin.

The insurancce industry and state traffic officials have been studying the police shortage problem for years and public opinion polls reveal a desire to increase the staffs and facilities of the police agencies.

But the problem still exists and the following questions and answers give a picture as to what we have, what has to be done and how it would be much less expensive to increase the police protection for all than to pay the whooping price of increased accident tolls.

How many state policemen do we have in the nation and how many do we actually need for effective Public PROTECTION?

The combined state police forces in this country today total almost 22,000 men. But we need more than twice this amount, roughly 31,000 additional policemen, to get effective protection.

How many State Policemen are assigned to traffic work and how many are available at any given TIME?

Of the 22,000 men, never more thn 75 percent--and frequently less--are assigned to traffic work. Of this number, some 60 percent are available at any given time, considering sick leave, court assignments, etc. When this diminishing number is further reduced by one-half to permit two eight-hour workshifts--we are left with only 5,000 men available at any time during a 16-hour day to patrol the nearly 600,000 miles of paved rural highway under state jurisdiction. The problem is even greater when an attempt is made to provide a commensurate level of protection for a 24-hour day or around - the - clock period.

How much area does each Trooper have to COVER

Presently, the policemen are compelled to cover nearly 119 miles per man. This is far too much area.

There should be at least one policeman for every 50 miles of paved highway.

How much would it cost to add 31,000 Policemen to the present COMBINED FORCES?

It would cost some $250,000,000 each year. This may look like a staggering sum of money--but it is small in comparison to the total economic loss arising from motor vehicle accidents each year. In 1957, for instance, accidents cost a total of $7,250,000,000 or seven billion dollars more than the price it would have cost for an effective, well-trained and well-equipped law enforcement corps. It has been established that the accident rate goes down in direct proportion to the number of police assigned to patrol highways.

How might the Program be FINANCED?

One way it might be financed would be by adding from $2 to $4 specifically earmarked for safety expenditures to the cost of every motor vehicle registration. The average motorist would be more than willing to spend this amount to get real safety and protection each year. In addition, the expanded police force would play a tremendously valuable part in crime suppression.

THE ORIGIN OF CHRISTMAS CAROLS

The custom of singing Christmas carols dates back to ancient times when waifs and minstrels sang them in the streets.

The first true Christmas carols, which spread to many European countries, originated in Italy during the thirteenth century. These carols, with their folksong-like quality and childlike simplicity, gave way in popularity to more dignified and solemn Christmas hymns.

IN EUROPE--

Selden Witnesses Big Dedication at St. Paul's

(Editor's note: This is the last in a series of three special article written by Congressman Armistead Selden from Europe while he was there representing the United States at several official functions. Rep Selden, who is now in the Sixth District will resume his weekly "Report From Washington" when Congress reconvenes in January.)

The climax of my two-weeks' stay in Europe was the dedication of the American Memorial Chapel in London's St. Paul's Cathedral. I attended this service as a representative of the United States Congress.

The dedication took place in the presence of Queen Elizabeth II, Vice President Nixon, and a distinguished group of Britishers and Americans. It turned out to be one of the greatest of all the public functions that I have ever witnessed and one that will never be forgotten.

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL

St. Paul's is one of the largest and most impressive religious buildings in the world. It was built by Sir Christopher Wren to replace an earlier cathedral destroyed in the great fire of London, and it remains today as Wren's masterpiece even though it was damaged by German bombs in World War II.

When General Eaker arrived in Britain during the early days of the Second World War with the first contingent of American troops, he is reported to have made the following statement: "I have nothing to say until we have done something; I hope when we go you will be glad we came."

The American Chapel in St. Paul's is an effort by the British to acknowledge what General Eaker's troops, as well as those who came along in succeeding months and years, did in behalf of Britain, and it is a special tribute to the Americans, a great many of them more than 28,000 British-based fliers, who gave their lives in World War II.

SELECTION OF SITE

Following the war, the American Air Force erected upon their airfields small memorial tablets to those who died, and then they asked the British authorities if they could find a suitable site for a central memorial in London. Their response was immediate, one British official saying: "It is not for you but for us to erect that memorial."

General Eisenhower was asked to cooperate, and this he did, preparing and presenting a Roll of Honour of those for whom the memorial was to pay tribute. The British authorities concluded that no finer or more appropriate site could be found than St. Paul's and they chose a place immediately behind the high altar of the war-damaged cathedral for a special American Chapel.

The Times of London led the campaign for contributions, and they came from all parts of the islands--some in the form of large checks but a vast part of the money was in the form of pennies and sixpence from the children of Britain. Almost $200.000 was raised in this manner.

CHAPEL DEDICATED

The dedication ceremony, which lasted just one hour, was carried out with great precision. The program called for Mr. and Mrs. Nixon to arrive at 11:52 a.m., and they arrived exactly at that time. The program called for Queen Elizabeth to arrive at 11:55 a.m., and she was on time to the split minute. Most of the British Royal Family were there, including not only the Queen and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, but also the Queen Mother, Princess Margaret, the Duchess of Kent, and the Princess Royal. The Prime Minister of England, Harold McMillan, and other members of the British government also attended. Leading the service was the Archbishop of Canterbury, who is the primate of the Church of England. While St. Paul's is of the Church of England, those of other denominations had conspicuous parts in the program, including Baptists, Methodists, Congregationalists, and the Church of Scotland (Presbyterians).

Queen Elizabeth unveiled the memorial tablet which bears the following inscription: "This chapel commemorates the common sacrifices of the British and American peoples during the Second World War and especially those American servicemen whose names are recorded in its Roll of Honour. This tablet was unveiled by H. M. Queen Elizabeth II on 26 November 1958 in the presence of Richard M. Nixon, the vice President of the United States of America."

SERVICE IMPRESSIVE

It was a spine-tingling experience when the fine boys choir of St. Paul's, accompanied by the great Cathedral organ and an array of trumpets, was joined by a congregation of 3,000 persons in singing both "The Star-Sprinqled Banner" and the British national anthem, "God Save the Queen."

But the highlights of the service came when the Archbishop of Canterbury, standing in the new chapel, repeated the passage from John Bunyan's "The Pilgrim's Progress" that ends with the words: "So he passed over, and all the trumpets sounded for him on the other side." With this, a bugler high in the famous Whispering Gallery of St. Paul's sounded Taps. There was a hush of half a minute or more, and then from the far end of the Cathedral, another bugler sounded Reveille.

1ST CHRISTMAS DECORATION

How was the first Christmas tree decorated?

According to legend, when Christ was born a group of stars looked down upon an olive tree, a date palm and a pine tree which stood over the manger.

Seeing that the pine had nothing to offer in His honor while the others gave fruit and dates, they descended from the heavens to rest upon the pine's boughs as an offering—and that was the first Christmas tree!

GET THOSE LICE, BRUBS IN COLD MONTHS

Lice and grubs are major pests to be controlled by Alabama farmers during winter months.

Speaking in Auburn this week, API Entomologist W. A. Ruffin said that at this time of the year cattle grubs have worked their way through the animal's body to just below the surface of the skin along the back These pests then cut air holes through the skin and thus reduce the selling price as much as $10 per animal.

Lice, another major winter pest, prevent beef cattle from gaining weight rapidly and cut down on milk production in dairy animals, Ruffin explained.

Both cattle grubs and lice can be controlled by spraying with rotenone. A spray of 7½ pounds of five percent rotenone to 100 gallons of water will be effective if applied to 200 to 400 pounds of pressure along the backs of the cattle.

A two percent rotenone dust can be used on dairy animals and 4-H calves that are gentle enough to be dusted. Two or three treatments of rotenone are necessary, the specialist pointed out

Lice alone on beef animals and non-lactating dairy cattle can best be controlled with lindane, methoxychlor, or toxaphene spray. One treatment with any of these materials diluted as recommended will give good lice control till winter.

A dust containing pyrenone or rotenone is the only material that can be used on lactating dairy animals for control of lice, Ruffin said. Two treatments in a two week period with either of these materials is required for lice control.

BLOOD VESSEL DISEASE

There are approximately one thousand miles of blood vessels in the average human body. These vessels vary in size from about one and one half to two inches in diameter to a size so small that they would transmit only one blood cell at a time.

The parts of the circulatory system which supply the extremities of the body are known as the peripheral blood vessels. Two of the most common disease involving the peripheral blood vessels are Buerger's disease and arteriosclerosis. In Buerger's disease there is an inflammation within the lining of the blood vessel wall which produces a resultant narrowing of the luminal opening in a diseased blood vessel, a deposit of a fatty substance, known as cholesterol, will be evident in the inner lining layer and the layer immediately beneath it. This is the abnormal deposition which occurs in the condition known as arteriosclerosis or hardening of the arteries.

Both conditions then produce not only a narrowing of the luminal opening but also a loss of elasticity of these blood vessel walls. Thus the blood flow is not even and smooth as it should be but more or less impeded and even obstructed. In addition to impairing the blood flow, the deposits of infections responsible for the narrowing of the blood vessels can produce such a pronounced narrowing that blood clots can be formed within the artery itself which ultimately may lead to the development of gangrene.

While Buerger's disease and arteriosclerosis produce changes throughout the body, these changes are much more extensive in the lower extremities, They result in muscle cramping on walking, coldness of the skin of the feet, as well as a change in color and consistency of the skin. The skin is thin and inelastic in the involved extremitees and may be extremely pale or fiery red or dark blue in color.

There are several diagnostic tools to aid the physician in determining the extent of inadequate circulation. Once the exact diagnosis has been established, every effort is made to improve the blood flow. Management is directed to the prevention of a recurrence of an acute episode and prevention of the development of a gangrenous condition.

COTTON REFERENDUM TO BE VOTED ON DECEMBER 15TH

An important decision will be made by Alabama cotton growers on Monday, Dec. 15.

Growers will vote in a referendum to decide whether marketing quotas will be in effect for their 1959 cotton crop. "All farmers who engage in the production of upland cotton in 1958 will be eligible to vote in the referendum," said API Extension Agronomist Joyce Jernigan.

If at least two-thirds of the growers voting approve the quotas, marketing quotas will be in effect on all farms growing upland cotton next year. Penalties will apply on excess cotton, and growers will have an opportunity to elect between complying with their regular, Choice A farm allotments and Choice B, which will increase cotton acreage by as much as 40 percent.

By complying with the Choice A allotment, a grower will be eligible for price support at the full level available--not less than 80 percent of parity. Choice B compliance means a grower will be eligible for price support at 15 percent of parity lower than under the Choice A program.

If more than one-third of the growers disapprove quotas, there'll be no marketing quotas or penalties. Choice A allotments will be in effect, and price supports to eligible growers will be available at 80 percent or parity. In either case, [illegible] allotments will be announced [illegible] next year. [illegible] price supports.

Quotas are not put into operation unless they are approved by at least two-thirds of the growers voting in a referendum on the question.

3-D Radar in Plastic "Overcoat"

Comfortably huddled inside a spherical all-weather "overcoat" of plastic stands the triple-threat antenna of Frescanar, new 3-D system which scientists term the most revolutionary advance in electronic detection since the development of radar.

The antenna revolves within its balloon-like house of neoprene-coated plastic, protected from wind, rain, snow and driving sand. The encasing bubble does not prevent Frescanar's electronic beams from poking inquisitive fingers into distant skies to detect multiple airborne targets.

Developed and manufactured by Hughes Aircraft Company at Fullerton, Calif., for the U.S. Army Signal Corps, Frescanar (frequency scanning radar) is now disclosed as the eyes of "Missile Monitor", an Army air defense missile fire distribution system for mobile use with a field army.

The new Hughes radar system is three-dimensional. It simultaneously computes distance, bearing and altitude of airborne targets and feeds the information to weapons batteries where Nike and Hawk missiles are launched to knock any invader out of the skies.

Frescanar, designated the MPS-23, consists only of the antenna with its collapsible plastic cocoon, an equipment van and a power truck—simplicity that makes the system highly mobile over rough terrain.

Where conventional radars require two or more antennas, operators and master consoles, Frescanar achieves similar or better results with only one of each, sharply reducing weight, bulk and personnel to make transportation with other Army field units easier. Use of transistors instead of tubes further cuts size and increases ruggedness for movement.

Frescanar concentrates all available power in sharp pencil beams of energy that pour in fan-shaped array from the antenna, according to Dr. Nicholas A. Begovich, Hughes ground systems group scientist. Pinpointing targets with extreme accuracy, up to 50 per cent farther than ever before possible, the electronic beams scan rapidly, greatly increasing the number of targets that can be tracked at the same time. The new system also provides better separation of closely-spaced targets with a minimum of ground clutter.

What Is The Largest "Woman's Club" In Alabama?

414,000 Women Who Save Trading Stamps Are The Largest "Woman's Club" In Alabama

Every day about 414,000 Alabama women make it a point to shop where they get trading stamps. This large group of smart, thrifty Alabama shoppers, with their common interest in trading stamps, can be thought of as a huge "woman's club" with membership throughout the state.

Of course this "club woman" gets wonderful things for her home and family through such favorites as S&H Green Stamps. Through her thrift and diligence she provides "extras" for her family. And although she may seldom think about it, her active saving is enormously good for business in our state.

Last year, for example, trading stamp companies purchased $8,995,000 worth of products from Alabama manufacturers. Making these things provided jobs for 870 Alabama people. S&H Redemption Stores, paying local rent and taxes, employ many more.

In the light of these facts it would seem that not only Alabama women, but everybody in the state can be thankful that the trading stamp is a part of our way of life.

This message is published as public information by The Sperry and Hutchinson Company, originator 62 years ago of S&H Green Stamps.

A Salute to DALE COUNTY

PEANUTS and PIGS . . . the Two "P's" of Progress

Rich in history and Indian lore, DALE is one of the most progressive of Alabama's 67 counties. It was created in 1824 and named for Gen. Samuel Dale, famous Indian fighter and member of the Alabama Hall of Fame.

While diversification has greatly enhanced the economy of DALE county, peanuts and pigs still remain its two basic "P's" of progress. The Dale County Swine Breeders Association, organized in 1916, was the first of its kind in the nation.

With its sizeable personnel and impressive purchases, Ft. Rucker—permanent U. S. Army aviation headquarters—is also contributing much to the economic fabric of this county.

Another factor aiding the prosperity of DALE county, and Alabama as a whole, is the considerable amount of state, county and municipal taxes paid annually by the Brewing Industry. In 1957, for instance, this totaled some $8 million. Certainly the light, bright beverages of moderation—beer and ale— pay their way handsomely!

In this friendly, freedom-loving land of ours Beer belongs... Enjoy it

XMAS PLAY AT MT. PLEASANT DECEMBER 23rd

We are enjoying the fine messages Rev Odie Colley is bringing us these Sundays. Those of you who are unable to come are surely missing a blessing.

We drew names for Christmas gifts this past Sunday. and we will present our gifts after the Christmas play Tuesday, December 23rd.

We send our heartfelt sympathy to the Lonza Davis family in the death of their infant child. May the Lord comfort and bless them in their hour of sorrow.

The Jim Foshee family enjoyed a family reunion at their home. There were 65 present.

We take great pleasure in congratulating the newly weds. Mr. and Mrs. John Eiland (nee Elizabeth Glass of Calera. John in the Army and stationed in South Carolina.

On our prayer list: Mr. V. O. Moore at home and much improved; John D. Smith, Mrs. S. H. J. Webb very ill in Birmingham; Mrs J Sawyer somewhat better; Mr Carroll Johnson much better; Mrs. Albert Snider who has been ill the past week, also Mr. L. R. Armstrong, who has not been feeling to well lately.

On Christmas Eve

Two small stockings hanging there,
Just below the open stair,
And beside them fair to see,
Is a wonderous Christmas tree.
In the nursery overhead,
Past asleep in dainty bed,
Two wee youngsters; and the while
Angels watch--and smile, and smile.

Two small stockings, old and torn,
In a room of gladness shorn,
No bright, sparkling Christmas tree,
Only gnawing poverty.
Two wee youngsters in their bed
Sadly shiver, side by side,
And, as restlessly they sleep,
Angels watch--and weep, and weep
--Clara B. Waldron.

After reading this poem it behooves us to be on the watch for the needy ones in our community and elsewhere. Christmas is near and the needs of some are great. Give and take them the story of Jesus.

The Young married people called on the minister and his wife, the Colley's the past week. They report a very enjoyable evening together.

MRS. SHORT HONORED ON 82ND BIRTHDAY

On Sunday, December 7th. Mrs. M. F. (Fannie) Short, was surprised with a birthday dinner, honoring her on her 82nd birthday. Four of her five sons and her only daughter were presesnt. There was a large number of the fifty odd grandchildren, some great grandchildren, nieces, nephews, one sister, in-laws and friends. Many of the grandchildren could not be present, for being in some branch of the service, some were sick and numerous other reasons. Mrs. Short is the mother of 11 children.

The crowd began arriving before church services, but the large part came after church services at the different churches. The oldest grand-daughter, Mrs. Jewell (Short) Robinson came in with the huge white three tired birthday cake with 82 pink candles and "Happy Birthday" also in pink, which was placed in the center of the bountifully filled table. Jewell baked the cake herself. After everyone enjoyed a wonderful meal, Mrs. Short displayed her gifts, for which she was so thankful. Her greatest joy came from the fellowship and thoughtfulness of all those who were present. We wish for "Mother Short" many more happy birthdays.

Last Minute Christmas Hints

Glove Wardrobe

A NOVEL, practical gift suggestion that will be long appreciated — a wardrobe of gloves for every job in the home and garden. A complete line of Pioneer household gloves range in prices from 59¢ to $1.49. This includes feather-light Nimble Fingers, handsome Ebonettes, flock-lined Super Ebonettes and the fine Bluettes with a knit-cotton lining. These standard-sized household gloves provide all-around hand protection and comfort.

Gift From Your Kitchen

GIFT LIST LONG? Budget short? Then hie to the dime store for pretty little jars, take them home and fill with homemade fresh cranberry sauce—only 10 minutes' cooking. Easier still, grind Ocean Spray fresh cranberries and oranges, add sugar, for the perfect meat-mate relish. Affix gay ribbons or seals to each jar for a thoughtful and inexpensive gift!

An Old-Fashioned Tree

POPCORN AND CRANBERRIES, colored paper chains, a star for the top, and, for the young ones, gingerbread men —that's an old-fashioned tree. Still fun — home-baked Brer Rabbit molasses cookies — sweet and light or spicy and dark — cut in shapes to suit your fancy. Decorate with confectioner's icing and attach hanging string with icing, too.

Flowers For Christmas

MORE FLOWERS will be wired throughout the nation to help celebrate Christmas than ever before, according to officials of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association. The Poinsettia, traditional Yuletide plant, is first in favor. Red carnations plus holly and bouquets of red roses are also popular as beautiful messengers of Christmas greetings. Record numbers of centerpieces and bouquets will also be wired overseas to friends and relatives during the Holy Season.

Watches Are Timely Gifts

WATCHES are popular Christmas gifts for men of all ages, according to a national survey. If there's a teenager or college man in your family, an excellent gift suggestion is a waterproof, shock-resistant watch with metal expansion band. Westclox, originator of Big Ben clocks, now offers such a timepiece (named Scepter), and available most everywhere for under fifteen dollars.

Maine Sardine Treat

WHY NOT tuck a couple of cans of Maine Sardines into your teenager's stocking? The handy flat cans are easy to wrap, and make unusual stocking fillers and are a pleasant change from the ever-present candy. Maine Sardines are good, too, to keep on hand for emergency snacks during the holidays.

FOLKS and THINGS About Town

by Ben

THE excitement of snow! Last Thursday morning when Clanton awoke to a world clothed in white, there was much excitement and fun making everywhere. It is strange the effect a little snow has on people. There wasn't more than one inch in our neighborhood but the effect was magic on both young and old alike. Perhaps magic is the world it changes drab lifeless things to works of art and beauty.

CHRISTMAS time comes around again and again we wish for our readers the most wonderful, happy Christmas they have ever known. The Yue log burns bright at our house. The kids are all home and their kids make Christmas worthwhile. You know, we still believe there is a Santa Claus too, and have lived enough years to know of which we speak. Maybe we don't always see him, or always know he is there, but as sure as the friends we know, the loved ones at home, and the goodness in the hearts of our fellowman exists--there is a Santa Claus.

YOU are not necessarily worth a lot because you have a lot of money.

CONGRATULATIONS to Russ Shelton at Shelton Motors on win-First prize for the best decorated window this Christmas. Course we know that Mrs. Shelton was the decorator, but it is all in the family. Clanton Laundry won second place and Dari-Delite was third.

MARION Eastering says that reports show that Clanton was the first place in the deep South to get snow this year. The snow that fell last Thursday morning was recorded at two inches and goes on record as the first snow anywhere in the deep South this year-that is, this winter.

LITERALLY thousands of Chilton Countians today are mourning the death of Dr. W. C. Golden, who died early this morning. Doc was very popular with the Chilton County Medical Association as well as the people of this section whom he had served for more than twenty years. To say he will be missed would be putting it too mildly as he was firmly and warmly loved by so many of our citizens. He had a special little place in the heart of his patients that will live on and on.

THE dedication of the new bridge over the Coosa River was held Wednesday. At latest report the bridge was to be named the "Folsom" bridge.

A CITY newspaper, having just been notified of a murder in an outlaying town, sent a reporter there post-haste. As he dashed up to the house where the crime had been committed, he was stopped by a police guard.

"But I've got to get in," protested the reporter. "I've been assigned to do the murder."

"Well, you're too late son," announced the guard. "Somebody's already done it."

Christmas Seals Sale

Mrs. R. M. Tucker Chairman of the 1958 Christmas Seal Sale in Chilton County, announced today that $500.00 has been received toward a county goal of $1,328.00.

The Chairman urged everyone to participate in this year's Christmas Seal Sale. Mrs. Tucker said. "Much of the credit for advancement seen in the fight against TB goes to the voluntary TB Associations and to the good people who back its program financially.

"Each dollar spent for education and research today will have hundreds of dollars for treatment and rehabilitation in the future."

Mrs. Tucker voiced the opinion of the group as she said, "Let's get behind the Christmas Seal Sale with all we have. We need protection from TB in Chilton County. Chilton county needs TB control, and nothing you invest in gives you greater or more satisfying returns for your money."

Pointing out that in Chilton there are 22 cases of TB and in the state of Alabama more than 800 cases, the chairman added, "Too much emphasis can't be given to the need for financial support of the Christmas Seal Sale.

"The sale is by mail and is the only opportunity Chilton county citizens will have to support the tuberculosis control program, since no personal solicitations will be made.

PAST, PRESENT, IMPRESSIVE FUTURE

NEW FOLSOM BRIDGE THAT WAS DEDICATED WEDNESDAY

YOU could look at this picture for a long time and still get inspiration from it. It includes the relic of a bygone era, the ferry across the Coosa; it includes Mitchell Dam in the far background, our source of electric power and evidence of our present day progress; in the center foreground, the new, modern bridge joining Chilton and Coosa counties and representing our optimistic look toward the future and a better tomorrow! Past, present and future all in one picture; how's that for coverage? (Photo by Scott)

SUBSCRIBERS! ATTENTION,

This is just a friendly reminder so you won't miss a single copy of your Chilton County News. You see, Uncle Sam has postal rules and regulations which require that all subscriptions be governed closely by definite orders. We don't particularly like this because almost all our subscribers intend to renew their subscription. If you don't, it's usually just an oversight. Then we must face the unpleasant matter of having good and valued friends missing the paper.

Subscription Rates:

1 year	$2.00
2 years	$4.00
5 years	$8.00

Please check the upper right hand corner of your paper. There you will find your name, address and the expiration date as to when your subscription will expire. Please inform us if it is incorrect. Telephone 32. Clanton.

C'MON FELLAS, LET ME THROW ONE!

THE other night, two Clanton youngsters went to bed with visions of snow (which they had never seen) heavily on their mind. The first thing they did upon awaking next morn was to look. . .and lo, and behold, "snow". Above is a scene of the "big" snow of last Thursday in Clanton and vicinity. Pictured are Dent Jr., 12 and Nancy Williams 9, children of Mr. and Mrs. Dent Williams of South Clanton. The photo had to be taken 'on the double' however, because true to fashion the old southern sunshine soon had all visions of a white Christmas on the rout! By the way, the fellow in the middle is Ranger! (Photo by Scott)

YOU can't see them all, but if you don't attend at least one Christmas Service at our churches during this noblest of season's you will certainly be doing yourself an injustice. There are some beautiful musical arrangements being presented at various churches for the spiritual uplifting of our community. It is our hope that our community takes advantage of the talent available to it!

ON page one this week, you will find what we believe to be the first record of a snowfall in Clanton to appear in "your community newspaper". If it isn't we wish you'd bring us something to prove otherwise.

THE $200,000 Newport Business Form, Inc. that is locating in Clanton is well underway at this time. According to reports from Alabama Planning and Industrial Board it will employ 60 new employees. This will be added revenue to Chilton County as well as jobs for many local persons. We have, let's hope, broken the "Industry Barrier" which has so long plagued our community and set us apart from the rest of the State. We have opened the door. . .let's work hard to keep it open!

NEVER undrestimate the other fellows opinion. This is proven by the fact that even a clock that won't run is right twice each day. The other fellow, even though he's wrong most of the time, will bear listening to!

IF you're wrong, admit you're wrong. . .and then say something else stupid!

DIPLOMACY: IT TAKES GIVING, AND A LOT OF GUTS!

IT HAS BEEN brought to our attention that certain of our correspondents are not doing their utmost to promote harmony and good will among their fellow citizens in their communities.

As representatives of this newspaper we strongly urge that all correspondents try to go about their business and private lives as well, with the utmost discretion and most sincere diplomacy.

We base our existence on facts. . .not fancy! And by the same token, we do not feel that there is a place in the community press for personal squabbles concerning misunderstanding the citizenry. Unless of course, this action will eventually concern more of the populous, in which case it becomes newsworthy.

We do not intend to "but in" when two or three folks are of disagreeing natures. We do intend to protect the good name of this newspaper, and as far as possible that of all other people concerned in any community problem or undertaking.

Displomacy is a virtue few of us realize. Perhaps it's because we are undiplomatic and it takes effort to be otherwise. Whatever the case, this newspaper has and is totally, at all times against any type of "knocking" social or otherwise, unless actions of individuals justify public concern. . .that's where we come in as your free press.

Please do not ask us, orally or written to take part in a private feud and most assuredly do not ask that we print a half truth or a "suggestive statement". Sometimes innocent words on the surface can carry an awful lot of hate to some person who knows a situation. Let's all pull together, try to forget differences . . .and Merry Christmas everybody!

TRAGIC—AND FOOLISH

IN the four years since perfection of the Salk Vaccine, more than 35,000 Americans have been saved from death or crippling from infantile praalysis, the Public Health Service says.

This is a remarkable record documented by the government's chief health agency. And the PHS data shows that the vaccine still is effective among persons who took it more than three years ago.

But there are 41 million children and adults under 40—the age most susceptible to this disease — who haven't had even one dose of the vaccine. Every day they go without it, they risk death or life in a wheel chair.

This year there has been a 30 per cent increase in polio, all because so many have failed to take the shots.

"It is a tragic circumstance," said Dr. Leroy H. H. Burney, chief of the Public Health Service.

It is doubly tragic because it is so foolish.—Birmingham Post Herald.

OUR CHRISTMAS

Its just ten more days till Christmas
People scurrying on their way.
Cooking, shopping, planning, talking;
About their plans for Christmas day.

Having families home for Christmas
Giving gifts, and having fun,
But our Christmas will be different
For we cannot have our son.

But the Lord has given promise
That each vacant place he'll fill
If we will only trust him,
I can assure you that He will.

Christ has been my soul's supporter
Through these trying, weary days
And we're having Him for Christmas
And I truly hope He stays.

And if I keep my house in order
He has promised me He would.
So in Christ we'll be with Buddy
And he'll make our Christmas good.

Written by Mrs. Otis Royal whose son "Buddy" is in Bryce Hospital in Tuscaloosa.

What do you know... About Your HEART

(Presented each week as a public service of this newspaper in cooperation with the Alabama Heart Association.)

1. What are the symptoms common to most types of heart disease? Ans. Uncomfortable breathlessness on exertion; palpitation on mild effort; pain under breast bone which may radiate to neck or arm; in later stages, swelling or ankles and legs.
2. Will an electrocardiogram taken immediately establish the diagnosis of a heart attack? Ans. Not always. The changes in the electrocardiogram which occur as a result of a coronary heart attack may not appear for hours, or rarely, even days. The physician may need to take a series of electrocardiograms.
3. Does a stitch in the side, for instance after running, come from heart disease? Ans. No.

ABUNDANT LIFE

GOD SHARES YOUR INTERESTS

Lee Braxton has had fellowship in more homes of Christian businessmen than any other man we know. He has found that one is as mistaken to believe that businessmen are not interested in God as he is to believe that God is not interested in businessmen.

God is interested in whatever you do. With respect to business, God is in business, too—many businesses, the greatest of which is the saving of the souls of lost and condemned humanity.

God is the greatest of all businessmen and he constantly seeks qualified partners. In turn, he offers himself and all of his infinite resources to his partners for their own businesses here on earth.

Not long ago Lee and I exchanged greetings with an acquaintance in an Indiana city. We thanked him for all he was doing to help win souls to the Lord. He wouldn't hear of our thanks. "It's the other way around," he said. "I am the one who is grateful."

He said that as soon as he accepted God's partnership offer and used his faith, the Lord blest him beyond his fondest dreams. "I began at first," he explained, "by building small frame houses, one at a time. Later I was able to build three at a time, and now, a few years later, I have several large real estate developments under way. I have been able to be a greater blessing to my church and to the Lord's work. All the glory and all the praise should go to God."

That is quite an admission for a competent businessman. To God belongs the glory and the praise.

It is God's will for us to prosper, in soul, mind and body. Lee Braxton and countless others have learned that God is a perfect partner to have in any business, for with him as a partner, failure is impossible. When failure is impossible there can be only prosperity. As you work for him, he works for you. In mutual interest, there is mutual aid—and mutual success.

The world's population today is almost three billion people. The goal of God's business is to save souls, bodies and minds of every one of them.

For this important business, God calls qualified businessmen as partners.

Every businessman should realize his need for a partnership with God and his value in return as a partner with God! To realize that God is interested in businessmen and their businesses is the beginning of successful business-ca-

God shares your interests whatever they may be. Will you share his interest in the saving of souls by helping take his gospel to every creature in every nation?

A Christmas Wish

I like to think that there will be
On Christmas Day, around each tree,
A feeling of the presence of
The Child God sent us with His love;
That there, beside each girl and boy,
He'll be, to witness all their joy.
I like to think that all the while
The gifts unfold, I'll see Him smile;
And that He'll hear our caroling
And know it's for the thanks we bring
To God the Father, for His birth,
To be among us here on earth . . .
O, may we have our Christmas gay,
But not forget that it's His day:
Let's let Lord Jesus share in it —
Let's have a bit of prayer in it.

THINGS We see and hear

by BOB

First opportunity we've had to tell those clowns in the Christmas Parade the other Friday what a swell as we understand it called for help added to the festivities. Morris Moatts, James Duke Heflin ,Charlie Gay and an unidentified (by us anyway) subject which we hope will let us know 'who he'. The clown idea added greatly, we think to the overall success of the affair and these fellows deserve thanks from us who would never have the 'fortitude' to get out there and do as they did!

Certainly sorry to hear about old Chick Wade's home catching fire Monday afternoon. A good little bit of damage was done and there was nobody at home to know what was going on. Some neighbors, as understand it called for help and much was spared. Alert neighbors do come in handy, huh!

Russell Lewis, Jr., a friend of ours and son of the Mr. Lewis who runs the machine shop behind Clanton Motors (also a friend of ours) has been accepted from a group of more than one hundred prospects (he and one other fellow) to become an Air Force Cadet. His dad says that's all he's ever wanted anyhow and since this "is the air age" he figures he'll be worth something for his trouble. "Red" Lewis is made of stern 'stuff' like his 'old man' and we predict he will carry his carreer a good long way we can all be proud of him. Congratulations to both of 'em. . .and mom, too!

There's something magical about a youngster's impression of the Christmas Story We suppose that's because it's basically a story for and about children. Young Jerry Dalton, a most faithful member of our Sunday School Class, gave us his interpretation of Luke 2:1-20 last Sunday and we must admit for a spell there we completely forgot where we were It was awe-inspiring the way that little fellow had a picture in his mind and the unbreatable way in which he put it over to his listeners It also renewed in us that old feeling of "who am I to be 'teaching' these kids, anyway?'

Nothing quite like going out to granddaddy's and getting your Christmas tree Sunday we went to granddaddy Yeargan's and picked us out a tree for 'us' kids Tomorrow or the next day we'll go down and cut our tree, whack us off some holly and shoot us down some mistletoe Man, there's nothing like good old-fashioned Christmas

If you give us anything this year for Christmas make it a smile and a friendly hand. will ya!

Here, you can Give Christmas

The Editor,
Chilton County News,
Clanton, Alabama.

Dear Sir:

We are afraid that ole Santa Claus will be too busy taking care of the children to remember to stop at our Nursing Home.

We would appreciate it if you would ask your readers to remember these unfortunate old people at our nursing home on Christmas. We know that many of them will have relatives who will remember them but there are some who have no relatives. We would like to be able to tell them on Christmas morning that Santa did remember to leave something for them. They do not need any food stuffs but there are numerous personal items that they would appreciate. We have ten men and twenty women in the home.

We appreciate any help that you can give us.

Respectfully yours,

How To Prevent Skids In Winter

By Jeanne Smith, Dodge Safety Consultant

ALTHOUGH MUCH has been written on how to drive safely in winter, many motorists still are confused about types of tires and chains that best prevent dangerous skids on snow and ice.

Miss Smith

Some helpful information on this subject, based on tests and research by the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards, was revealed recently at the International Skid Prevention Conference in Virginia.

Committee Chairman A. H. Easton made the following observations to aid drivers who live in northern climates or mountainous areas. Residents of southern states, who may be planning northern trips this winter, will be interested in his analysis also.

1. Regular tires are inadequate for certain severe winter driving conditions. Smooth or worn tires corner very poorly and should never be used on ice or snow.

2. Mud-Snow tires provide better snow and ice traction than regular tires while winterized tires, with special tread treatment and additives, provide good traction on ice, but do not help much on snow.

3. Sanders give outstanding traction on ice, but are not helpful on snowy surfaces.

4. Reinforced tire chains are the most effective traction device in reducing skids on both snow and ice. Round wire tire chains provide good stop and go performance on ice and snow, but side-skid resistance is low compared to reinforced chains.

Urging motorists to be prepared for winter driving hazards, Easton pointed out that stopping distances on winter surfaces are from three to twelve times as great as on dry pavement. Ice, as it begins to form or melt, he said, is the most dangerous winter driving condition.

One Solitary Life

ONE SOLITARY LIFE

HERE IS A MAN who was born in an obscure village, the child of a peasant woman. He grew up in another village. He worked in a carpenter shop until He was thirty, and then for three years He was an itenerant preacher. He never wrote a book. He never held an office.

.....HE never owned a home... He never set foot inside a big city. He never traveled two hundred miles from the place where He was born. He had no credentials but Himself

HE had nothing to do with this world except the naked power of His divine manhood. While still a young man, the tide of popular opinion turned against Him. His friends ran away. One of them denied Him, He was turned over to His enemies. He went through the mockery of a trial. He was nailed upon a cross between two thieves.

HIS executioners gambled for the only piece of property He had on earth while He was dying—and that was His coat. When He was dead He was taken down and laid in a borrowed grave through the pity of a friend.

NINETEEN wide centuries have come and gone and today He is the centerpiece of the human race and the leader of progress. I am far within the mark when I say that all armies that ever marched and all the navies that ever were built, and all the parliaments that ever sat, and all the kings that ever reigned, put together have not affected the life of any upon this earth as powefurlly as that One Solitary Life.

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

GOD WANTS YOUR TIME, TOO

Paul Wichelhaus is president of a tool supply firm in Charlotte, North Carolina. His business extends throughout that state and also the state of South Carolina.

His son, Herbert, is a partner in the business and serves as vice-president.

No matter how pressing business matters may be, about one-half of their time every week is spent for God.

"God means more to me than anything else," Paul says.

It was not always so.

Paul came to the United States in 1923 from Solingen, Rhenland. His background was Protestant. His story matched that of hundreds of thousands of other businessmen, perhaps, in that he was engrossed in his business and in the affairs of his community without ever actually having had a personal experience with God.

In 1951 we conducted a tent Crusade at High Point, North Carolina. Paul had never seen a religious service conducted in a tent, so, more out of curiosity than anything else, he attended.

He was surprised to hear the simple gospel of Jesus Christ preached by an evangelist in a business suit.

Paul Wichelhaus gave his heart to God at the very first meeting he attended, and thereafter an entirely new life opened up for him.

For one thing, he felt free. He discovered he could get up before people and tell them how he felt about God. His fear was gone. It was not hard for him to speak to groups of people any longer. He knew he need not contribute only money to the Lord now; he could contribute his time—his testimony, too.

Paul attended other crusades and gained more experience and knowledge. He became increasingly active as a Christian businessman until today he devotes one-half of his time to the service of the Lord.

He is widely in demand as a speaker, and time and time again his testimony has proved to be a powerful influence for the Lord.

Paul believes in making Jesus Christ his partner in business day in and day out and in being God's partner in taking the gospel to others. God has blest his business to such an extent that he is free to come and go as he chooses.

Paul Wichelhaus chooses to devote one-half of his time to the service of the Lord. That makes it fifty-fifty. How about you?

Christmas Seals Sale

Mrs. R. M. Tucker chairman of the 1958 Christmas Seal Sale explained the philosophy of the Chilton county TB Association and the reason for a Seal Sale campaign.

"It is plain to see", said Mrs. Tucker, "The annual Christmas Seal Sale is the most expensive educational effort of the tuberculosis association. Each year 2,000 families in Chilton county receive through the mail their Christmas Seals and a letter reporting the local TB problem, what is being done about this problem and what needs to be done. Also, the Christmas Seal itself displayed on cards and packages, is a constant reminder of the TB problem and the big job ahead to completely eradicate the disease.

"Contributions received here in Chilton county, both large and small, show interest in the TB problem and give strong support to the association's program. The people of Alabama have accepted the Christmas Seal as the traditional symbol of the never-ending campaign against tuberculosis.

"We feel the individual should have the right to decide whether he wants to give or not. The Christmas Seal Sale provides an opportunity for each citizen of Chilton county to decide upon the merits of the TB Association and its value to the community. In this way he can give from his heart to a cause in which he is interested."

The philosophy of citizen participation by contributing to the Christmas Seal Sale is essential if the tuberculosis movement is to continue to serve as a force in the community. It is healthy because it is educational, voluntary and frankly public.

Serving on the committee here in Chilton County are: Mrs. R. M. Tucker, Chairman, Mrs. Julia Hester Hicks, Treas.; Miss Faye Wooley, Sec.; Mrs. Lloyd Howard, Mrs. Audrey Smith, Miss Louise Foshee.

A LESSON THE NEWSPAPER HAS NEVER FORGOTTEN

Newspapers, even the biggest of them, all started by being close to the interests, wishes and tastes of the people. They all started small, with limited capital, and those that deserved to grow, grew. Newspapers were not started by tremendous aggregations of wealth in New York or Hollywood with an "idea" to put over or sell. And many of the men who are successfully editing or publishing papers today started as boys — as printer's devils—in a country weekly office.

Newspapers have never forgotten that people want to read news about the people they know — their neighbors. In the Chilton County News you will find news of State and County affairs— but you will also find out about the doings and happenings in your own community and your church family.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

C. W. Harder

In what may well develop into one of the most interesting hassles of 1959, the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee has issued a report asking the Justice Department to consider the feasibility of court action to break up General Motors. The committee is headed by Sen. Estes Kefauver. D

* * *

It seems quite logical that some probe should be made of the situation.

The National Federation of Independent Business has never been against bigness per se. Rather, the stand has always been that there should be no limit on the size a business may attain, provided free competition is not diminished.

Thus, it would appear that quite properly, it should be determined if General Motors, or any other Big Auto, has conspired to drive out competition.

It is a certainty that the auto industry, one of the nation's most vital, has been concentrated in the hands of a very few. It is perhaps long over due to hold an inquiry into just how this has been done.

In addition, the impact of certain practices of Big Autos in certain aspects of the national economy, particularly in the pricing of labor, should also be thoroughly discussed, as there is not a small manufacturing plant in the nation that is not profoundly affected by the contracts entered into by Big Autos.

In fact, at a time when inflation is quite properly of prime concern to all thinking people, some of Big Autos labor contracts do not appear to be the most wholesome.

Particularly reference is made to the clause which provides for automatic raises as and when the cost of living index goes up.

An increase in wages tied in with increase in productivity cannot be logically assailed, as the increase in production tends to hold down inflationary forces. But wage increases not based on increase in production, are not logical.

Because inasmuch as in the cost of living index, autos play a vital part in pegging this index, any increase in auto wages, with subsequent increases in product prices, merely increases inflationary forces. It is an example of inflation waxing fatter by feeding on itself.

Thus, there are many profound considerations to be considered in any probe of the auto industry, or any factor in the industry.

Neither should there be any feeling that because an operation is so big, its operation is therefore quite sound.

Not too long ago, Congress made a study of General Motors and found the firm was working actively against the best interests of one of its strongest assets . . . its big corps of independent dealers.

Remedial measures were taken which have done a great deal to alleviate the unfavorable position in which many dealers were placed by unfair policies.

Thus, it seems high time that Congress pursue this matter much further.

After all, majority control of one of the nation's leading industries is a situation that should be studied from all angles.

Beauty Cream Solves an Age Skin Problem

by Amelia Cram

The years after 35 in a woman's life is the time when special attention should be paid to beauty care . . . especially of the skin.

The skin darkens from years of exposure, becomes leathery and lined or dries out; becomes crepy, and dark age spots appear. As it ages, the skin tends to lose water and the natural oil that retains moisture, thus losing its elasticity and suppleness—its youthful appearance and translucence.

Although nature causes these effects upon the skin, it is a fact that the woman who shows "signs of age," in truth, shows "signs of neglect."

A particularly fine many-purpose reconditioning cream for aging skin has been created by a world famous laboratory that has given over 30 years study and research to the effects of cosmetics on various skin problems.

This delightfully scented cosmetic is specially prepared to fade ugly age spots, smooth and soften weather-beaten leathery skin, and bring about a new youthful texture and translucent glow.

Golden Peacock Imperial Creme, says its maker, works just this way: by a special ingredient it steps up surface circulation, stimulates the oil-making glands, tends to increase natural lubricating oils and moisture which, in turn, restores to the skin a youthful firmness and resiliency. By its rich lubricating base a smooth surface, soft and pliant texture is regained. By its mild, safe bleaching action, freckles and unsightly age spots are faded away.

To wish you, every one,
A MERRY, MERRY CHRISTMAS

- 2 cups sugar
- 2 tablespoons light corn syrup
- ¾ cup water
- ½ teaspoon yellow food coloring
- ½ cup ice water
- ½ cup instant nonfat dry milk crystals
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- Flaked coconut, finely chopped nuts or assorted nonpareils

Sprinkle gelatin on ½ cup cold lemon juice in large mixing bowl. Combine 2 cups sugar, syrup and ¾ cup water in 2-quart saucepan. "Town Crier" Spurs Cuban Cigar Output

When Cubans talk, they use their hands. Their lively gestures, however, often play havoc with one important island industry—cigar-making. Owners of Cuba's cigar factories have solved this problem in a somewhat off-beat way. They provide a "reader" (photo above) whose job it is to keep employees' minds occupied during the working day, As the workers' busy fingers sort tobacco leaves into grades and colors and roll them into the world's finest cigars, this pleasant-voiced scholar sits before a microphone and reads—from the daily papers, from biographies, magazines, the latest "best-sellers" and the enduring classics. It's certainly good employee relations for cigar manufacturers — and good business, too!

The reason was Miss Carol Martin, lovely 20-year old lady in waiting for Mobile's flower panorama, the Azalea Trail Festival.

Each year for 45 years, Foreign Traders have gathered for this annual convention. Each year for 17 years, delegates from the Port of Mobile have journeyed to New York for the Convention, have met their friends and customers at the Port of Mobile Hospitality Room.

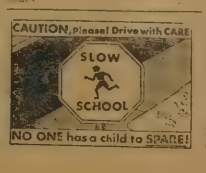
This year, Miss Martin added a charming touch. Clad in her ante-bellum costume and her beautiful smile, Miss Martin greeted the guests and presented them with camellias from Mobile's gardens and nurseries that were flown up fresh daily.

Ostensibly, Miss Martin was on hand with illustrated brochures to spread the word about the Azalea Trail Festival during February - March of each year when these flowers are in full bloom.

But, Mobile delegates felt that this also publicized the fact that the Port of Mobile is a year around port, where while some other ports may be closed or slowed down by ice and sleet--in mid-winter in Mobile flowers are blooming and the only ice in the port is in a mint julep glass.

Delegates to the convention--besides the southern belle--were M C Cunningham, L O Wilson, Joe A. Killian, from the Alabama State Docks, Mobile; Joe Williams and Eddie Beuvais, Waterman Steamship Corporation; J. C. O'Neill, AT&N-Frisco Railway; Bob Gay, Mobile Chamber of Commerce; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Seifert, First National Bank; Ken Lott Merchants National Bank; Mobile freight forwarders Ed Murray, John Godwin, George Cunningham, Paul Bouis, and P E Lilley; the Mrs. Frank Webb, who is in charge of the Azalea Trail Center each year, and who was official chaperon to Miss Martin.

Use of smoking for pipes and roll-your-owns has increased, the U S Department of Agriculture reports. Folks are also using more cigars.



May your Christmas feast be bountiful . . . your Christmas tree the brightest . . . your holiday, the gayest, and your hearts filled with the rich benevolence of the CHRISTMAS DAY! This — our wish — for your harvest of happiness!

SURPLUS PROPERTY PROGRAM MAY HELP CIVIL DFENSE

The Alabama State Agency for Federal Surplus Property has netted the State, property and equipment valued at more than $50 million over and above any cost to the State

An administrative review of the Agency under the direction of the State Superintendent of Education reported that surplus property received the first seven months of this year amounted to $5 Million. This property goes to schools, colleges, hospitals, and Civil Defense.

It is estimated that the final users of the property pay about 4 percent of its value.

The Agency has been very alert in acquiring surplus property

Examples of Federal surplus property acquired are Northington General Hospital by the University of Alaaama, public school site of 40 acres near Veterans Hospital in Montgomery, the Decatur Trade School, and the public school site near Maxwell Air Force Base.

Excellent utilization is being made of the Agency and the property obtained through it. Officials of schools and institutions visited stated that they understood and were complying with the regulations relating to the transfer and use of surplus property

Maxixmum utilization is obtained in school systems where the superintendent acquires surplus property for the entire school system and distributes it in terms of need.

An acceptable perpetual inventory is maintained by the Agency. andled in a businesslike manner

The affairs of the Agency are tested to confirm to generally accepted accounting principles and practices.

The Agency is making a definite contribution to the peace ime economy of the State.

Since Civil Defense Organizations are now eligible to acquire property through the Agency. it could prove to be of even greater value to the State in case of serious disaster or enemy attack.

Alabama has participated in the Federal- Surplus Property Program since 1945

It is being handled by the Alabama State Agency for Surplus Property, which maintains warehouses in Attalla and Mobile and a central office in Attalla.

All operations of the Agency are on a pay-as-you-go basis without any appropriations from the State

ALABAMA UNEMPLOYMENT

Jobless workers in Alabama were paid $2,884,804 in unemployment compensation during November, Arthur D. Kelly, Director of the Department of Industrial Relations, ann unced today. This total included $794,850 paid under the temperary unemployment compensation program which extends duration for workers who have exhausted benefits under the regular programs.

The $1,927,777 paid under the regular State program marked the eighth consecutive month of decrease During November a pear ago, payments from the State's Trust Fund amounted to $1,571,391. Sizeable over-the-month reductions were noted in payments made to persons identified with the manufacture of textiles, primary metals, and transportation equipment and with the trade and construction industries.

During the month, 5.598 jobless workers drew their first payment in a current benefit year; 3,491 workers drew their final check. Since the first of the year, 104,629 persons have entered the payment load and 50,507 have exhausted all benefits to which they were determined entitled under the regular State program.

Initial claims. a measure of new unemployment, were filed by 15,-276 persons during November, off about 1,700 from the October figure. Claims for continued unemployment dropped by 11.9 percent to 109,928 A short work month was largely accountable for these decreases

Unemployment veterans and federal workers were paid $162,177 during November as compared with $154,619 during the preceeding month. These programs are financed entirely from federal funds.

The Alabama State Employment Service made 6,408 nonfarm job placements and 2,216 farm placements during the month. At the end of November, 52,857 jobseekers were registered with local offices of the Employment Service.

$2,500 TO IMPROVE SOIL TEST METHODS

A $2,500 grant has been awarded by the National Plant Food Institute to the Alabama Agricultural Experiment Station at Auburn to support research directed at improving soil test methods.

"Fertilizer applied in accordance with soil test recommendations returns millions of dollars in added income to Alabama farmers," said Dr. S. L. Tisdale, Southeastern Regional Director of the Institute "We are anxious to help in every way possible in the carrying out n this work'

The project, which is to commence January 1, 1959, is under the direct supervision of Dr. R D Rouse, Soil Chemist and Director of the Soil Testing Laboratory at Auburn. "Chemical soil tests, when properly calibrated with crop response data, offer the best means of determining the lime and fertilizer needs of our important agricultural crops," he said. "We plan to use this grant to investigate further the response of forage crops to phosphate, potash and lime as related to soil tests."

The research ultimately will be carried out at a minimum of 20 locations on each of the major soil associations in the State. The first study will be limited to Norfolk sandy loam. Suitable areas with established stands of Coastal Bermuda, Bahia grass, and sericea lespedeza will be located within a radius of about 30 miles of Auburn

Fresh water is now obtained from the ocean at a cost of $1.75 per thousand gallons. Scientists believe that the conversion rate soon can be reduced to between 50 and 60 cents per thousand gallons.

Turkeys fed rations with eight percent lard furnish their own fat while cooking, according to research done by the U .S Department of Agriculture Lard-fed turkeys do not require as much basting while they are cooking.

CLANTON ONE OF 63 CITIES LISTED FOR NAT'L AIRPORT PLAN

Sixty-three Alabama cities have been recommended by the Alabama Department of Aeronautics for inclusion in the 1959 National Airport Plan. Recommendations were submitted Friday

The Federal Airport Plan shall be revised annually by the Civil Aeronautics Administration. To be eligible for a federal grant, a city must be listed in the current plan

Each year since 1946, when the National Airport Plan was established, the Alabama segment has been coordinated with the Alabama Department of Aeronautics and based on the recommendations of the department.

The National Airport Plan is not a construction program, but is the basis for the construction program. A listing in the plan is necessary for a federal grant, but listing does not automatically insure a grant. Federal grants are dependent on the submission of an application to CAA, the availability of funds and the approval of the application.

The recommendations of the Alabama Department of Aeronautics cover current or pending airport needs and are in line with its policy to anticipate and plan for the needs of Alabama Aviation.

With the steady flow of new industries into Alabama and the increasing needs of business flying, new airport requirements are developing rapidly in many cities.

The 63 cities recommended are as follows:

Abbeville, Albertville, Alexander City, Aliceville, Andalusia, Anniston, Ashland-Lineville, Atmore, Auburn-Opelika, Bay Minette, Bessemer, Birmingham, Brewton, Butler, Camden, Centreville, Centre, Clanton, Cullman, Decatur-Athens, Demopolis, Dothan, Elba, Enterprise, Eufaula, Evergreen, Fairhope Fayette, Fort Payne, Gadsden, Geneva, Greenville, Grove Hill, Guntersville, Haleyville Heflin, Huntsville, Jackson, Jasper, Lanett, Leeds, Luverne, Marion, Mobile, Montgomery, Monroeville, Muscle-Shoals (Florence-Sheffield-Tuscumbia), Ozark, Phenix City Roanoke, Russellville, Scottsboro, Selma, Sylacauga, Talladega, Talassee, Troy, Tuscaloosa, Tuskegee Union Springs, Union Town, Vernon, Wetumpka.

DON'T LET CHRISTMAS BRING TRAGEDY

Christmas just isn't Christmas without a tree.

According to API Extension Forester Ivan Martin, nearly every family in the United States will buy a tree of some sort to help make the Christmas holidays a success. However," says Martin, "everything good must be handled with care, and Christmas trees are no exception." For a safe and truly merry Christmas, follow these safety suggestions offered by Martin.

Select a fresh, green tree. "If the needles are turning brown, the tree has already dried out and will be a fire hazard," says the specialist. Saw off the butt end on a slant, at least one inch above the original cut. Keep the butt end standing in water during the entire time the tree is in the house. Be sure to refill the container daily as the tree absorbs the water.

Be sure the tree is well supported. Keep it away from fireplaces, radiators, television sets, and other sources of heat. The tree should be placed where it won't block an exit in case of fire or other emergency. Never, never use lighted candles or other open flames on or around Christmas trees.

Check electric tree lights and connections. Don't use worn, frayed wires or electric cords. Avoid using combustible decorations and inflammable reflectors for lights. Keep metal foil icicles or tinsel out of the bulb sockets. Avoid overloading electric circuits. Accumulations of wrapping paper and playing electrical toys under the trees are also dangerous practices.

Have a merry Christmas and insure a happy beginning to the New Year by avoiding fire hazards.

OBSOLETE BUILDINGS ROBBING FARMERS OF INCOME

Obsolete farm structures are robbing farmers of gains in income which could otherwise be realized from recent progress in production efficiency, it was reported this week.

Estimates are that somewhere between 50 and 60 per cent of all farm buildings are obsolete. A new survey made by agricultural engineers of the U. S. Department of agriculture indicates that long-time emphasis on reducing actual production costs has resulted in a serious lag in other major segments of the farm end of agribusiness, such as buildings

Progressive farmers now are applying management economics in two general directions to remedy this deficiency, the authoritative publication "Agribusiness Outlook" reports in its current issue.

One is in the establishment of efficient materials-handling systems. The USDA survey suggests that farmers who have laid out their farmstead building plans in such an efficient way as to create a smooth flow of materials have made sizeable gains in cutting unit production costs by reducing farm chore time.

The second step being taken, the publication says, is that of selecting building materials on a performance basis--those that deliver the most.

ALA. ENGLISH TEACHERS PRAISE ETV

The Association of College English Teachers of Alabama have issued a Resolution applauding the State of Alabama for its leadership in Educational Television.

The Association compliments "The wisdom of the Alabama Legislature and others in authority for establishment of the First Operating Statewide Educational Television network in the nation and the three producing studios for enterprising experimentation."

It particularly credits the network's "open-circuit credit courses, in-school enrichment programs credit courses, and series and special events of general cultural interest" which the Association considers "A fruitful and Praiseworthy Accomplishment."

WHAT HAPPENED TO VANILLA?

Have you bought vanilla ice cream lately? Or vanilla cookies? Chances are you only thought you did. If you are like most Americans—you didn't look at the list of ingredients the package was supposed to contain. If you did look at the ingredients, most likely they indicated the use of vanillin instead of vanilla.

Vanillin is not another name for vanilla. Vanillin is a chemical made from wood pulp or coal tar products. Vanilla, however, is the fruit of an orchid which grows in Madagascar and Mexico.

Old-fashioned ice cream, vanilla cookies, and other products which we loved when we were kids, used pure, natural vanilla —the kind we buy in foodstores when we are given the choice—and which homemakers use who still do their own cooking.

Vanillin is a cousin to coumarine, another imitation vanilla, which was used until it was found to be poisonous. Vanillin is strong and harsh and is used because it is cheap. But when it is used, other additives have to be used along with it to mask the unpleasant flavor. The resultant product is inexpensive—and tastes it.

Supposedly our most popular flavor, real vanilla in ice cream has been replaced by a chemical.

The contents of ice cream today are such as to make a good dairy farmer throw up his hands. In some cases, manufacturers take good milk, draw off the cream, add vegetable fats, vanillin and other chemicals, and our children don't seem to know the difference because they have never tasted a product of pure ingredients.

In an effort to get the picture in focus, the Pure Food and Drug Administration has for seven years been toying with a new set of "Definitions and Standards of Identity for Frozen Desserts," which would, for example, make it illegal for an ice cream manufacturer to call his product "Vanilla Ice Cream" unless it actually contained no other flavoring but pure vanilla extract.

Women's clubs, dairy groups, individual consumers interested in honest labelling of food products, should write to Mr. George P. Larrick, Commissioner, Food and Drug Administration, Washington, D. C., urging the immediate adoption of the new "Definitions and Standards of Identity for Frozen Desserts."

Dr. Peale Says Pay TV Won't Work

"It's SIMPLE. Pay-TV won't pay. The people can't afford it."

Dr. Norman Vincent Peal, one of the Nation's best-known clergymen and authors, who has appeared frequently on the air, made this observation in a recent interview.

"Sure. I've been thinking about pay-TV, and so have other church leaders with whom I've had private shop talk; but we've been reluctant to declare ourselves publicly because the situation is fraught with politics. I think it is important to speak up now," he said, "especially since the people are gaining premature comfort from the decision of the Federal Communications Commission to postpone a trial test of pay television. This is the time to build strength.

Dr. Peale, who believes in positive thinking and confident living, are espoused in his best - selling books, also believes that positive action should be taken against positive greed

As pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church in New York City and founder of the American Foundation of Religion and Psychiatry, he drew on his own experience to document his conviction about free TV.

When I go out on lecture tours to raise money for my Foundation and other services, I charge a modest admission free," he said. "I discovered that the people cannot afford even the small amount. It simply is a fact that most people are living on strict budgets. When our official organ, 'Guideposts,' failed to get some subscribers to renew at the tinp cost of $2 a year, we sent out a questionnaire to learn why. Nearly every withdrawal was based on the budget factor—mind you, $2 was important to most budget on a yearly basis.

Asked what he thought about the free to see a religious service on television, Dr. Peale said:

"It's well to remember that in actual church, if the plate is passed, contributions are strictly voluntary. Imagine my saying to my parishioners, 'I don't intend to preanh a sermon until you pay me 50c!"

How does Dr. Peale weight the power of television? "It is formidable, of course," he said. "The greatest showcase for the manufacturer of goods to advertise his wares; the grestest medium whereby a clergyman mivht persuade the viewer to allow religion to work in his life. to let it give him vctory ofe rhis problems. . .TV, in many respects, set the tone, morals, idealism and conditioning of the American mind.

"There is no question in my mind but that TV is in the public domain. It belongs to the people like the beaches. the right of way.

"So many people are lonely," he said. "Unfortunately, their inner resources are limited—I mean intellectually. They find themselves with nothing to do, day and night, and no money to go out on the town.

Dr. Peale recalled a sight on one of his numerous train trips through the country. "I remember going through Baltimore," he said. "I saw this forest of TV antennas on a whole score of pathetic-looking, poor-district houses. It was symbolic, as if those antennas were being sent up by all those people into the heavens for something, something nice, to come into their homes.

'Let's not forget the aged and the handicaped,' Dr. Peale went on. "There are so many. My brother, Dr. Robert Clifford Peale, says that in about 80 percent of the homes he visits on his medical rounds there is at least one elderly person on the premises either living on a small fixed pension or supported by his children. Often his eyes are glued to the TV set. I feel that TV is to the aged and disabled what braille is to the blind."

Does Drd. Pealse have anything to say against TV programming as it is today?

"Well," Dr. Peale said in his oerky drawl, "sometimes one thinks of it as a bad, metallic, inane mechanical screech getting into your nervous system. But as long as it keeps its good taste, it is a great force for education, enlightenment and pleasure."

And the possible elimination of commercials, sometimes labeled objectionable by some club and church groups?

"First of all," Dr. Peale said, "it would be unfair to the advertiser who perhaps wouldn't sell as much of his product as he does now, and then the American people would be footing the bill of higher prices. Secondly, I do not feel that commercials are a corrupting force."

Dr. and Mrs. Peale are the parents of two daughters. 15 and 23, and a son, 21. "Our family could afford pay-TV," Dr. Peale admitted frankly, "but we're all against it because pay-TV presents the great danger of filling the pockets of the few and emptying the pockets of the many. This is a case where the interests of the smallest citizen who is lacking in influence must be protected.

"Let's look at what we've got on present TV," Dr. Peale said. "There are many rich, regular hours of free religious programming and family counseling each week. Pay-TV champions have not come up yet with any plans for providing such public service, to say nothing of news, science and other educational shows not classified 'pure entertainment.' On the other hand heads of the broadcasting networks, such as Dr. Frank Stanton of CBS and Robert Sarnoff of NBC, have shown a sense of responsibility to the public. There is a growing number of food-for though programs for which free time, and often technical production are provided."

Dr. Peale's favorite programs are: The Lineup. I Love Lucy. Person to Person, Dean Pike and This is Your Life. He was paid tribute over the latter about three years ago. He also loves Westerns, especially Wyatt Earp.

"Pay television is a form of tax; the scheme won't take hold. But," Dr. Peale concluded, "we must do all we can to prevent it." — Ruth Nathan.

THUMBSUCKING

A parent who attempts to break his child of thumbsucking by scolding, or even coaxing, is not using good judgment. Either practice can be harmful because it donates a lack of everyday common sense in rearing a child.

A child's first automatic sense of comfort is through sucking. Whether breast or bottle fed, sucking satisfies his hunger; and it isn't long before he discovers that the thumb is a handy gadget for his mouth. Thus is established the thumbsucking habit. Very often the habit suggests that the baby is not getting enough sucking—perhaps he has been taken away too soon from the breast or the bottle, or again he has been put on a nursing schedule that allows too few nursing periods. In any event, the child derives comfort from his sucking, an important factor in why he does it.

As the child grows older, he usually resorts to sucking his thumb to fill an emotional need. Feeling unwanted and alone may be responsible; so he seeeks to satisfy himself. Unhappiness, fear and insecurity are emotional problems that loom high on a child's horizon.

It is generally conceded that up to the first few years, thumbsucking may be considered normal with the habit acting as a sort of pacifier or comforter . Child's curiosity is an ever present wonder The more he explores the new things about him, the more his mind is taken from himself. Usually by the time he reaches the wonders of his five to six years of age world, the thumbsucking habit is forgotten.

If the practice continues beyond this age, however, definite steps for correction should be undertaken by consulting with your physician. Notice when your child sucks his thumb, don't call attention to it, but try to understand the circumstances surrounding the action. Then try to attract his interest by creating new and happy situations and satisfactions.

What Is The Largest "Farm Group" In Alabama?

103,846 Farm Families Who Regularly Save Trading Stamps Are The Biggest "Farm Group" in Alabama.

America's farm families are traditionally thrifty. The same pattern of thrift is found in Alabama. It is only natural, therefore, that the response of Alabama farm families to one of the oldest forms of thrift — the trading stamp — is so noticeable.

Today, about 103,846 farm families save them. You might also say that these savers constitute the largest single farm group in the state.

During 1957 alone, thousands of dollars worth of trading stamp merchandise went into farm households in the state, and every 2 seconds a farm family is redeeming trading stamps.

There is still another side — direct income for farmers. During 1957 the industry purchased $631,000 worth of primary materials that go into the manufacture of merchandise for stamp redemption.

No one can contemplate these facts and fail to realize that both personally and economically the trading stamp industry is a meaningful and welcome force in the life of our state.

FOLKS and THINGS About Town by Ben

A SHORT paper--a short column. Heard a fellow down at the cafe say the other day the reason he stopped drinking. He and a buddy went out one Christmas Eve morning in their buggy and took along a quart. Late that evening they come riding home, both on the same horse and they haven't fount that buggy 'til this day. So he swore off.

THE past weekend broke our safety record on the highways. Two were killed--the first since September 12, when a little child was killed. The accident the past weekend was unnecessary. Speed and whiskey was the cause.

Christmas comes but once a year,
Followed by the bills--Oh dear!

YOU shouldn't repeat the old saying "There's a fool in every family" when you're talking to an only child.

A WOMAN was consulting a tombstone dealer with regard to a memorial for her late husband.

"How would a simple 'Gone Home' do?" asked the dealer.

"Perfect," said the widow. "It was always the last place he ever thought of going."

MERRY, Merry Christmas everybody.

Clanton Halfway Mark In Mamm'th Marathon

According to reports Sunday from officials of the Missouri Valley College Mammoth Marathon Run the halfway mark was reached here in Clanton on Sunday at midnight covering 600 miles of a 1200 mile course to be completed at Orlando, Florida where this college will play a Tucson, Arizona team in the Tangerine Bowl on January 3rd.

As early as Sunday morning cars started drifting through Clanton on their way to the Tangerine Bowl, but it wasn't until midnight Sunday, according to officials, that the actual runner passed the 600 mile halfway point.

The 1200 mile run, with 60 runners relaying the lighted torch on half-mile laps around the clock is estimated to take about seven days, which, according to our information should put them at their destination on Christmas Day.

Automobiles are being used to carry the runners. Each car carries three relief runners, first aid equipment and food for the actual working shift.

Coming through Birmingham, Alabama a Runner was hospitalized and operated on for Appendicitis. Other than that no incident has been reported.

The Marathon is covering seven states. They are: Missouri, Arkansas. Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida. The route came through Memphis, Tenn.; Tupelo, Miss.; and Birmingham and will continue south of Clanton on through Tallahassee and Ocala, Fla.

Reports were that the runners were holding up fine and spirits were high. The opinion was voiced by the members of the group that they could spend Christmas in the Tangerine groves of Central Florida.

Well, Clanton wishes them luck and a Merry Christmas!

LATE BULLETIN

Many folks will be anxious to learn that the Rev. Griffin Lloyd is doing fine after a check-up Monday and Tuesday in a Birmingham Hospital. It was one of those cases of "I felt fine 'til I got here". Anyway, his girl Friday, Helen Parrish reports to us that he was doing fine Tuesday, just a little 'sick-ish' after it all. He's due home today. The doc says he's alright. Gratifying news.

LOCAL MAN HOSPITALIZED AFTER BREAKING, ENTERING HOME

At about 5:00 p.m. Thursday, December 18, the family of Lewis Gulledge entered their home and were surprised by a Negro prowler.

Odis Wilson, about 31, of Clanton had, according to information entered the home earlier and "made himself at home". When the father came in about 20 minutes later Wilson threatened him with a firepoker and Gulledge, grabbing the first thing handy clubbed the Negro with a piece of stovewood.

The Gulledge home is about 2½ miles Northeast of Plott's Store, Highway 222.

Wilson was hospitalized and according to repolts Tuesday is still in the local hospital suffering severe head injuries. An attempt was made to have him transferred to a Memphis, Tenn., Veterans Hospital, but negotiations had not been compvleted as of Tuesday.

Information was not available to this reporter at Chiltot County Hospital as to the extent of injuries, but it was ascertained that he was improving. Wilson is the nephew of Dixie Wilson, local owner of a river camp on the Coosa River

ENOUGH TO MAKE YOU WELL

According to reports from sources inside Chilton County Hospital the Christmas Day menu will be well worth the unavoidable fact that you are a patient therein.

If that doesn't make sense, may be this will:

Baked Turkey on Bread Dressing
Rice with Gravy
Buttered Broccoli
Chilled Cranberry Salad
Hot Rolls and Butter
Christmas Cake and Ice Cream
Coffee, Tea or Milk.

And if that doesn't make sense you'd better see your Doc 'cause there's sump'n the matter with ya'.

Caught Short . . . And We're Glad of It!

HOORAY! The "Shop At Home" theme was so well accepted in Clanton and Chilton County this year that local merchants didn't have time to talk advertising this week. We're glad. . .it just proves what we've been saying all along. . ."IF YOU DON'T TELL THEM --HOW WILL THEY KNOW?

Local merchants certainly told them this season through the pages of this paper (as well as elsewhere) and the end result was more trade for the local business houses.

We had another reason for cutting it short this week (in quantity - not quality). This was so that employees of the News could enjoy a long Christmas Holiday before getting back to the daily chores of printing a newspaper.

We appreciate all who cooperated so fully in getting copy and material in to us at an early and convenient time.

A VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS TO YOU OUR READERS

SELDEN PREDICTS

Sixth District Congressman Armistead Selden today predicted a bright future for the Coosa-Alabama Waterway. This prediction was made at the dedication of the new Coosa River Bridge which connects Chilton and Coosa Counties. The bridge is located south of Clanton, and is spans, according to Rep. Selden, one of the greatest undeveloped waterways in the country.

At the ceremony Congressman Selden congratulated the public officials of Chilton and Coosa Counties, as well as all interested citizens, who played a part in making the bridge a reality.

THE LORD GIVETH

A person passes on and the world, in general, invariably "marches on". Some leave their mark on more personalities than others: some leave a deeper mark and some leave little mark at all. Dr. W. C. Golden, who died last week left his mark and left it very deeply on practically every person we know. As one who regarded him very highly put it: "it seems strange, doesn't it, that a man with so much knowledge, skill and ability must be taken away and that knowledge and ability is no more." They felt the great loss of a man who was blessed with the God given hand to help those in need of help.

And take ourself for example; many is the time we personally have been to the Doc's office and as many times he came in, looked at us with that stare (which you all know) of his and asked "what's wrong with you" or "what seems to be the trouble?" And that, to a great degree, sums up the Doc's life, anyway. . ."what's your trouble?" Always ready to help those he cared for at a greater sacrifice than most of us have the ability to give. He brought our two youngsters into the world and as far as we're concerned that immortalized him in our family. He gave of himself and his talent freely among his fellow beings in his community; perhaps that had a great deal to do with his going. Whatever the case may be and though it was the hand of God that took him he will be missed by our family and will always have a special place in our memory. And, as usual, we never did get around to saying. . .

Thanks, Doc!

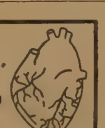
What do you know... About Your HEART



1. If a baby's feet often feel cold and are blue, does he have poor circulation?

ANS. Not necessarily. During the first year of life the pattern of temperature regulation is not completely developed. The small amount of blood flow that leaves his feet "cold and blue" is enough to meet his needs at room temperatures of 68 to 72 degrees.

2. When a child has a fever of 102 and his heart is beating so fast it is difficult to count it, does he have heart trouble?

ANS. No. The normal heart beats faster when the body temperature is raised.

3. What is meant by congenital heart disease?

ANS. It is a term applied to a number of malformations of the heart with which children are sometimes born.

CHISTMAS DREAMS AND REWARDING FAITH

This is time of year when all the little ones are wishing that their dreams will come true. Dreams of toys piled beneath the Christmas tree. Dreams of happy laughter as the whole family gets up early to see what Santa has delivered. You see, little ones have Faith that all this will happen.

For parents, there is the Faith that somehow they will make this the most wonderful holiday the children have ever known. Not merely by the showering upon them of gifts. Not alone by the glories of the shining tree. Not alone by the turkey and mistletoe.

Not alone by any of these things--but by the recognition that this season is a holy season. Thinking parents will want the rapture of the Christmas Faith to remain brilliant throughout the year. These are the parents who have discovered that one holy hour a week can make seven happy days.

Now, while parents are so aware of the strength and the joy that comes through Faith, now is the time to resolve to keep that Faith "shined up" throughout the year. We can do this by worshipping regularly at our Church or Synagogue. There we can find the strength for our lives. There the shinning light of Faith, which now burns more brightly than at any other time of year, may be seen and may be captured for ourselves and for our children. Worship together this week. . .and every week.

THINGS We see and hear

by BOB

UNDERSTAND that the Rev. Griffin Lloyd has been having a tussle with his vocal chords and they seem to be winning. He has to be "silent" for two weeks to let his speaking apparatus gain a well deserved rest. We're turly sorry that this came on him at this season of the year. We sincerely hope that it's nothing serious and that he will be back soon directing the "flock" which he loves and directs so well.

THERE'S nothing we enjoy more at Christmas time than the wonderful singing and carols and songs written especially for the occasion of the birth of The Prince of Peace'. We get much more this "joyful" activity than any other one thing. Running a close second in favorites is the looks of our kids faces on Christmas morning, but then that's sort of different feeling. . .in a "same" sortof way. We love Christmas, and if for no other reason, because it gives us an opportunity to ask ourselves "what have I given this past year toward the betterment of anything". Sometimes our answer is gratifying; sometimes, not so. At any rate, Christmas is a good time to start fresh. regardless of what you're trying to live up to.

JEMISON HAS U. N. PROGRAM

An interesting chapel program was presented Friday, December 12th on the United Nations. Sue Martin gave the devotion, Sandra Champion sang, "White Christmas." Those taking part in the discussion were: Elizabeth Tucker, Joan Northcutt, Faye Pardue, Betty Porter, Karen Black, Linda Thrash.

They told what the U .N. is and some of its functions. A chart was shown of the U. N. building in New York.

YOUR HEALTH

ARE VARSITY SPORTS OVEREMPHASIZED

Varsity sports in our schools may be overemphasized. Varsity sports serve only three per cent of the students and yet they dominate facilities, teachers and money allotted in school to activities which should serve all the student body, including girls and unskilled players, according to estimate How much physical fitness of our country's youth is tought and practiced in the schools? It is said that less than 50 percent of our boys and girls in high school have physical education.

Ninety-one percent of the nation's 150,000 elementary schools have no gymnasiums. Also, 95 percent of the nation's elementary schools have less than the recommended five acres of land necessary for essential play areas. Less than one school in every ten offers swimming instruction. And, less than 5 percent of our young people have had the opportunity to enjoy and profit by the experience of camping and outdoor living.

During times of war there is always criticism of the physical fitness of this country's youth. Usually after a war, criticism subsides, but since the last war there has been a sustained pickup of interest in fitness. Physicians have joined with others within their communities to help in developing sound physical education and athletic programs for the young

Physical education is an important factor in the development of strong, agile. confident, healthy, well-adjusted adults. Today, it is not only physical fitness that is generally important. but also we must look ahead to the maintenance of character, spiritual values and emotional health. The objective is termed total fitness.

From my front porch

By CARL HELM

Today's teen-agers are pretty nice kids, in my book. I'm not worried about their future or that of our country, which will be in their hands.

For one thing, they like to sing the sweet, sentimental old songs. They sing them with joy and feeling, whenever they have a chance . . . This may be called nonsense by the profound psychologists who wag dismayed heads over rock-'n-roll and similar passing crazes. But that doesn't worry me, either.

Perhaps the fast jazz beat gives release to something on the adolescent surface. But the love of the old songs wells up from the depths of the heart. It is no faked or phony attachment, I'm sure, but one with roots firm and deep in every hometown in our homeland.

Their loves of the "oldies" is real and sincere, and lasting. Just listen with open ears and mind, the next time you hear a group of youngsters singing!

GLETTY SAYS INTEGRATION "INEVITBLE"

Clanton, Alabama
Dec. 14, 1958

Editor
Chilton County News

Dear Editor--

In your editorial, under the heading: "We want a guarantee--that's all", you state: "Until some one does give evidence of a guarantee that there will be no mongrelization. then we firmly, whole heartedly and justifiably, are against Integration of the races and are willing to stand up and be counted".

Just who is guaranteeing us against so called mongrelizations under present segregation? Next time you walk up the street, take notice if you have not noticed already, and see how many mulattoes you see. You will find that about every fifth one is a mulatto. Some of them about as white as you or I. Many whiter than I. Integration, certainly did not cause this.

It is my humble opinion, that under segregation. there would be less mongrelization than there is under segregation. Under the present set up if some unprincipaled white man takes advantage of a negro girl, she is told to keep her mouth shut, or something worse will happen to her. Possibly thratened with K. K. K. action. She is so afraid, that she does just that. She keeps her mouth shut.

The Constitution of the U. S. does not tell us who we must or must not marry. It does tell us who we must associate with privately. But it does guarantee every citizen equal rights in public affairs and institutions. regardless of their race, color or creed. Would we want it otherwise? If a State can discriminate against a citizen or any group of citizens, on account of their race or color, there is no reason why it can not do so on account of their political, religious, or irreligious beliefs. Our founding fathers took great care to guard against these things. when they formulated our Constitution.

It is my opinion that any person who is qualified to pay taxes in any form, or serve in our armed forces, is qualified to vote. Remember? The main cause of our revolutionary war was, taxation without representation. It is my belief that we have many white voters in our own county who cannot read, or even write their own name, and who know nothing of the Constitution of the U. S. or the State of Alabama. Then why, should a colored person be required to write practically the entire Constitution, and even then not be able to qualify as a voter?

It is also my belief, that voting should not be considered not only as a privilege, but as a duty. Every able bodied citizen, male and female, of what ever belief or race, should not be required to pay a tax to be able to vote which is also unconstitutional. Then, and only then, could we brag of having a real democracy.

While I do not agree with the Governor of Oklahoma is inevitable and is coming to stay. So we might as well make the best of it, and try to plan ways to ease it in gradually, and smoothly as possible, instead of trying to fight the U. S. Government, and calling our Supreme Court subversive, when they are doing their sworn duty. These things only make matteirs worse, as any one can see by the results of the belligerent attitude of our State officials, in the hearing at Montgomery.

Respectfully
Wes Gletty

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS

from The Bible

A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. —(St. John 13:34.)

To break this commandment is to suffer the cancerous disease of hatred, bitterness and resentment which can destroy us. To keep it is to know mental, physical and spiritual happiness, and the divine reward of inner peace and strength.

CRD THREATS BROILER PRODUCERS

Cold winter months strike fear into the ears of many broiler growers because of the upsurge in respiratory diseases.

At present, chronic respiratory disease, commonly known as CRD, seems to be leading the list of troublesome broiler problems, according to API Extension Poultry Specialist S. L. Davis.

Davis explained that federal inspection of poultry products makes it even more important to do everything possible to control CRD. Poultry processors say this disease can be a cause for high condemnation of broilers at plants.

Prevention is the first line of defense against CRD, the specialist said. Poultrymen should practice good management seven days a week, including adequate heat and ventilation with good feed, water, and litter sanitation. A complete clean-up and disinfection program after each brood is recommended.

Davis said a sound vaccination program for newcastle and infectious bronchitis is important because these may develop into CRD. Control of parasites should be given close attention.

A proved cocidiostat in the broiler ration will help control coccidiosis. Most important, the specialist stressed, is an early laboratory diagnosis in determining the factors associated with chronic respiratory diseases. The two state poultry diagnostic labs are at Auburn and Albertville.

After CRD has been diagnosed by the laboratory, Davis advised broiler producers to use drugs as recommended by the laboratory pathologist.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Use lukewarm water to sprinkle clothes for ironing. Warm water penetrates the fabric more evenly than cold water.

Worried about Christmas gifts? You can make attractive handbags and other small articles from velvet and velveteen scraps in your sewing basket.

Speaking of sewing boxes, if you slip rubber bands over spools of thread, they won't unwind and clutter up the sewing box or drawer.

Use bright-colored scraps and socks to make stuffed toys for children.

Never place a sweater on a hanger, fold it lightly and store in a drawer.

Keep your fire extinguisher handy in your farm shop. Paint the wall behind it white, with jagged edges to call attention to the life-saving device.

No need to cry when you peel onions—hold them under the running water, rub salt on your hands, or hold your breath while peeling them.

Place a cork on the point of your good scissors before you put them down. It'll protect the points from chipping and breaking.

TOTS and TEENS

By Mrs. Joan Cameron

"Mom, we tamed him."

That's what teen-aged Nancy said the other day after a baby-care course she and some other young sitters are taking from a practical nurse. It seems they had a real live baby around who proved to be very spirited when they tried to dress him.

To perfect what she's learning, my daughter practices at home on a doll her sister Susan abandoned. Sometimes, the whole family is invited to her demonstrations on baby care.

We're all impressed with how well she's learned to lift a baby correctly, pat up its air bubble and hold it for feeding. She was a little confused, however, when it came to diaper changing. So, that's where I lent a hand.

As a mother of four—all beyond the diaper stage now—I've had plenty of experience along these lines.

So, first I explained why it's important to change diapers whenever necessary: this gives skin bacteria less of a chance to work on the wet diaper and release ammonia which produces the painful burn known as diaper rash.

Then, using the doll, I gently sponged off the skin in the diaper area with soap and water and applied some Vaseline Petroleum Jelly. Soap and water washings between changes help remove all traces of the ammonia; the petroleum jelly forms a waterproof surface that keeps ammonia away from the skin if "doll baby" in securely.

And, of course, I told her that preventative measures also include washing and rinsing diapers well to remove all traces of soap and ammonia and using absorbent wool soakers rather than waterproof pants. As for treating the rash, I explained that pediatricians recommend using petroleum jelly more liberally, exposing affected skin frequently to the air each day and dispensing with rubber,

And the Angel said unto them Fear not, for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people For unto you is born this day in the City of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you; ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of heavenly hosts praising God and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to men--Luke 2--10:14.
